F.D.R. LANDS ON MALTA; PRAISES ITS DEFENDERS

Presents a Scroll to Bombed Island.

May Visit England

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The suggestion that President Roosevelt plans a visit to England was given credence tonight in the Eevening News, which said the trip "is at least possible." The article said several invitations had been sent the President by King George and Prime Minister Churchill. It is believed that if Mr. Roosevelt decides to visit here soon he might address the house of commons.

VALLETTA, Malta, Dec. 10 (AP).—President Roosevelt made a dramatic three hour appearance on this bomb-scarred little British island in the Mediterranean Wednesday, and paid tribute to its heroic defenders with a presentation of an illuminated scroll.

Traveling from the series of conferences in the middle east, the President dropped down from the clouds in a four-engined Douglas C-54 transport plane at 9:50 a. m. He passed rapidly thru a succession of ceremonies. Then, saying he had "many things to do," he flew away to an unannounced destination.

[The Berlin radio said Mr. Roosevelt might be headed for Spain to meet Generalissimo Franco, or for London. The President's movements as usual were secret.]

Churchill Paused Earlier.

In the ceremonies the President referred to Prime Minister Churchill, who had stopped at Malta earlier.

"I feel we have struck strong blows for the future of the human race," he said.

"The United States will proceed until the war is won, but more than that, we will stand shoulder to shoulder with the British empire and our other allies in making it a victory worthwhile."

The President's visit here fulfilled what he described as a wish of many months as he presented a scroll on behalf of the American people saluting the defenders of Malta.

Eisenhower Goes Along.

Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied by Gen. Eisenhower; Harry Hopkins, his personal adviser; Adm. William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Northwest African air forces; Rear Adm. Ross T. McIntire, the President's personal physician; Maj. Gen. Walter B. Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, the President's secretary and military aide, and Maj. John Boettiger, the President's son-in-law.

Their plane, handled by Maj. Otis Bryan, the President's personal pilot, was escorted by a score of Lightning and Spitfire fighters.

At the airport the visitors were welcomed by Field Marshal Gort, commander-in-chief of Malta, and a delegation of officials as well as by a military guard of honor and a band.

Raise American Flag.

The President stepped from his plane into a jeep named "Husky," one of three presented to the British on Malta by Eisenhower when Sicily was invaded. With Gort, he was driven to the front of the guard of honor made up from men of an R. A. F. unit, 50 British marines, 50 royal navy men, and 100 Maltese troops.

As the jeep came to a stop, the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The President took the salute and then the American flag was raised on the staff behind the guard.

Mr. Roosevelt read the inscription on the scroll, which he took from a handsome wooden case:

"In the name of the people of the United States of America I salute the island of Malta and its people and its defenders, who, in the cause of freedom and justice and decency thruout the world, have rendered valorous service far above and beyond the call of duty.

"Under repeated fire from the

Overseas Vets to Get Higher Rates in Bill

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—The senate military committee today rewrote the service men's discharge pay bill, adopting a graduated plan that puts emphasis on overseas service.

Without dissent, the group raised the maximum from $300 to $500 for discharged veterans and also fixed a minimum of $200. Discharge pay after the last war was a flat $60, which later was deducted from the soldier bonus.

The committee also agreed the mustering-out pay should be tax exempt.

Predicts a Bonus March.

While the senate sped the program toward a decision, the house military committee concluded hearings on its plan and heard from a wounded veteran that "there will be another march for a bonus" if adequate sums are not provided.

Tech. Sgt. Lemuel Hendricks of Council Bluffs, Ia., who lost a leg in Tunisia, testified that the men on the battlefields are beginning "to wonder what they are fighting for" and he said they are concerned "about their future and what congress is doing for them."

The house bill contains a $300 top: $100 at the time of discharge and $100 a month for the next two months. Hendricks questioned the adequacy of the first payment.

What Bill Provides.

The senate's graduated scale plan was conceived by Senators Warren Austin [R., Vt.] and Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] and incorporated into the Barkley bill, which now provides for all under the army rank of colonel and comparable ranks in other branches these sums:

Five hundred dollars for those who served 18 months or more outside the continental United States; $400 for those serving one year to 18 months overseas; $300 for overseas service of less than one year; $300 for service in the United States for one year or over, and $200 for service in the United States less than one year.

Sen. Bridges said the war department estimated the payments under a flat $300 discharge allowance would aggregate about 3 billion dollars and that the approved bill would cost the government "somewhat more," depending upon the length of the war and the number sent overseas.

GIRL, 8, IS RAPED AND STRANGLED AT MARINE BASE

Beaufort, S. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Marine authorities today investigated the raping and slaying of an 8 year old girl, daughter of a marine officer, at Parris Island. An inquest was set for Sunday morning.

Coroner Roger Pinckney said he had been informed several suspects in the case had been questioned by marine authorities. The identity of the child was not disclosed. The child, the coroner said, apparently had been attacked and strangled.

The nude body was found late yesterday almost 24 hours after the girl had left home to go to a movie on the marine reservation. Marine authorities at the base forebade all officers and enlisted men, as well as civilians, to leave the reservation without a pass until further orders.

EXPECT McNUTT TO QUIT AFTER LOSS OF POWER

Stripped of Draft Control by F.D.R.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Paul V. McNutt, war man power commissioner, tonight was expected to submit his resignation shortly as the result of the stinging rebuff he suffered earlier in the day when the White House announced President Roosevelt had signed the bill placing pre-Pearl Harbor fathers at the bottom of draft rolls.

[Illinois draft officials, awaiting official instructions, warn fathers they must heed orders to report. Page 6.]

The silver haired former governor of Indiana had urged veto of the measure because it takes control of the draft from him and returns it to the army, under Maj. Gen. Hershey, director of the selective service administration.

McNutt, who was confident the President would veto the measure as a vote of confidence in the man he had placed in charge of the man power problem, nursed his disappointment in silence. No statement was issued by his office.

"Only Thing He Can Do."

Thruout congress and government departments, the belief was general that McNutt will quit as soon as President Roosevelt returns from conferences in Africa and the middle east.

"It's the only thing he can do and keep his self-respect," said a cabinet member.

Friends of the man power czar made no effort to conceal the fact they were bleeding for McNutt. They said they had not expected such treatment for McNutt at the hands of the President in view of McNutt's services politically and officially.

McNutt always has felt he turned down the Vice Presidency in Chicago in 1940 by withdrawing his name at the will of Mr. Roosevelt before a convention which was in a mood to take anybody but the White House choice, Henry A. Wallace.

Say He Regretted Decision.

McNutt went before the convention to withdraw his own name and call for support of the chief executive. Critics of McNutt charged he regretted his decision before he left the platform.

During the campaign the story was told that McNutt was so bitter over the decision forced upon him that he wore a Willkie campaign button pinned to his underwear while he sported a Roosevelt campaign button in his lapel.

The White House did not disclose where or when the bill, which McNutt had said would "seriously weaken" the over-all man power situation thru its division of authority, had been signed by the President.

At selective service headquarters Gen. Hershey wired state draft directors that the Wheeler draft act, as amended, had been signed and that certain administrative changes would be necessary.

Kill "Work or Fight" Orders.

The most important of these is that the "work or fight" order of McNutt is rescinded. McNutt had differentiated between essential and nonessential jobs, such as sales clerks, bell boys, bootblacks, bartenders, and dancing teachers. Under the McNutt ruling men in nonessential occupations were required to shift to essential industries or be called for immediate service.

Other provisions of the new law follow:

1. A five member medical commission, appointed by the President, is set up to review military physical and mental standards to

THE MIND DOTH CONJURE UP WORSE IMAGES THAN THE EYES CAN SEE

Witnesses Rip Tryst Story of Stoll Kidnaper

BY CARL WIEGMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 10.—Government witnesses today wrecked the sensational story told earlier in the week by Thomas H. Robinson that he had intimate relations with Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll before he kidnaped her and collected $50,000 ransom in 1934.

The witnesses asserted and presented documentary evidence that the tourist cabins where Robinson said he took Mrs. Stoll had not been built at the time he mentioned.

The testimony was given in federal court, where Robinson is on trial for the kidnaping. At a night session of the trial, the government completed its rebuttal testimony. Arguments by opposing counsel will begin tomorrow morning and by evening the case is expected to be placed in the hands of the jury.

A Detailed Description.

On the witness stand last Monday, Robinson testified he took Mrs. Stoll to a tourist camp called Beach Grove, on the Dixie highway near Louisville. He described the place in considerable detail, and said he and Mrs. Stoll registered there as man and wife. He said this occurred during June or July of 1931, when he was an attendant at a filling station operated by the C. C. Stoll Oil company, headed by the father-in-law of the kidnap victim.

Today Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Palmer testified the tourist cabins were not built until September of that year and none was rented until Oct. 12, several months after Robinson left Louisville. Records of a brick company from which the Palmers bought supplies were introduced to support their testimony, along with a ledger showing records of guests at the cabins.

United States Atty. Eli H. Brown said the testimony and exhibits demolished Robinson's desperate effort to win his freedom by smearing Mrs. Stoll's character. Mrs. Stoll, member of a pioneer Louisville family, testified she had never seen Robinson until the day he invaded her home to kidnap her.

Mental Condition Discussed.

Most of today's three sessions of the trial were devoted to discussions of the defendant's mental condition at the time of the kidnaping. This is the main issue of the trial, since Robinson contends he was insane. He won his freedom from Alcatraz prison two months ago on a plea that he was improperly represented when he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a life term in 1936.

The jury of one woman and 11 men, mostly farmers, has heard a long procession of specialists in mental diseases give contradictory explanations of the defendant's condition. Psychiatrists for the defense asserted he was a victim of schizophrenia, unable to tell right from wrong, and without sufficient will power to do the right.

Psychiatrists for the government asserted he knew right from wrong and appreciated the legal consequences of his act. They described him as anti-social, with criminal traits and character deficiencies.

If the jury finds him not guilty of the kidnaping on the theory that he was insane, he will go free.

The jury may return a verdict of guilty with no recommendation of penalty. In this case, the sentence would be fixed by Judge Shackelford Miller, who is presiding over the trial. With such a verdict, the sentence could be a life term, but it could not be death.

FOUR WAR WORKERS KILLED WHEN TRAIN DEMOLISHES AUTO

Two men and two women were killed and another couple injured last night when their automobile was struck and demolished by a Grand Trunk railroad passenger train on the Kennedy avenue crossing, a mile and a half south of Highland, Ind. All were employed in war plants in the Hammond area.

The dead were identified from cards found on their bodies as Robert C. Bryan, 30 years old, 950 West 61st street; Arthur Norris Jr. 710 Main street, Griffith, Ind.; Mary J. Byick, 3601 Deadone street, East Chicago, and Avanell Wallace, no address.

The survivors are Floyd Critchfield, 38, also of Griffith, the driver, who suffered a skull fracture, and Donna L. Larson, 1337 150th street, Hammond. All the occupants of the car except the Larson woman, were thrown out by the impact, and Bryan, Norris, and the Wallace woman were decapitated.

Attendants at St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, said the Larson woman, who escaped with a scratch on her face, refused to answer questions about the accident. Critchfield was removed to the same hospital.

The crossing is protected by painted signs only. Seven persons were killed in a crash there three years ago, police said.

Charge School Play Monitor Flogs Children

On charges that he constantly uses profane language in the presence of children, and that on numerous occasions he used a rubber hose or club to strike children on the Gallistel school playground, 10347 Ewing avenue, Joseph Stephan Stoeber, 58 years old, has been suspended as playground instructor.

William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, yesterday announced the suspension, which took effect Thursday, at a meeting of the board of education. He recommended a board hearing on Jan. 26.

Denies Beating Children.

Stoeber, who lives at 4950 Fletcher street with his wife, Elizabeth, last night denied using profanity or beating children, altho he said he carried a 2½ foot length of rubber hose for defense against older boys.

Stoeber was playground instructor at Whittier school, 1900 23d street, from 1939 to 1941, and at Otis school, 525 Armour avenue, from 1941 to early this year.

Stoeber attributed his transfer and his suspension to friction with Herman J. Fischer, director of the bureau of recreation for public schools.

Unpopular with Children.

Mrs. Joseph Powell, 10422 Avenue G, a member of the board of directors and former president of the Gallistel school Parent-Teacher association, said:

"I know they have a new man this year, who is unpopular with the children, but I think it is as much the children's fault as his. I have not talked with any parents who complained, but I have talked with some of the children, and have overheard them talking."

Mrs. Ivar Johnson, 10452 Avenue H, president of the Parent-Teacher association, said her son Bruce, 13, attends the playground regularly and has voiced no complaint.

SHATTER NIGHT ASSAULT BY 30 TORPEDO BOMBERS

Pals of O'Hare Tell How He Was Lost Guarding Ships.

ABOARD A U. S. CARRIER IN THE CENTRAL PACIFIC, Nov. 29 [Delayed]—(AP).—After a two day search which failed to locate Lt. Comdr. Edward [Butch] O'Hare, famous fighter pilot shot down in a night battle while defending his carrier force against a torpedo plane attack, his flying companions today told of his last fiery engagement.

They related how the 29 year old Chicago born ace helped beat off assaults by 30 to 40 Jap torpedo planes in a battle which saved the task force.

[O'Hare won nation-wide fame and the congressional medal of honor for shooting down five Jap bombers and damaging a sixth in an action similar to that in which he was lost. He bagged the five Japs while flying as a lone fighter cover for the aircraft carrier Lexington near the Gilbert Islands Feb. 20, 1942. O'Hare was the son of the late Edward J. O'Hare, wealthy head of the Sportsmen's Park race track, who was slain in Chicago Nov. 8, 1939.]

O'Hare First in the Air.

Lt. Comdr. John L. Phillips, 33 years old, of Linden, Va., said O'Hare's plane was the first off the carrier's deck. After telling how he knocked down one Jap plane and his gunner was firing on a Jap attacking O'Hare, Phillips said:

"My target exploded and blew up beautifully. While I was watching the Jap burn I saw something drop straight off into the water, making a big splash. Then I thought, 'My God, that may be Butch.'

"I attempted to make contact, calling, 'Butch, this is Phil,' over and over, but I got no response. I think the splash was a plane Butch shot down."

Ensign Warren A. Skon, 24, of St. Paul, Minn., who was flying wing on O'Hare when they started to join Phillips, said:

"As we joined on Comdr. Phillips, Butch said, 'You take the side you want!' I said, 'I'll take the port.'

O'Hare Disappears in Darkness.

"'Roger,' he said, and that was his last word.

"Then I saw tracers around his plane. I saw it quickly below us."

Aviation Ordnance Man Alvin B. Kernan, 20 years old, of Saratoga, Wyo., a gunner, who was among the last to see O'Hare, said:

"While I was firing I saw Comdr. O'Hare do a wingover across the top of us and he disappeared into the darkness. A few moments later it seemed that he reappeared and made an outside loop. Then he was gone."

First to Land at Tarawa.

O'Hare had landed at Tarawa in the first carrier plane landing there since American conquest of the Gilbert islands to study the field. He also had a personal interest because he had "Hellcatted" that area before and during the landing operations at Makin and Tarawa.

Since dawn of Nov. 27 a relentless search for him has been conducted by carrier groups and planes from Tarawa. An area of 2,000 square miles has been crisscrossed.

The reconstructed story of the men who flew with O'Hare indicated he took one Jap torpedo plane down with him. It was his ninth. But his flying mates forever will remember how Butch saved their task force from the heaviest and longest night attack by Japanese torpedo planes.

Commenting on that action, Rear Adm. Arthur W. Radford, commander of the task force, said:

"Butch, with accompanying planes, saved my formation from certain torpedo hits. I am recommending him for a second congressional medal of honor."

Planes and Curtain of Fire Fight Off Heavy Blow.

BY EUGENE BURNS.

ABOARD A U. S. CARRIER OFF TARAWA, Gilbert Islands, Nov. 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—Without receiving a hit, this task force, traveling at high speed in a black tropical night, beat off a sustained Japanese torpedo plane attack tonight.

Rear Adm. Arthur W. Radford, 47 years old, of Grinnell, Ia., called it the heaviest sustained torpedo plane attack the Japanese ever launched. It was the third successive night we were under imminent or actual aerial attack.

We fought off 30 or 40 two engined torpedo planes with anti-aircraft guns and planes led by Lt. Comdr. Edward H. [Butch] O'Hare.

O'Hare Saves the Ships.

It was the first time in a naval action that carriers had launched their aircraft at night. The planes stole up behind the Japs, shot down two and disrupted their plans. During the action the Japs lost nine or 10 planes—two shot down by Lt. Comdr. John L. Phillips of Linden, Va., and six or seven by gunfire.

Our loss was not great in planes, but the Japs shot down O'Hare, an ace who wore the congressional medal of honor. He led the night fighters credited with saving our formation.

During this and the two preceding night attacks the carrier force proved itself a powerful defensive weapon. The Japs could not put a torpedo on us.

The first night they couldn't find us. The second night they made three attacks with about 12 planes but failed to penetrate our screens, which rolled up a fire like thunder and lightning.

Japs Try for the Kill.

Tonight the Japs came in for the kill, but didn't throw everything in the book at us. They threw a seven foot shelf of classic pyrotechnics.

During the two hour battle five torpedo wakes were sighted within our formation. One torpedo missed a carrier by six feet. Not one hit was scored.

The attack began about dusk when a Japanese snooper plane came up to report our position. He was shot down, but not before passing the word. Soon many Japs converged on us.

As they came in, Adm. Radford launched planes—fighters, among whom was O'Hare and Ensign Warren A. Skon, 24 years old, of St. Paul, and a torpedo bomber piloted by Phillips.

Butch Takes the Risk Himself.

Because it was the first attempt to take off from a carrier at night, and extremely dangerous, Butch had decided to lead the fighters.

The ship's loud speaker told of the Japs coming—with enough explosive to blast our entire formation to the bottom. As they came in, the tremendous gunfire by screening battleships, cruisers, and destroyers drowned out the loud speaker.

A Jap plane dropped a string of 18 flares to our starboard beam.

"My gosh, that's good," exclaimed a gunnery officer. "I haven't seen a better flare illumination during our own peace time maneuvers."

The string of lights, about half a mile long and three miles away, lighted up our formation so I could see the drawn faces of the men about me. Then we saw two explosions within a minute and the attack didn't materialize.

The loud speaker explained: "Lt. Comdr. Phillips shot down two planes."

For the next two hours the Jap flyers attempted to hit our ships, but each time they were met by a blazing burst of gunfire. Thruout this time our giant ships were traveling at high speed, leaving erratic wakes.

How the ships kept from ramming one another or shooting each other is a tribute to the skippers.

Tracers Paint Rainbows.

Our battleships rolled out 2,000 yard rainbows of red tracer fire at intervals. They seemed to be only 10 yards away and looked like giant ruby necklaces.

The sky was filled with black smoke from anti-aircraft explosions. Heavy guns growled continuously, shaking our vessel, while 5 inch anti-aircraft barked sharply. Low firing tracers and shells bounced across the water.

After the battle, Adm. Radford said: "I've had plenty, but we gave the Jap plenty. We've got him worried. He gave us the best he had but it wasn't enough. And those Jap torpedo plane pilots can't be replaced within a year—even three. They're the best Japan's got."

Pound Jap Air Bases.

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, Dec. 10 (AP).—Another softening up blow has been delivered against important Japanese air bases in the Marshall Islands by Liberator bombers of the 7th army air force.

More than 40 tons of bombs were unloaded on Jaluit and Mili atolls by the four-engined bombers Wednesday, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The attacks followed raids earlier in the day Jaluit and Mili, which were announced last night. At Jaluit a patrol boat was sunk and three other Japanese vessels probably were destroyed.

Only One Man Wounded.

There was no enemy interception in the late afternoon raid on Jaluit, Nimitz reported, but ten Zero fighters attempted interception over Mili and two probably were shot down. Several American planes received minor damage. One man was wounded.

The Japanese have air fields at Jaluit and Mili and a good seaplane base at Jaluit.

MAJ. CHAMBERLIN SAYS JAPS FOLD IN TOUGH GOING

The mother of the leader of the first battalion of marines to land on Tarawa Island in the recent three day battle there received a letter from him yesterday saying that he is recovering from a shoulder wound and that the Japanese soldiers are not as tough as they are sometimes represented. The letter, written at sea, was dated Nov. 29.

The marine leader is Maj. William Charles Chamberlin, 25, son of Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, 4418 North Paulina street, president of the Chicago Woman's club. He was executive officer of the marines, who led the Tarawa assault and one of the first men to reach the island's shore.

News stories credited him with fighting for 60 hours without sleep after receiving a bullet in his right shoulder. His letter reported that during the battle he lost a pistol given him by his late father, who served in the 131st infantry, Illinois National guard, with the rank of colonel, and was for 20 years director of the Chicago Crime commission.

Maj. Chamberlin told his mother: "I am exceedingly proud of our battalion. It did a magnificent job. I do not believe in the fanaticism of the Japs. I am sure they are afraid of us. We met the very best troops the Japs had to offer and, when the going got tough, they folded."

United Air Seeks 4 New Mail, Passenger Routes

Bradford, Pa., Dec. 10 (AP).—John E. Walker, assistant to W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, announced his company today filed five applications with the civil aeronautics board, four for new mail and passenger routes. The routes would be Cleveland-New York-Newark, Cleveland-Ottawa-Montreal, Chicago-Des Moines, and Toledo-Milwaukee-Moline, Ill., with many stops at intermediate cities. The other application called for the addition of four stops in the company's Chicago-Cleveland route, Walker said.

FURY OF TARAWA BATTLE TOLD BY ILLINOIS HEROES

Jap Bullet Misses Killing One by Just an Inch.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, Dec. 9 [Delayed]—Two Chicagoland marines recuperating from wounds received in the ferocious conquest of Tarawa today told of their parts in that historic battle on the tiny atoll in the Gilbert Islands. Both expressed eagerness to get back into action to settle scores with the Japs.

Second Lt. Casimir Edward Linkewicz, 26 years old, whose widowed mother, Pauline, lives at 666 Hirsch street, Calumet City, Ill., missed death by an inch when a Jap machine gun bullet plowed thru his left cheek just below his eye.

Leading a rifle platoon, Linkewicz went into battle on the second day. Carrying extra drinking water and ammunition, his group dug in for the night at the right flank which was brightly lighted by a fire started by our bombs.

Rooster Crows Amid Death.

"I heard some of our boys shooting," he said. "I got sore because they were ordered to hold their fire, but the boys saw the enemy silhouetted against the flames and couldn't resist. I told them to use their bayonets, so the firing ceased. Just before daybreak a Jap plane came over and killed some of our boys with bombs. I remember hearing a rooster crow in the distance about that time.

"Later in the day I took a platoon to the west end of the beach in a vain search for reported snipers. On the way back I was hit. Luckily, the stretcher bearers had a stretcher up ahead of the line. While they were carrying me in and beefing about my 180 pounds, Jap riflemen and machine gunners opened up, so they had to drag me by the leg. They had a hell of a time getting me out. Of the six who carried me out, all but two were killed later."

Linkewicz ran a tavern following the death of his father, Joseph, but five years ago he took a job in a steel mill. He joined the marines nearly four years ago. He served 14 months in Iceland and on Guadalcanal. Tho he never was wounded, he had malaria five times. His brother, Stanley, 24, a naval air ensign, is engaged to Miss Kay Neal of Los Angeles.

Scared, Another Illinoisan Admits.

Pvt. James R. Hill, 21 years old, 302 Sycamore street, Normal, Ill., who has been a marine 18 months, five of them overseas, admitted he was scared going into Tarawa with the second wave on the first day. With companions falling on all sides and "all those guys shooting at you, it made you want to say your prayers," he grinned.

"No one in my boat was hit coming in to the beach, but there were some casualties getting out. It was tough at the beach tho, with three machine gun nests and an anti-boat gun right ahead of us. However, I lost my nervousness as soon as I got in.

"A strapping 6 foot 2 Jap cut one of our boys across the throat and shoulders and was finished off himself with bayonets. It was a long fight along the seawall, but about 25 yards beyond I saw a pillbox. I threw in two grenades and another marine with a flame thrower turned it inside. A little while later, as I was jumping out of a tank, I twisted my knee. Later I found it was fractured.

"Then while returning toward the beach to knock out a Jap position, I caught a shell fragment in my right leg. I dug it out myself behind the seawall. My buddy was killed by machine gun fire about then. Plenty of us were getting hit. I stayed on the beach until late in the evening before I was evacuated. The guy who dragged me out was Pvt. Wayne Hish of Fairbury, Ill.

Wants More Action.

"You've got to hand it to those Jap marines. They don't know what fear is. The thing that won the battle was just a lot of men wading in against a hell of rifle and artillery fire. I want to see more action and get this thing over with."

Pvt. James J. Peters, 22 years old, of Winona, Minn., a veteran of Guadalcanal, said Tarawa was much tougher. Peters landed on the second day and went unscathed thru several encounters with the enemy until the morning of the battle's fourth day.

Tells of Bayonet Battle.

On that day a shell exploded about 25 yards ahead of him and a fragment cut his left leg. A medical corpsman applied a battle dressing and Peters fought for three hours.

He was one of a group that had met a desperate bayonet charge of 20 Japs on the third evening.

"They came whooping toward us, their bayonets fixed, screaming and yelling," Peters said. "I was with Pvt. Otto Zeigler of Arlington, Minn. He killed one Jap with his carbine. Mine was out of order, but I got a Jap with a hand grenade. I saw a Jap bayonet one of our boys thru the leg. His buddy clubbed the Nip and the bayoneted marine jumped up and emptied his automatic pistol in the Jap's head."

Survivors of Torpedoed Freighter

25 Casualties

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 10.—Eighteen survivors from the crew of 43 of the Cuban steamer Libertad, which was sunk Dec. 5 by a German submarine near Charleston, S. C., while en route to New York, will arrive here Sunday, it was announced today by the navy department. The survivors have been landed in Charleston.

The Libertad was torpedoed while in a convoy with other American vessels. The Libertad was formerly the Recca, an Italian steamer confiscated by the Cuban government on March 31, 1941. She had been rented to the Garcia Shipping company.

The government has ordered an investigation of reports that information regarding the route the Libertad should follow on its way to New York was radioed to the ship. Luis Pascuas, secretary of the Association of Captains and Pilots of the Cuban merchant marine, lodged a formal charge to that effect.

SISTERS, MOTHER CERTAIN O'HARE WILL COME BACK

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 10 (AP).—The sisters of Butch O'Hare believe he will come back. Heartened by news that navy planes are searching the central Pacific where Lt. Comdr. Edward H. O'Hare was lost, they expressed confidence today that his resourcefulness will see him thru. The sisters, Mrs. Paul V. Palmer and Mrs. Phil E. Tovrea, Jr., said:

"We are waiting just like millions of other women who have sons, husbands, and brothers fighting in the front lines. But if Butch got out of that ship alive, no matter where it landed, he will come back. He's made it before when the odds were against him. There's more than a ray of hope in the report that another pilot thought he saw a parachute going down with Butch's plane."

These women know what it is to wait. Both have husbands in the service. They are not alone in their hope. When Butch's mother, Mrs. Selma O'Hare, left here last night to join his wife in Coronado, Calif., she expressed confidence he could have reached safety. His wife is the former Rita Wooster of St. Louis, O'Hare's one-time home. They have an infant daughter.

ALLIED BOMBERS RIP NEW BRITAIN 11TH DAY IN ROW

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HDQ., Dec. 11 [Saturday]—(AP).—For the 11th straight day Cape Gloucester, in the New Britain Island area, in greatest danger of invasion by Gen. MacArthur's New Guinea forces, has been pounded by allied bombers.

Headquarters announced today that Mitchell medium bombers made the latest attack in a series which have exploded approximately 1,000 tons of bombs in that small area.

This aerial assault on enemy supplies was coördinated with naval action by PT boats which sank or set afire five barges in the New Guinea-New Britain sectors.

Push Beyond Wareo.

A spokesman said Australians who captured the jungle supply high point of Wareo, on New Guinea's Huon peninsula, still are progressing north of there.

The latest attack on the Cape Gloucester area was delivered Thursday by Thunderbolt-escorted Mitchells which scattered 48 tons of bombs along shore installations. They also strafed bivouacs, barge bases, and supply dumps.

Bad weather virtually brought operations of Adm. William F. Halsey's Solomons air force to a halt.

See Prelude of Jap Doom.

Meanwhile spokesmen pointed out that tentacles of allied power are reaching out into the widely extended battle areas of the Pacific for the bases needed to clamp the stranglehold on Japan's island empire.

With increasing frequency the fleet is striking at far separated points with its guns and air arm. Army Liberator bombers are stepping up their attacks on the enemy's strategic island holdings. Allied ground forces are hacking thru the jungles to clear the Nipponese from ground needed to spring new invasions.

Within a week Japanese forces have felt the weight of these attacks in the Marshall Islands, on important Nauru Island, on New Britain, on Bougainville, and on New Guinea—points many hundreds of miles apart.

These operations seem to fall into a pattern of outflanking enemy bastions for the ultimate stroke designed to sweep Nipponese power from the Pacific.

Set Up Bougainville Air Base.

SOUTH PACIFIC ALLIED HDQ., Dec. 11 [Saturday] — (AP). — Both light bombers and fighter planes of the United States Solomons air force now are using an air field on invaded Bougainville Island within 250 miles of Japan's New Britain stronghold at Rabaul, a spokesman for Adm. William F. Halsey said today. The field is at Torokina, on the northwest side of the allies' beachhead established Nov. 1.

The spokesman pointed out that it now is feasible for bombers to be escorted with adequate numbers of fighters on New Britain raids.

CHINESE BATTLE PAST CHANGTEH TO CLEAR HUNAN

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 10 (AP).—Victorious Chinese soldiers fought on north of recaptured Changteh in northern Hunan province today in a bid to clear the area of Japanese invaders, the Chinese high command announced. The army said its forces had marched more than 13 miles northeast of the Yuan river port, west of Tungting lake, and to the northwest had advanced 20 miles. Here several hundred Japanese were killed, the Chinese said.

Recapture of Changteh yesterday climaxed a 40 day battle for the richest rice growing area in the province and cost the Japanese 40,000 casualties, Maj. Gen. C. C. Tseng said.

CHURCHILL SEES M'ARTHUR STAFF CHIEF AT CAIRO

Casey of Australia Also Present at Talk.

CAIRO, Egypt., Dec. 10 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill gave an off-the-record talk to war correspondents today in the midst of conferences he has been having here with middle east officials since the departure of President Ismet Inonu of Turkey.

The British prime minister has conferred with King Farouk of Egypt, King George II. of Greece, and various Britons.

The character of these parleys was taken as an indication that Churchill has been surveying the entire Mediterranean and middle east situation in the light of the talks he and President Roosevelt had with Inonu. The Turkish conference ended Dec. 6.

In Optimistic Mood.

Churchill was in an obviously optimistic mood over the final outcome of the allied campaign to win the war after his conferences with Mr. Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Inonu. He met the newsmen in the big ballroom of the British embassy.

The prime minister visited King Farouk on Dec. 8, the day after the Egyptian king's return from a British military hospital where he was confined thruout the great powers' conferences by injuries sustained in an automobile accident. He also lunched at the British embassy with King George of Greece.

A spokesman said that Churchill "congratulated King Farouk on his happy and speedy recovery from the accident and their conversations were happy, friendly and most cordial."

Has Lunch with Smuts.

On the previous day, Dec. 7, Churchill went to the airport to bid good-by to friends and returned for lunch with Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of the Union of South Africa.

That evening Churchill had separate talks with Maj. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, chief of staff to Gen. MacArthur, and Richard G. Casey, British minister of state in the middle east and former Australian minister to the United States.

He then gave a dinner for the combined British-American chiefs of staff who had held three final meetings during the day with each conferring separately in the morning and then joining in the afternoon at a session which put the final touches to plans for future offensives.

Axis Capital Is Target

(Story in adjoining column.)

Military activities in the Balkans, reported yesterday.

SOFIA, BULGARIA CAPITAL, BOMBED IN DAYLIGHT RAID

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Bulgarian capital of Sofia was blasted for an hour and 45 minutes this afternoon by several waves of allied planes whose explosives caused great destruction and killed many persons, the Sofia radio disclosed tonight.

American planes apparently made the attack and it was indicated that the target again was the railroad district which was hit hard last Nov. 24 by United States Liberators of the Northwest African command. The raiders were said to have encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The heavy raid, the third in a month, began at 11:40 a. m. and the capital was under an alert for two hours or more, a Budapest, Hungary, radio announcement said.

Parliament Pays Tribute.

Premier Dobri Bojilov interrupted a later address to parliament asking his legislators to rise in silent tribute to those who had died, the Sofia radio said.

The premier was quoted as saying there were "material losses" plus numerous dead, "as before."

Besides the Liberator attack late last month, Mitchells had attacked the capital on Nov. 11. Budapest dispatches received here said United States planes recently scattered leaflets asking Bulgarian troops to evacuate Greek Macedonia, and warning them not to participate in punitive expeditions against Jugo-Slavs and Greeks.

Report Rumanians Panicky.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Signs that Adolf Hitler's satellite states are seeking a way out of the war increased tonight as dispatches from neutral capitals pictured Bulgaria in the throes of a crisis and panicky Rumanians leaving cities in fear of air raids.

For the last two days there have been reports that the pro-German Bulgarian premier, Dobri Bojilov, was struggling to patch up his shaky regime after a vote of no confidence. The premier himself was said to be taking over the foreign office portfolio after the minister resigned.

Peace demonstrations and disturbances were reported to have occurred all over the country, and there were unconfirmed reports that general mobilization had been ordered.

Reds May Aid Bulgars.

Bulgaria's relations with Russia, with whom she is not at war, might provide an escape in spite of the fact that she is a co-belligerent with Germany against the United States and Britain.

In that connection the reported arrival of a new Russian military attache in Sofia was regarded as significant. Senior officers of the Bulgarian army of 400,000 generally are considered pro-German, but pro-Russian sentiments of Bulgarian peasantry are reflected in the lower ranks.

Foreign military experts think the Bulgarian army might fight if the Turks invaded but would be unreliable and possibly mutinous if asked to fight the Russians.

Rumania, in the tightest spot of all the satellite states, faces the prospect of being overwhelmed by Russian forces. The feeling of the people was indicated by reports that many were fleeing from cities after leaflet raids promising air raids.

Hungary Faces Occupation.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 10 (AP).—A threat of complete occupation by the Germans hangs over Hungary as a result of the satellite state's strained relations with the Nazis and fear of an allied invasion of the Balkans, persons familiar with the situation said tonight.

The danger has been growing more acute daily since the Teheran and Cairo conferences and the resultant speculation about Turkey's future role in the war, these sources reported, because Hungary holds a strategic key to southeastern Europe, especially in communications.

Axis and neutral sources said that not only the people but even the government was convinced Germany had lost the war and that a "way out" for Hungary must be found soon.

A Swiss report broadcast by radio Algiers said Hungary had instructed her ambassador to the Vatican to try to open negotiations with the allies to exempt Hungarian cities and towns from air attack.

Flu Attacks 10 Per Cent of Residents at Capital

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Influenza, described as mild in form but of sufficient virulence to incapacitate an estimated 10 per cent of the capital's 900,000 residents, continued today to affect government departments and school attendance. Elementary schools reported that absenteeism had risen to 28.2 per cent, with 14,762 pupils out of 52,312 remaining at home.

CLAIM NAZIS PIT BEST RESERVES AGAINST SLAVS

Partisans Attack on Croatian Coast.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Germans were reported tonight to be reaching into their first line reserve troop pool to strengthen their Jugo-Slav offensive as Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz counter-attacked along the Croatian coast and in Serbia, and digging in to meet Nazi thrusts in Bosnia.

A competent informant said that Nazi reënforcements came from the Bavaria training area and that they represented some of the ablest units in the German army.

Strike at Nazi Railroads.

This was the first information of the quality of the troops the Germans were bringing in to support their Balkan forces.

Tito reported the recapture of the town of Bograd in Croatia, and said that offensive thrusts against Nazi-held railroads in Serbia were costing the enemy "big losses."

The German version of the fighting, as broadcast by the international information bureau, claimed that the Nazis have occupied the town of Vlasenica, 30 miles northeast of Sarajevo, and were mopping up Partisan forces in eastern Bosnia and northern Croatia.

R. A. F. Bombs Crete.

R. A. F. heavy bombers were striking again along the Germans' right flank in the Balkans. The big Crete harbor of Heraklion was heavily hit and in a series of attacks over the eastern Aegean several small enemy vessels were knocked out in the area of Leros and Samos.

The Nazis were reported turning to terror in efforts to break the Jugo-Slav resistance. Dispatches to the Swedish press said the German commander in Belgrade ordered the execution of 200 hostages for every German soldier killed in battle.

TOKIO SINKS 'EM QUICK! CLAIMS A BATTLESHIP LAUNCHED TUESDAY

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Tokio propagandists now are sinking American battleships as fast as they are launched and months before they are ready to put to sea. The Berlin radio, quoting Tokio today claimed the sinking of the 45,000-ton U.S.S. Wisconsin "in one of the biggest sea battles off Bougainville." The super-battleship Wisconsin was launched only three days ago.

The time necessary to fit a battleship for sea after she is launched is a war time secret, but more than a year was required in peace time for smaller warships than the Wisconsin.

Later a Tokio broadcast said the vessel which Japan claimed to have sunk was a sister ship to the Wisconsin which had been launched and sent into action secretly and that the United States had launched the new Wisconsin this week with public ceremonies to cover up loss of the previous vessel. This broadcast said the Japanese had sunk five United States battleships off Bougainville.

END OF WEEK'S LULL IN ALLIED BOMB WAR SEEN

LONDON, Dec. 11 [Saturday]—(AP).—A 45-minute procession of R. A. F. bombers roared across the Straits of Dover in moonlight last night, and a continental radio black-out indicated that the week-long lull in the new aerial campaign to level Germany had ended.

A few Nazi raiders gave London its first alert since Dec. 1.

The Nazi radios, including the main Berlin station, began signing off around 7 p. m.

Yesterday Mosquito bombers had dealt heavy blows to enemy transport facilities in northwest Germany. They peppered troops, railway junctions, trains, barges, tugboats, trucks, and planes. Two Mosquitos were lost. One pilot, following a road at about 30 feet above the ground, bombed a column of German soldiers. Some of the Nazis, he said, were blown 20 feet into the air.

Only a few German raiders reached the London area during last night's short alert. The enemy also struck at scattered parts of southeast England and East Anglia.

ROOSEVELT FLIES TO MALTA; HAILS ISLE'S COURAGE

Gives People a Scroll on 3 Hour Visit.

skies, Malta stood alone and unafraid in the center of the sea, one tiny bright flame in the darkness, a beacon of hope in the clearer days which have come.

"Malta's bright story of human fortitude and courage will be read by posterity with wonder and gratitude thru all the ages.

"What was done on this island maintains all the highest traditions of gallant men and women who from the beginning of time have lived and died to preserve civilization for all mankind.

"Signed: Franklin D. Roosevelt,
"President, Dec. 7, 1943."

The President had dated the scroll Dec. 7, the day before his visit, because it was the second anniversary of America's entry into the war.

In replying, Gort said the people of Malta were "very sensible of the greatness of this occasion" and that it was a day they never would forget.

Gort then obtained the President's consent to reproduce the citation in bronze in the palace square where "it will stand in all weathers as a permanent monument of this great and unique occasion."

Announcement of the President's visit to Malta was the first disclosure of his activities since he and Churchill conferred with President Ismet Inonu of Turkey at Cairo, Dec. 4-6. Previously he and the prime minister had held conferences with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek at Cairo Nov. 22-26 and with Premier Stalin at Teheran, Iran, Nov. 28-Dec. 1.

Sees Desert Battlefields.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—President Roosevelt, journeying homeward from his war and peace conferences in the middle east, flew over the historic battlefields of North Africa from El Alamein to Tunis, the White House disclosed today.

He was impressed, it was said, with the fortitude of the allied fighters who conquered that desolate area.

The chief executive, riding in one of three huge army transport command planes which carried his party, at times flew very low over the bomb gouged sands, where last year's great battles raged, in order to get a closeup view.

Views Wrecked Planes.

The trip described in today's release, from Cairo to Tunis, apparently was that leg of the journey which preceded his Wednesday visit to Malta. However, the statement was not clear on that point.

After the plane reached Tunis and the Cape Bon peninsula it circled at low altitude and the President viewed the wreckage of Nazi aircraft which littered the air field and adjacent countryside.

"Somebody seems to have been doing a rather grand job," he was quoted as saying.

The three transport planes were protected by a covey of fighters as they winged over the North African battleground.

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 10 (AP).—Cifra, official Spanish news agency, reported today from Barcelona that a United States Flying Fortress had crashed on the Catalan coast near the town of Cadaques in Lerida province. The plane's crew of 10 men were killed, the dispatch added.

Developments in the Battle for Italy

Legends tell latest developments reported from Italy.

YANKS BATTLE IN CLOUDS TO WIN ROME ROAD KEY

Seize Hill Bastion; Isolate Mignano.

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Dec. 10 (AP).—American and British troops in eight days of the bitterest fighting of the entire Italian campaign have isolated the German stronghold of Mignano guarding the valleys to Rome, it was announced today, and they now sit astride the main highway and railroad between that mountain fortress and Cassino, 10 miles to the northwest.

The 5th army's drive thru the first barrier of the Nazi's winter line was brought to a smashing climax yesterday when American infantry in savage hand to hand fighting above the clouds captured towering Mount Samucro on the northern side of the strategic valley above Mignano and other allied units stabbed forward into the enemy's secondary defenses before Cassino.

Force Nazi Withdrawal.

These thrusts forced the Germans to withdraw from the immediate vicinity of Mignano, which had been a "No Man's land" for a week as the 5th army smashed yard by yard thru fortifications more formidable than those which stalled the allies for five months in Tunisia.

Latest reports showed that at least one enemy division—the 15th panzer grenadiers—had suffered extremely heavy losses. Large quantities of war materials were left behind by the retreating Nazis.

The battle for 3,000 foot Mount Samucro was a grim struggle, with American troops pressing up under cover of heavy clouds to within a few yards of the enemy before being discovered.

Hold River Bank.

From Mount Samucro's peak the American positions overlooked the strongly fortified villages of San Vittore and San Pietro, only six and seven miles, respectively, from Cassino.

Also captured in the final sweep of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's troops to nullify Mignano was Rocca d'Evandro, a strongly defended village on the northwest slope of Mount Camino. The allies now hold the entire eastern and southern bank of the Garigliano river from Rocca d'Evandro to its mouth, a distance of 14 airline miles.

Accompanying news of the breakthru above Mignano was a disclosure that Canadian forces had opened a major assault against enemy defenses on the Adriatic sector of Gen. Montgomery's 8th army front and were making good progress with armored support.

The allies' strategic airforce was grounded because of bad weather, but the tactical force sent out a half dozen different types of planes to bomb and strafe ships, bridges, highway intersections, troop concentrations, and gun positions. Four allied planes were missing from these operations.

AMG ABOLISHES LAST FASCIST INSTITUTION, CONTROL OVER LABOR

NAPLES, Italy, Dec. 10 (AP).—The most important remaining Fascist institution left in southern Italy, the corporate syndical system thru which the government controlled labor unions, was abolished today by a decree of the allied military government.

Several hundred fascist appointed officers of the labor union and trades association were dismissed and control of unions placed in the hands of provincial and regional officers.

The decree was drawn up by Lt. Col. Thomas A. Lane of Washington, D. C., and Capt. David Morse of New York, who said that in effect it granted Italian labor the right to organize itself. They said that AMG would continue supervision and that strikes or lockouts would not be permitted.

REPORT RECORDS OF MONASTERY SAFE FROM WAR

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (AP).—With allied armies firmly astride Mignano pass, the Swiss telegraph agency reported today in a dispatch from Rome, that the library and archives of the famous monastery of the Benedictine order had been removed from Mount Cassino for the first time in more than 10 centuries.

[German broadcasts said the German Hermann Goering armored division had "recovered" the treasures from Mount Cassino monastery, atop a peak just northwest of Cassino, and "ceremoniously handed them over to papal authorities."]

The dispatch said the archives had been deposited in subterranean chambers of the Chateau Sant'Angelo, which are connected with the Vatican by an underground passage. Sixty thousand volumes and records were removed from the monastery's library, which is the property of the Italian state, it was said. The agency quoted a Vatican source as saying that the monastery had been spared so far.

Light British Ships Raid Nazi Convoy; Hit 1 Ship

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—British light naval forces, making a sweep off the coast of Holland near Ijmuiden early today, probably sank one of four merchant ships in an enemy convoy escorted by German motor torpedo boats and gunboats, the admiralty announced. Torpedo hits were scored from close range and when last seen the vessel was down by the stern and survivors were picked up by the escort vessel.

TELLS A SECRET OF HIGH OUTPUT; IT'S GOOD SPIRIT

In his work in the time study department at Crane company's big southwest side war plant Leonard C. Mueller, 27 years old, of 1426 South Clarence avenue, Berwyn, gets into every nook and corner.

Leonard C. Mueller.

He moves from machine to machine, from this division to that, noting and observing. He thus has become thoroly familiar with the attitude of both the management and the workers.

This naturally led, he said, to his having some ideas on how to increase war production. He has set some of those ideas on paper and thereby won one of THE TRIBUNE'S 10 $50 prizes for the best letters on that subject.

Follows Studebaker Charges.

THE TRIBUNE offered to pay $500 for the best letter and $50 for the next 10 best letters on increasing production in the Chicago area war plants, during its recent publication of charges by loyal American workers in the Studebaker plant. These workers asserted the Studebaker local of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] was in the hands of a Communist group of officers who dominated the plant and dictated low production.

The $500 letter is to be presented in the next few days.

Mueller, writer of today's prize letter, is the father of two children, Robert, 5, and Marcia, 7 weeks old. He has been with Crane company for eight years, first as a machinist. His present work in the time study department, he said, goes to costs and estimates; but what he likes about it is the way it gets him into all other departments and gives him a chance to watch both conditions and people.

The Secret of Production.

"In my observation of both management's representatives and workers," he said, "I can't get away from the idea that the spirit of the individual means much in the matter of production. If the proper spirit is there, the will is there and that's what you've got to have."

Mueller remarked there is only one union operating in the Crane company plant—an AFL union in the shipping department. He believes this is probably due, he said, to the fact that about two-thirds of the present war producers were peace time producers.

"In other words," he went on, "there probably still are two of the original workers for each new war worker who has come in since war orders for the army and navy made expansion and increased personnel necessary."

Content with Pre-war Condition.

Mueller said he believes that since the majority of the workers didn't find union affiliation necessary before the war, they do not find it desirable now. He said sentiment is neither anti-union nor pro-union.

"My feeling is that what I have observed about the employes and their feelings at Crane company is true of men and women working anywhere," he continued. "The more your management is able thru all its representatives — personnel department, department managers, foremen, and so on—to make the individual feel his individuality, his worth as an individual, the better for output, the better for management and workers alike."

THEATER ROBBER HUNTED.

Police yesterday sought a robber, who, late Thursday night, took $69 from Mrs. Helen Cheske in her cashier's cage of the Central Park theater, 3535 Roosevelt road.

Winning War Work Letter No. 7

HOW TO INCREASE WAR PRODUCTION IN CHICAGO.

In this production age management has lost contact with the worker. The man who years ago used to be called Joe, Bill, or Pete, is now referred to by a clock number. Management and its supervision can be blamed for this. The worker has lost his individuality and with it his interest and pride, therefore curtailing production; the machine and the man power are available, the rest is up to the management.

The second phase of improvement meshes with the first. That is the treatment of workers as human beings and not as part of a machine. Many foremen and superintendents do not have the capacity to hold their jobs. But they have been with the company a number of years and this is their reward, whether they are worthy of the position or not.

In conclusion, what we need in Chicago, we need all over the United States—the understanding and guiding hand instead of the hand with a whip in it. With material things you only get out what you put in, with human beings you always get out more than you put in.

ITALIAN TROOPS JOIN 5TH ARMY; FAIL IN 1ST TEST

Nazis Blast Men and Hopes from Hill.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Dec. 8 [Delayed].—Italian soldiers now in the allied line fighting against the Germans attacked at dawn this morning and found the Nazis waiting for them.

A few hours later these men who had replaced an American unit came reeling back to their original positions, but many dead remained behind and their hospital back of the lines is full tonight of Italian wounded. They failed, but at least none can say they did not try.

A lot of hopes were blasted and there is little tendency in the Italian camp to look at it philosophically. They wanted so much to succeed today.

It was to be a straightforward attack on an important position. Their own and the allied artillery were to blast German positions on top of a hill. The infantry was to storm up it while another unit was to make a flanking movement to the left of the hill which stands out alone, dominated by mountains on both sides.

Heavy Fog Favors Foe.

Perhaps the Germans knew the Italians were going to attack. They had had 36 hours to find out that the Italians were there. Only that expectation can explain the swiftness and force of their counter-attack. Moreover, the hill was not steep, which means that the Germans could build pill boxes, and they built them six feet thick, so thick that artillery shells, as one American officer said, "just bounced off."

The weather also favored the enemy, for a thick mist lay over the battle field all morning. That meant blind shooting by the allied and Italian artillery. Air support was out of the question.

The attack began well. The infantry drove up the hill with spirit, were checked temporarily by machine gun crossfire, and then drove on almost to the top. The flanking movement made some progress.

Unit Nearly Wiped Out.

Three hours later the Germans reacted with what appeared to be a stunning force. The Italians near the top of the hill were pinned down by a hail of mortar and cannon fire and then a crisscross of machine guns and their losses began to be staggering. Meanwhile, their left was hit with what the Italians say was a much superior force. Fire was coming in from both flanks and it was the left which gave way first. That means that the force on the hill had its left flank exposed and soon it, too, wavered and broke, and so the position was abandoned and the Italians were back to where they started with one of their units all but wiped out.

The Italians moved into the line two nights ago. They were a well dressed, relatively well equipped, even smart, mixture of infantry and artillery. Many of the men had escaped from northern Italy and all of them were genuinely glad to be fighting now beside the Americans.

REPORT PETAIN AND NAZI ENVOY AT ODDS AGAIN

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (AP).—A French informant said today that new negotiations between Otto Abetz, German ambassador to Vichy, and Marshal Petain had broken down.

The informant, citing reports from the French frontier, said Abetz asked Petain in an audience last week to discuss a formal French-German peace under which France would undertake to assist in defense of the country against allied invasion.

Petain was said to have replied that he could negotiate only if a legal national assembly were re-established—a development that has been prevented by a German ban recently on his decree providing for a new constitution.

HE WAS WASHED OUT, BUT SETS A FLYING RECORD!

Illinoisan Coming Home After 140 Missions.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH ALLIED AIR FORCES IN ITALY, Dec. 8 [Delayed]. — Once washed out of a United States army flying school, Capt. Carl Woodrich of Kankakee, Ill., a Spitfire pilot, was packing his bags today, ready to return home with 140 combat missions under his belt covering 245 hours, a flight record that few equal in this or any other theater of war.

Scheduled to leave with him is Capt. Charles Ramsey of San Francisco, Cal., another Spitfire pilot, who has 126 combat missions to his credit. The story of these two men is a saga of determination to get into this fight despite army regulations, torpedoes, and other bad breaks.

Woodrich, who is a slightly built, blond, quiet talking chap, was an enlisted man in the army air forces for a time after a year at St. Viator college. He was assigned to ground work, but had ambitions to fly after watching and working with airmen. So he applied for and was accepted for cadet training.

Wouldn't Stay Washed Out.

Then came a heart breaking blow. He was washed out, apparently dooming his hopes. But a few months later he crossed the border into Canada and became a member of the royal Canadian air force. In April, 1942, he crossed to England, whence he flew British escorting bombers and engaged fighter sweeps. In October, 1942, he transferred to the United States flying forces, where he was cordially received without reference to his previous experiences.

Then came Africa, Pantelleria, Sicily, and Italy. The youthful captain flew thru all those campaigns, including Kasserine pass, where the Spits flew on missions from one field and landed further back to keep a flying cover over the retreat of ground forces until the German tide was turned.

"Ever have any close calls?" he was asked.

"I didn't have any, I guess," he said with a shake of his head.

Just Lucky, He Believes.

"How about that time you had your plane shot to pieces under you?" exclaimed a comrade.

"O, that wasn't much," Woodrich answered. "I was lucky, that was all. We were out escorting medium bombers and I was flying Hind End Charley in a flight of four Spits. Coming to our field, the major turned around to count the flight and saw there were five planes where there should have been only four. A Messerschmitt 109 was tailing me. Just about the time the break was called things began to crack around my plane.

"Cannon shells hit my armor and knocked out my radio. One came right between my legs when I turned off. The German got away from our flight and I found my landing gear was smashed. I had to crash land. But it was easy because there was a big field with plenty of space."

Ex-Chicagoan Also Shines.

These two pilots, with Capt. Walter J. Overand, formerly of Chicago, whose family owns a farm near Saugatuck, Mich., are the only remaining members in this theater of the original Spitfire fighter group that landed in Africa shortly after the invasion.

Overand, who is 34 years old, and short and stocky, with a moustache that makes him look a bit older, has 150 missions and has been credited with downing three German planes, two of which were over Pantelleria when the Spitfires punched 28 Focke-Wulfs out of the sky in two days of fighting.

Overand's brother, Edmund, flew with the American volunteer group in China before Pearl Harbor.

REDS SEIZE RAIL HUB AND PUSH ON IN DNIEPER BEND

LONDON, Dec. 11 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russia's 2d Ukrainian army has captured Znamenka in the Dnieper bend, knocking an important prop from the Germans' easternmost salient to speed west and south toward other key points. However, Moscow admitted today a deep German penetration into the Kiev bulge, rolling the Russians back to a point 30 miles east of Korosten.

Znamenka, a central rail junction for German reënforcement and supply for the area, was taken from the Germans after a three day struggle in which the Nazis dug their tanks into the ground and defended every street to the death.

Stalin Hails Feat.

Its capture was hailed by a special order of the day from Premier Stalin.

The Moscow midnight bulletin, recorded by the soviet monitor, gave additional details of the fighting. It told of advances beyond the city that resulted in the capture of another rail junction a few miles northwest of Znamenka. Another column took a town, 50 miles north of Krivoi Rog, iron mine center.

About 1,500 Germans were killed, 23 tanks destroyed and many prisoners, artillery weapons and stores captured in this fighting in the last 24 hours, the bulletin said.

The advance, flowing along the railroad lines in the area, appeared to threaten the entire German position in the Dnieper bend where railways provided the only dependable routes for supply.

Nazis Use 2,000 Tanks.

Another spectacular battle was raging 200 miles to the northwest in the area west of Kiev where an ambitious Russian thrust to the west had been whittled down by nearly two months of steady German counter-attacks by almost 2,000 tanks.

The German armored forces have already reached an area south of Malin, 60 miles west of Kiev and 30 miles east of Korosten.

The bulletin said German plunges were successfully contained in this area altho a typical German thrust in one sector included 200 tanks and infantry. In this battlefield, which was also located as "northeast of Chernyakov," the Russians destroyed 92 tanks.

Nazis Outflank Town.

Malin is just south of the Korosten-Kiev railway. The Russians apparently still had forces near Chernyakhou, some 80 miles west of Kiev, but with this town admittedly outflanked supply and reënforcement would be difficult.

The Germans told of a big new soviet offensive in the Pripet-Berezina sector west of Gomel in White Russia, but the Russians were silent on this region.

REVEAL ADMIRAL AS A VICTIM OF FLY 'REPRISALS'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 [Special]. — Rear Adm. Stanford C. Hooper, United States navy, retired, was revealed today by Rep. Clinton Anderson [D., N. M.] as one of the two officers on whom, according to testimony before the special house committee investigating the federal communications commission, "reprisals" were visited by James Lawrence Fly, FCC chairman, because of their opposition to his policies as chairman of the board of war communications.

Adm. Hooper, for more than 30 years the navy's ranking communications expert, was retired last January at the age of 58, having previously been detached for more than six months from his post as director of the navy's radio liaison division to serve as inspector of radio equipment in the Western Electric company's Chicago plant.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox, in answer to queries, today said Adm. Hooper was retired for physical reasons, but when asked if his retirement had been requested by Fly, he declined to answer.

The other naval officer, whose identity the committee is withholding, still is on duty in a post of high responsibility in Washington.

Gov. Green to Play Role of Santa for 4,000 Kids

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 10 (AP).—Gov. Dwight H. Green has decided to play Santa Claus to Springfield kids again on Christmas eve. ACCUSED IN ROBBERY.

Gust Dardavis, 23 years old, 4845 Magnolia avenue, who was seized early yesterday by Sgt. James Callaghan and a squad of detectives, was identified later by Mrs. Rhea Matlow, owner of a delicatessen at 2120 Division street, as one of three men who robbed her of $15 Wednesday.

ASSAILS BRITISH LEFT WING FOR MOSLEY ACTION

Tory Says Laborites Turn to Fascism.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—An attack on left wing elements of British politics was made today by Comdr. R. T. Bower, a Conservative member of parliament since 1941, who branded all Labor party members voting against the release of Oswald Mosley, pre-war Fascist leader, as acting "in the purest tradition of Himmler" [Gestapo chief.]

His thesis, in a speech delivered before the annual meeting of the Cleveland Unionist association [a local Conservative party machine] at Redcar in Yorkshire, was to the effect that fascism is a by-product of leftist thinking.

Sees Blow at Democracy.

"Fascism is a political disease of the left—a manifestation of frustrated socialism," Bower contended. "Fascists and, indeed, Communists, who differ little from them in practice, are merely socialists who are too impatient to introduce socialism by means of the orderly ebb and flow of democratic politics.

"The three great totalitarian dictators—Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin—all came from the extreme left and what after all was Mosley but an ambitious young socialist minister for whom democracy was too slow?"

Raps Detention Without Trial.

Bower said that the vote on Mosley in the house of commons showed that the Fascist virus has attacked "certain elements of the left in this country." A substantial part of the Labor party voted, he asserted, in favor of the "thoroly un-British and anti-democratic principle of using emergency powers to imprison without trial their political opponents."

"These British Nazis now urge that in reconstructing Europe we should only have dealings with the left wing elements in enemy or enemy occupied countries," Bower continued. "They clamor against our making use of such men as Darlan or Badoglio to help us win the war. . . . Today the pure unadulterated British tradition of tolerant democracy survives only in the Tory party."

DIES WAITING FOR BUS.

CHICAGO GUNNER SAVED AS FORT DIVES INTO SEA

AN 8TH A. A. F. BOMBER COMMAND STATION IN ENGLAND.—The Flying Fortress My Darling crashed into the North sea 20 miles off the English coast while returning on two engines from a recent mass daylight bombing attack on Bremen. The crew was pulled from the icy water less than half an hour later by a British minesweeper.

One member of the crew, on his first mission over Nazi Europe, was Sgt. Walter J. Davis, 20 years old, right waist gunner, son of Mrs. H. Davis, 5340 South Campbell avenue, Chicago.

Escorts Forced to Leave.

Just before dropping their bombs on Bremen, one engine on the left side was knocked out. A few minutes after leaving the target an engine on the right side stopped and one of the fuel tanks began leaking. Thus crippled, My Darling began loosing altitude and speed.

Scores of Fortresses and Liberators passed her by. Finally the Thunderbolts, which had been protecting her from attacking German fighters, were forced to leave for home. My Darling was the last ship to leave Europe that day. The ball turret gunner is credited with destroying one German plane in the running fight out of Germany.

Forced Into the Sea.

The bomber was forced to "ditch" when it ran out of gas. At the time the plane hit the water its crew saw no ship in sight, but a minesweeper of the British navy had spotted the crippled Fortress and was speeding to the rescue.

Sgt. Davis was an I. B. M. operator for the Central National bank in Chicago before joining the air force. He was graduated from Tilden Technical High school in 1942.

BELIEVE MORTAR MAY BE ALLIES' NO. 1 JUNGLE GUN

Troops in India Learning Its Secrets.

[This is the third of a series of dispatches from a Tribune correspondent on the India-Burma front, describing the intensive training and difficulties faced by American and allied troops in their war against Japan.]

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE INDIAN FRONT, Nov. 30 [Delayed].—The creation and maintaining of a heavy volume of fire presents special problems in jungle warfare such as will confront allied armies in their forthcoming offensive against Japan from this area.

It is certain that heavy artillery—even pieces as light as 75 millimeter guns—cannot be employed in most places on the jungle front. So great reliance must be placed in light pieces of anti-tank caliber, and all kinds of heavier hand weapons—machine guns, Bren guns, and tommy guns.

Mortar May Hold Answer.

But these never will be sufficient, no matter what fire superiority we have over the enemy, to get him out of the kind of bunkers he has learned to build. What then?

The answer probably will be found in mortars of small caliber, dismountable and portable, which fire an unusually large shell. Troops must have special training to use these pieces in the jungle. The first essential is to be certain there is clearance for the shell. That may sound easy, but in some of these dense tangles it's difficult to find open spaces for mortar emplacements or to be sure shells will fall away into the clear. These shells are so nicely adjusted that any obstacle will set them off, such as a stalk of bamboo waving in the wind. Then all the splinters will be down on top the luckless gun crew.

Can't See Target.

But the really baffling problem is to determine whether the mortar is on target or not. Most of the time airplane observation will be of little use. Planes won't be able to see the target and reliance will have to be put on ground observation posts pushed forward to the utmost possible limit. Even so these observers are not likely to be able to see much or judge what they are seeing.

Troops for this hazardous job, therefore, are selected and trained for their capacity in judging distances and the direction of exploding shells by sound. You might suppose that among all the triumphs of destructive ingenuity, some instrument had already been found for doing this task with mathematical accuracy, but a major general in this area told me no such device exists.

Difficulties confronting troops using mortars and the limited usefulness of the airplane make patrolling exceptionally imporant.

No Tents for Patrols.

It is primary consideration in this great training area for the future conquerors of southeast Asia to teach the men patrol technique—how to orient themselves, how to keep from getting lost, how to take care of themselves in emergencies arising in the jungle, and above all how to observe and bring back results and information in usable form.

At one unit, which was starting this course of training, I got an idea how they go about it. The men were not allowed tents. They had to build their own habitations of bamboo poles and elephant grass thatch. It looked easy, but I was told it wasn't simple at all for men without experience to learn how to handle bamboo and make thatches.

But now the job is done and all know how to make shelters for themselves in the jungle. These huts also afford complete cover. From a few yards distance on the roads they are either invisible or look like any other jungle natives' hamlet. It would be entirely possible for a person to drive thru this training area and notice only a few soldiers.

[In the next article in this series, Mr. Small will relate his experiences on a jungle patrol.]

NAZIS CLAIM U. S. BOMBS-KILL 300 BRITONS IN ITALY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The German radio said yesterday 300 British prisoners of war lost their lives Wednesday when two formations of American Mitchell bombers attacked "a city in central Italy"—apparently Aquila, 55 miles northeast of Rome. The German account, unverified from any other source, said the first wave dropped bombs on a transport train ready to leave the station and several cars were hit and caught fire. The second wave added to the havoc, the broadcast said, trapping many British in the burning cars.

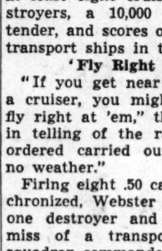
HINSDALE FLYER TELLS OF BLOWS AT JAP SHIPPING

Home, He Sees Baby Boy First Time.

Capt. William H. Webster Jr., 219 South Lincoln street, Hinsdale, who was shot down in flames at Salamaua, New Guinea, in July, told yesterday how he escaped with minor injuries and participated in the blasting of Japanese air fields and shipping at the enemy bases at Wewak, New Guinea, and at Rabaul, New Britain. He spoke of these aerial achievements in his home, where he is enjoying a leave with his wife and their 7 month old son, whom he has just seen for the first time.



Capt. W. H. Webster Jr.

"We came down in flames at Salamaua on July 9," he said. "One engine was afire, and in a crash landing, I was bounced thru the canopy. One of our gunners had been killed, but I came out with only cuts and gashes on my face. Bill Boni, Associated Press correspondent, was wounded by shrapnel in a landing barge. We occupied adjoining beds in the evacuation hospital afterward, and when he started to tell me about all that had happened, I just said, 'Say, I was there!'"

Leads Group in Attack.

The captain, second in command of his squadron of the 5th air force, led his group in the attack on Wewak on Aug. 17. He said 108 Jap planes at one airdrome, 70 at another, and more at another were blasted with parachute bombs. Between 110 and 125 enemy planes on the ground were destroyed, he said, and a number of others were damaged.

Webster recalled that the high spot in this experience came on Nov. 2, his third raid on Rabaul, when Japanese shipping in the harbor was the objective. There were at least eight cruisers, several destroyers, a 10,000 ton submarine tender, and scores of merchant and transport ships in the harbor.

'Fly Right at 'em.'

"If you get near a destroyer or a cruiser, you might just as well fly right at 'em," the captain said in telling of the raid, which was ordered carried out—"weather or no weather."

Firing eight .50 caliber guns, synchronized, Webster hit the rear of one destroyer and scored a near miss of a transport. When the squadron commander was lost, Webster took over direction. He estimated 200 planes were engaged on each side. The enemy lost 70 or 80 planes and the U. S. air force 11 planes altho 20 others were badly shot up, Webster said.

Heroism Honored

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Staff Sgt. Bernard E. Kaufman of 5421 Maryland avenue, Chicago, has received the soldier's medal, and 12 other Illinois soldiers have received the air medal for heroism and outstanding achievement with the United States army 14th air force in China, Burma, and India, the war department announced today.

The air medal went to Capt. Maynard P. Johnson, 2320 Parmelee street, Rockford; 1st Lt. Maurice C. Lair, 1404 Fowler avenue, Evanston; 2d Lt. Errold H. Gurr, East St. Louis; 2d Lt. Louis A. Roseling, Grand Ridge; 2d Lt. Stanley F. Tomkovick, 1225 Grand avenue, Waukegan; 2d Lt. Leonard C. Willer, 4159 Byron street, Chicago; Flight Officer Leroy D. Goode, Morris; Tech. Sgt. Edward J. Depaepe, 4929 North Austin avenue, Chicago; Tech. Sgt. Robert M. Kirk, Alpha; Tech. Sgt. Jordan C. Leroy, Marion; Tech. Sgt. William G. Thompson, Monmouth, and Staff Sgt. Robert E. Cook, 2437 W. 65th street, Chicago.

Kaufman's citation said: "On June 6, 1943, he displayed heroism when an airfield in China was attacked by Japanese bombers and fighters. With complete disregard of his life, he undertook the salvaging of four airplanes by assisting in getting other burning planes out of the area. He then drove an abandoned gasoline truck to a place of safety and proceeded to extinguish the fire. Later he put out a fire in a fuselage tank after helping to push the plane from the danger area."

WHEREVER F. D. R. IS, LEGALLY HE'S IN WASHINGTON!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The White House and the District of Columbia follow the President on a legal magic carpet everywhere he goes, a White House spokesman told an interviewer tonight.

Asked about documents signed by President Roosevelt during his overseas war conferences, the spokesman said the signature is valid wherever he affixes it and the site of the ceremony is always shown as the White House.

"The White House is considered the place where the President is at any given time," he asserted. "It's traditional and legal. The place doesn't necessarily have to be 1600 Pennsylvania avenue."

"How about the proclamation designating New Year's day as a national day of prayer?" the reporter inquired. "That document shows it was 'done at the city of Washington this 3d day of December.' Was the President in Washington on Dec. 3?"

"Of course he wasn't," the White House official said, chidingly. "Washington is wherever the President is."

DRAFT OFFICIALS HERE AWAITING OFFICIAL ORDERS

President Roosevelt's signature on the bill deferring pre-Pearl Harbor fathers from induction until all other available men have been drafted will have no immediate effect on such fathers in Illinois, selective service officials said yesterday.

One reason, they said, is that local boards cannot begin to grant such deferments until they are authorized to do so by the state selective service, which in turn must receive instructions from Washington. Another reason, the draft officials said, is that Illinois has already exhausted virtually its entire supply of single men and childless husbands, which leaves pre-Pearl Harbor fathers the only ones left to call.

Official Orders Awaited.

"Selective service in Illinois cannot comment on the signature of the draft bill by President Roosevelt," said Capt. Norman D. Smith, selective service public relations officer for Cook county. "Until official orders are received from Gen. Hershey [director of the selective service administration] in Washington, Cook county boards will continue to draft fathers as they have in past weeks."

It was pointed out that the bill contains an escape clause providing that nothing in the bill "shall interfere with the orderly induction of men into the armed services."

Fathers Must Report.

That means fathers who already have received induction notices must report on the specified date, regardless of the deferment granted them by law.

Some respite may be afforded fathers not yet inducted by the decision of selective service to examine some 20,000 men previously rejected because of inguinal hernia, two-thirds of whom are expected to be found acceptable under lower physical requirements. Such a respite, however, would be only a week or 10 days, officials estimated.

Dispatches from Washington last night quoted selective service officials as saying that the new law will result in liberalization of occupational deferments for draft age fathers whose children were born before Sept. 15, 1942, and tightening of the screws on all other deferments.

New Rules Being Drawn.

New regulations affecting the reclassification of fathers from 3-A [deferred for dependency] into 1-A [available for induction] or into any of several deferred categories are being prepared and will be sent to draft boards in a few days, officials said.

Gen. Hershey was reported to have telegraphed draft boards to postpone induction of men placed at the top of the draft list because their occupations had been listed as nondeferrable. This nondeferrable list has been revoked, and registrants in such occupations will be called according to their order numbers.

Favored for Stability.

In his telegram Gen. Hershey also said:

"Fathers who are eligible for occupational deferment under the provisions of local board memorandum No. 115 and who are making contributions in war production or in support of the war effort are usually stable employes and, if other factors are equal, will normally be accorded deferment in preference to nonfathers."

A father, within the meaning of the draft law, is any man who was married before Dec. 8, 1941, and who has children born before Sept. 15, 1942. All others are nonfathers.

ANTI-U. S. SPY RING DISCLOSED IN BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 10 (AP).—Existence of a spy ring pitted against the United States was revealed today by Federal Judge Horacio Fox in sentencing a 23 year old Spanish medical student to two years in prison for espionage and attempted bribery.

The convicted spy, Rosendo Almozaea Lombrera, was arrested on his arrival at Buenos Aires on a Spanish steamship last May 11 when customs officials considered his actions suspicious.

He was carrying envelopes containing 16,200 Argentine pesos [$4,082] and 5,600 United States dollars, as well as photographs and coded documents. These subsequently were decoded, disclosing his participation in an espionage plot against the United States.

2. Draft appeal boards at the place of employment are given authority to pass on occupational deferments for so-called essential workers. Their deferment now is fixed by appeal boards where the worker registered for the draft, frequently hundreds of miles away from the place where he works.

3. Registrants who want to know their draft outlook can arrange thru local boards to have their army physical examination in advance of an induction notice. The results of that examination, however, will not be binding when a regular draft notice is issued.

Despite these changes it was said at selective service headquarters that the signing of the bill will not change the operation of the draft machinery appreciably, as it merely enacts into law a procedure—keeping fathers until the last on draft calls—which the administration insists it has been following for months.

No Change in Quotas.

There will be no change in state quotas, it was said. The drafting of fathers will depend on army and navy man power needs, officials said, emphasizing fathers will not be called until other available registrants are exhausted.

How far the draft of fathers will be deferred remains to be seen, it was said.

Gen. Hershey on Wednesday reportedly told a closed meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers that about one million pre-war fathers will have to be drafted by June 30, 1944.

Selective service officials said they will strive to prevent induction of any one father until all fit and available single and married men are put into uniform. However, drafting of fathers, which began as congress began debating the Wheeler bill, has been under way for weeks.

Some members of congress expect that the bill will postpone heavy draft of fathers for two to three months.

The original bill to delay the draft of fathers was introduced by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.]. It would have forbidden the drafting of any father until Jan. 1, 1944.

Mrs. Florence Szur, 28 years old, of 4549 North Albany avenue, seeking to have her divorce decree from Rudolph, a seaman stationed in New York, reinstated, yesterday had the support of Szur's first wife, Dorothy, of 5404 Windsor avenue.

Mrs. Szur obtained a divorce in June but it was vacated Nov. 3 because Szur asserted that under provisions of the soldiers and sailors act the trial should have been delayed until after the war. Irving Eisenman, representing Mrs. Szur, told Judge John J. Lupe in Superior court that Szur was represented by an attorney when the divorce was granted and asserted that he later protested the divorce only because $15 a week was being taken from his pay for support of his children, Scott, 2, and Sharon, 3. Then he called Szur's first wife who testified that in 12 years Szur contributed only $5 to the support of his daughter, Peggy, 12.

Judge Lupe continued the hearing to Jan. 24, and said he would study the soldiers and sailors act to determine whether the divorce should be allowed.

G. O. P. CHAIRMEN PLAN DRIVE WITH HEADS OF TICKET

Primary Campaign Will Begin in January.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 10.—Plans for a complete primary campaign, to begin at a date set much earlier than usual, were discussed today at a luncheon in the governor's mansion. Nearly all the slated Republican candidates for state offices and 33 Republican county chairmen from central Illinois attended.

Gov. Dwight H. Green, Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett, and State Auditor Arthur F. Lueder, who are seeking reëlection; Richard J. Lyons, candidate for the United States senate, and Arnold P. Benson, chairman pro tem of the state senate and organization choice for secretary of state, were among those at the meeting.

Others Present.

Others present were Ben L. Berve, chairman of the Republican state central committee; John T. Dempsey, Cook county central committee chairman, and Alfred F. Schupp, head of the party's County Chairmen's association. Werner Schroeder, national committeeman, and Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, who has been indorsed for reëlection, sent regrets that they could not attend because of illness.

The governor, who acted as host, lauded the get-together with the county chairmen as a step in keeping with America's traditional recognition of the importance of taking political questions to the individual voter.

"All of our candidates are delighted to sit down with the county chairmen," the governor said. "They are entitled to consideration. I hope what they hear today will help them in their important work of serving the people they represent."

Calls It "Refreshing."

Lyons, whose recent speeches advocating less government interference with business have been widely quoted, said it was "refreshing and commendable for the G. O. P. to take its problems directly to the voters thru the chairman."

Barrett said the meeting with the northern Illinois county leaders earlier in the week in Chicago and the one today, demonstrated "complete party unity under the leadership of Gov. Green."

"I am gratified particularly at the wide and impressive response of Republicans to the candidacies of Dick Lyons and Arnold Benson," he added.

Lueder said the people of Illinois were ready to turn away from New Dealism and that such gatherings would serve to hasten such a result.

No Action on Other Posts.

Rumors that candidates for congressman at large, state treasurer, and clerk of the Supreme court would be added to the official ticket today or tomorrow were scotched by Gov. Green. He said no such action was contemplated now.

The county chairmen from southern Illinois will have luncheon with the governor and the candidates tomorrow.

The plan of the conferees is to start the campaign soon after Jan. 1 and continue it until primary day—April 11—thus making sure that the issues—foreign, national, and state—are placed before the people.

State Treasurer William G. Stratton, who is ineligible to succeed himself, has announced as a candidate against Benson for secretary of state. He said today he has started getting signatures for his nominating petition and will fight to the finish.

They are: Harvey Winter, 20 years old, son of Harvey Charles Winter of 6014 Bishop street; John Witkowski, 20, son of Mrs. Frances Witkowski, 4724 South Winchester avenue; Everett Korhorn, 23, son of Albert Korhorn, 6749 Sangamon street, and John Wontor, 23, of 13152 Buffalo avenue, the son of Mrs. Anna Wontor of Wausaukee, Wis.

All hold the rating of seaman, first class. Wontor enlisted in the navy in June, 1942, Korhorn went in the following September, and Witkowski and Winter both enlisted in Chicago in October, 1942.

Federal Payrollers

U.S. BUREAUS CUT 134,069 WORKERS FROM PAY ROLLS

Staffs of Navy and Postoffice Rise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Federal agencies pruned a net total of 134,069 workers from their pay rolls during August and reduced their total civilian employment to 2,837,647, the lowest since last December, the United States civil service commission announced today.

The retrenchment was the heaviest since the start of the New Deal in 1933 and followed congressional demands for economy. The largest reduction during August was effected by the war department, which cut its civilian staff to 1,243,236, a decline of 112,193 for the month.

The navy department, however, reported an increase of 1,147 in its civilian staff, bringing it to 616,634, and the postoffice department added 3,824, bringing its staff to 319,565.

Vets' Bureau Cuts Off 8,255.

The staff of the veterans' administration was reduced 8,255, to a total of 45,165 on Aug. 31; agriculture, 7,960 to 90,901; office of price administration, 1,341 to 54,861; war man power commission, 1,094 to 49,623; labor, 2,872 to 6,191, and interior, 2,268 to 36,166. There were both declines and increases among the numerous other executive agencies.

The civil service commission, for the second month, failed to report the amount paid to government employes. A spokesman said the commission had obtained only fragmentary statistics from various agencies on their monthly pay rolls in July and August.

Report Is Discontinued.

He said the pay roll report, therefore, has been discontinued.

Civilian employment by these agencies this year follows: January, 2,864,021; February, 2,944,922; March, 2,978,824; April, 3,005,812; May, 3,030,659; June, 3,002,453; July, 2,971,716, and August, 2,837,647. Officials said further reductions are expected to be reported for the remainder of the year.

FEDERAL JUDGES OF 3 STATE AREA DISCUSS RULES

United States District and Circuit court judges of the 7th judicial circuit, including Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, held their annual conference on court rules and procedure yesterday in the Circuit Court of Appeals building at 1212 Lake Shore drive.

Senior Circuit Judge Evan A. Evans presided. District Judge Luther M. Swygert of Hammond served as secretary. Attorney Henry P. Chandler of Chicago, director of administration of United States courts, was the principal speaker at the conference.

Most of the day was spent in discussing changes in rules and procedure with Attorney James J. Robinson of the Indiana university law school, a member of the committee appointed by the United States Supreme court to draw up a new code of rules for practice in federal courts. Habeas corpus petitions filed by prisoners in penal institutions and the necessity of appointing a public defender for federal courts also were discussed by the judges.

FARMER TAKES A $900 SLAP AT FEDERAL WASTE

An Iowa farmer, in a single handed effort to impress the New Deal with its wastefulness, has returned AAA parity payments of $900.27 to the secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau.

The farmer is Lester A. Crandall, father of 11 children, who operates a 300 acre farm near Dallas, Ia. Last year he sent Morgenthau two checks totaling $800, representing most of the money he received from the agricultural adjustment agency during six years of coöperation in the farm program. This week he sent an additional check for $100.27, the amount he received from the AAA for complying in the 1942 program.

Wants It Used for War.

With his check went this note to the secretary of the treasury:

"Inclosed find bank draft for $100.27, which represents the full parity payment received by me for coöperation in the 1942 farm program.

"With our government borrowing from the future at an unprecedented rate, and public debt proven to be the greatest enemy of a free people, I don't feel that I can use this kind of money at the present time.

"May I ask that this money be used directly in our war effort and not be used to corrupt the electorate."

Confirms Other Payments.

The cashier of the Iowa State Savings bank, Knoxville, Ia., confirmed that Crandall a year ago bought cashier's checks of $262.62 and $537.38, both addressed to the secretary of the treasury.

Crandall has farmed in the Dallas area for 30 years. He is a stockman and now feeds 185 Hereford steers and 162 Hampshire hogs, in addition to sheep and poultry. His 11 children range from 4 to 25 years of age and one son, Clinton, is an army corporal. Two other sons of high school age, Alvin and Azel, are his main farm helpers. Two of his daughters are school teachers.

Resents Federal Waste.

Crandall said that the sending of the checks to Morgenthau is his method of expressing disapproval of a wasteful administration whose policies can lead only to ruinous taxation.

"I am seriously worried about the future," he said, "because I want my children to have the same chance I have had to earn a good living in farming or other lines of work. Taxes are going higher every year and unless something is done to let the government know that the common people don't approve of squandering my children and grandchildren will be severely handicapped by exhorbitantly high taxes."

TEHERAN, Iran, Dec. 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—The British colonel was amazed when told an American private without a pass had entered the British legation looking for a place to wash his hands before attending Prime Minister Churchill's brithday dinner on Nov. 30. The private was brought before the colonel. He produced an identity card bearing the name Hopkins. Pvt. Robert Hopkins said he had been invited by his father, Harry Hopkins. He was given the place to wash his hands.

FORECASTS AIR BLOWS ON JAPAN NEXT SUMMER

Calls Raids on Nazis Pre-Invasion Drive.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—An air offensive against Japan next summer was forecast today by an army colonel, who also disclosed that the aerial operations against Germany now are actual pre-invasion blows.

Writing in the Military Review, official publication of the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., Col. Ray W. Clifton referred to the classic "four phases" of strategic bombing, and said that "the bombing of German-occupied Europe can be considered in the third phase now."

"In the fourth phase," he added, "the air will paralyze the production and movement of enemy war supplies, and support the ground forces making a landing."

In the Pacific, said Clifton, the increasing pace of the air war has cut into Japanese air strength, and hampered the movement of enemy supplies and reënforcements. Nine-tenths of the Japanese military facilities in Burma are reported damaged by allied air attacks. Shipping at Rangoon has been so disrupted that supplies entering that port "are far below the level required to maintain the Japanese properly in Burma."

"The Japanese apparently are quite concerned over their airplane losses," Clifton wrote, "as it has been announced in Japan that production of machine tools for aircraft production has been given top priority.

"Also, possibly Japan is concerned about the air offensive which we will conduct against them next summer."

[The Berlin radio said that American flyers in China had received orders to bomb the Japanese mainland and communications between Japan and the mainland of China. This was attributed to a spokesman at Japanese headquarters in China.]

Sure Thing

Mary had heard about one of my trick bets. "You're just lucky," she said.

"Well," I admitted, grinning, "luck may have had something to do with it. But if I were to make a bet with you on something that couldn't depend on luck—"

"Like what?" she asked.

"Well," I said, "I'll bet you a box of Andes Candies that I can tell you the date on a dollar bill you reach into your purse and pull out at random."

"What?" she was incredulous. "You mean that I can take out any dollar bill and you'll give me the date on it?"

"Right," I nodded. "And to make it a little tougher, I'll also give you the date on any five-dollar bill you remove from your pocket."

"You can't do it." Mary shook her head.

"A box of Andes Candies—" I urged.

"It's a bet," she agreed.

"First," I explained, "take out a dollar bill. Hold it so I can't see it. The date is 1935. You'll find it in the lower right-hand corner, above Mr. Morgenthau's signature."

"You're right," Mary said. "Now for the five-dollar bill."

"The date is 1934," I said. "It's right above the words, Washington, D. C."

"Right again," she sighed. "And it couldn't be luck. How did you do it?"

I didn't tell Mary, but I'll tell you. The numbers aren't dates but series numbers. Nearly all dollar bills are 1935 and nearly all five-dollar bills are 1934.

580,000 HITLER REFUGEES IN U. S., REPORT SHOWS

'Open Door' Policy Bared; Quotas Disregarded.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The United States has given haven to 580,000 refugees from foreign lands during the Hitler regime and its attendant persecution of Jews, according to secret state department information made public today.

The number of refugees received and heretofore unpublished facts on the refugee problem were disclosed by the house foreign affairs committee in a report on testimony given in confidence Nov. 26 by Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state. Chairman Sol Bloom [D., N. Y.], made the testimony available after the state department notified him that it would no longer endanger the refugee program.

"Open Door" Policy.

The gist of the testimony was that the United States has offered an open door to refugees, that the American government and an international organization have been expediting the rescue of refugees, and that the committee should consider the possibility that legislative proposals now before it might be regarded as a repudiation of the government's work.

Long's testimony also gave the results of the British-American refugee conference in Bermuda last April.

Long testified regarding a proposal for the establishment of an American commission for the rescue of the Jewish people of Europe. This proposal was made in a house resolution Nov. 9 by Representatives Will Rogers [D., Cal.] and Joseph Clark Baldwin [R., N. Y.]. A similar proposal is pending in the senate, where it was introduced by Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.].

Quotas Disregarded.

Long's testimony included these disclosures:

Refugees have been brought in under the quota system and on visitors' visas. Several hundred thousand were admitted from Germany, Austria, and other lands between 1933 and the outbreak of the war. Altho the quota from Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland, Belgium, northern France, and Austria was only 57,000 a year, 135,000 persons were admitted from those sections on visas in the year ending in June, 1941.

Long testified the state department is still issuing 100 visas a day.

Enemy Aliens Welcomed.

The United States is the only country in the world, he said, which is now admitting enemy aliens "into its intimate midst as citizens if they care to come."

Long said the state department has been expediting the coming of refugees for years and that the intergovernmental refugee committee, representing 29 nations, has been operating for five years. He admitted America's door had been held open to refugees despite the danger of admitting hostile Germans, explaining:

"We found Germany was putting its agents in the guise of refugees in some of these migratory movements. The idea was to have them come to the United States and engage in a pernicious activity. I think the records of the FBI will show there was quite a good deal of that."

Long said the Bermuda conference broadened the work of the intergovernmental committee and arranged to feed and finance refugees who reach Switzerland, Spain, and Turkey. He said 60,000 refugees, not all of them Jewish, had moved into Switzerland and that Switzerland must have help in feeding them. Other countries overburdened with refugees, he said, have likewise been unable to keep them without assistance.

The report quoted Rep. Luther A. Johnson [D., Tex.] as saying the witnesses who had appeared in behalf of the proposed legislation seemed to think the commission it would set up would be able to find havens for refugees, and asked concerning the intergovernmental committee:

"This joint committee has been doing that very thing, hasn't it?"

"Yes," replied Long, "and the United States government."

KILGORE GROUP TO PROBE 1940 WILLKIE CHOICE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—A resolution by Sen. William Langer [R., N. D.] calling for an investigation of the 1940 Republican national convention was referred today to a senate elections subcommittee headed by Sen. H. M. Kilgore [D., W. Va.].

The resolution directs the committee to ascertain if there were "irregularities" in the nomination of Wendell Willkie "and whether Harry Hopkins had a corrupt connection therewith."

In introducing the resolution Dec. 1, Langer quoted from the book "One Man—Wendell Willkie," written by C. Nelson Sparks, former mayor of Akron, O. Other members of the subcommittee, announced by Elections Committee Chairman Theodore Francis Green [D., R. I.], are Senators Tom Stewart [D., Tenn.], James M. Tunnell [D., Del.], Warren Austin [R., Vt.], and Styles Bridges [R., N. H.].

BATHE WRA JAP SPONSOR—IN TAR, MOTHER URGES

Feathers Might Bring Light, She Writes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Apropos of the recent suggestion by Everett L. Dakan of the Columbus, O., office of the war relocation authority that Japanese should teach middle westerners how to take a bath, Rep. Ed Rowe [R., O.] today read the house the following comment, received in his mail, on the proposal:

It makes the statesmen cogitate
When they observe how Nippons rate.
Why, they've been asked to relocate:
To purify Ohio state.

We've always thought that state was clean.
Fine Presidents, from there, we've seen.
We just supposed they bathed—I mean
We never peeked behind the screen.

Ohio schools have won renown;
Too bad the bath tubs gets them down!
But, when the Japs have moved to town,
They'll bathe the folks, from toe to crown.

And Michigan is dirty, too:
At least that is the Dakan view;
But, tell us, just what can they do
When buying bath tubs is taboo?

The lakes are cold, this time of year;
But Japs 'can take it' so we hear.
If Dakan's right, the time is near,
When state-wide bathing will appear.

Too bad, we have to go so far
To learn how negligent we are!
The Rising Sun shall be the star
To bring our bathing up to par.

Why not put old Dakan right?
A bath, in tar, with feathers bright,
Might make one planner see the light:
And let's not wait 'til bathing night!"

Rowe said the author of the lines is Mrs. Ruth Coffee Hillis of Waitsburg, Wash., who has two sons fighting in the South Pacific.

DECLARE CHAIR OF ST. AUGUSTIN NOT AUTHENTIC

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A committee of experts, including the curator of the Hereford museum and a member of the historical monuments commission, has pronounced "St. Augustin's chair" to be a product of the 18th rather than the first century.

The chair was recently returned to Herefordshire from Canterbury cathedral. It is reputed to be the one in which the first archbishop of Canterbury sat when he received the Welsh bishops.

However, the experts said it was made up of old material by a man who was not skilled in the use of carpenter tools. They believe this could not have happened earlier than the middle of the 18th century.

Reginald Johnston, whose father presented the chair to Canterbury, said that he is convinced it is absolutely authentic.

480TH ANTI-SUB GROUP RETURNS HOME IN GLORY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—The 480th anti-submarine group of the army air forces has returned from the battle of the Atlantic after taking a major part in breaking the back of the German submarine threat, the war department reported tonight.

The outfit landed at Langley field, Va., with symbols of their successes in combat inscribed on their planes.

"Substantiating the group's unique record of having met and defeated the Germans below, on and above the surface of the sea is the combat record inscribed on the fuselage of one of the giant, specially designed B-24 Liberators flown by the group," the department stated.

Win Many Air Battles.

"Black swastikas painted alongside of submarines in various colors are mute evidence of its successes in air battles with the German Junkers 88s and Focke-Wulf 200 bombers far out over the convoy lanes and submarine tracks. It was piloted home by 31 year old Col. Jack Roberts of Memphis, Tenn., group commander."

The department said this bomber also is credited with assisting the royal air force in sinking a German blockade running tanker carrying enough vegetable oil to meet German civilian needs for a month.

Capt. Wayne S. Johnson, Apple Creek, O., pilot, and Capt. Bernard T. Benson, Superior, Wis., were awarded the British distinguished flying cross for their work in this encounter.

Maj. Gerald L. Mosier, Waverly, N. Y., commanding the group's second anti-submarine squadron, had 13 fights with enemy planes and on his last mission while flying down the Bay of Biscay was attacked by five JU 88s. He shot down one and had two "probables."

Casualties Exceed 50 Per Cent.

The department in reporting exploits of the group, said:

"The 480th's casualties number more than 50 per cent of its combat strength. The list of men rewarded with silver stars, distinguished flying crosses, and air medals for their valor, daring, and endurance is a long one.

"Capt. Frederick W. McKinnon Jr., of West Roxbury, Boston, Lt. Wayne B. Cooper, Memphis, and Staff Sgt. Lewis A. Rutkowski, of Grayling, Mich., were awarded the silver star by Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz for bravery in attempting to save the life of their navigator, after their plane was shot down at sea. It was known to them that at any moment the depth charges in their sinking plane might explode.

Gary Officer Praised.

"A typically daring attack was made by 2d Lt. Ernst Salm, 26, of Gary, Ind., in 'coffin corner' in July, some 700 miles off shore. He was flying above a 200 foot ceiling when his special equipment gave indication of the presence of the enemy. He dived thru the overcoat and came out, almost at the surface of the sea, to find an ocean-going submarine right in front of him.

"Instead of levelling off, he continued his dive, thus enabling the top-turret gunner to fire directly into the conning tower, killing the submarine's anti-aircraft gunners. His bombardier released depth charges, which straddled the submarine, and sank it.

"When Salm turned for a second attack, he saw the bow of the sub sinking vertically below the surface. The plane's crew dropped a rubber dinghy, ration cans, and life-vests to the survivors, who later were picked up by a British destroyer."

PLEA TO DEFER CITY TREASURER MEETS SETBACK

Maj. Baird V. Hildrich, adjutant to the state office of selective service, wrote yesterday to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes that he could not, under a ruling of the attorney general, recommend a draft deferment for City Treasurer Drymalski.

The attorney general has ruled that induction of mayors, state's attorneys and other public officials did not create a vacancy in their offices, Maj. Hilfrich pointed out. He advised Hodes to consult Drymalski's local draft board in the matter.

Drymalski's deferment was sought by the city administration to eliminate the necessity of calling an election to select his successor.

BYRD REPORTED GAINING FAVOR AS '44 NOMINEE

New York, Dec. 10 [Special].—Undismayed by the statement of Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] in Washington, D. C., that he did not expect to be a candidate for the namination for President, John U. Barr of New Orleans, La., temporary chairman of the Byrd for President committee, declared here today the movement for nominating the Virginian by the Democratic national convention was growing thruout the country, particularly in the south.

"This is a movement to purge the Democratic party of the New Deal element," said Barr, owner of the Federal Fibre mills, in an interview. "It already has strengthened every southern Democrat in congress opposed to the New Deal in the effort to prevent waste of money, spent not for the war effort but to build a burocracy.

Barr said he did not agree with the proposal of Sen. Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] for the nomination of Byrd as the candidate of an independent southern Democratic party but was working for Byrd's nomination on the regular Democratic ticket.

NEW FOOD POINT TOKENS WILL GO INTO USE FEB. 27

One point fiber tokens and 10 point ration stamps will be put into use on Feb. 27, it was announced yesterday by Edward F. Stegen, regional rationing executive in Chicago.

The use of stamps with a value of 1, 2, 5, and 8 points will be discontinued. On purchases involving less than 10 points, retailers will give change in tokens. Purchases involving any number of points may be paid for entirely or in part by tokens, of which there will be two kinds—red for meat purchases and blue for processed foods.

Stegen said five processed food stamps, representing a total value of 50 points, will become valid on the first of each month, except that the March stamps will be made valid on Feb. 27. Also starting on that date, three meat stamps, totaling 30 points, will become valid every two weeks. Point values of stamps in current books will be canceled when the new system goes into effect.

Cost of the new program will be $2,380,000, the OPA announced in Washington.

CENSOR REVISION LIFTS SECRECY ON LEND-LEASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The office of censorship today lifted restrictions on the publication of news concerning the movement of lend-lease materials and the production and capacity of war plants.

The liberalized provision is contained in new voluntary censorship codes for newspapers and radio stations announced today by Byron Price, director of the office of censorship. The revised codes included numerous revisions designed to allow freer presentation of war news.

A spokesman for the office of censorship said the provision allowing publication of lend-lease movements should eliminate much of the secrecy which has surrounded that activity of the government.

Secret Weapons Under Ban.

The new clause on war production restricts only information concerning production of secret weapons, details of specific types of weapons, and information on imports, exports, and government stockpiles of such materials as tin, natural rubber, uranium, chromium, tantalum, manganese, quinine, tungsten, platinum, and high octane gasoline.

In announcing the new codes, Price urged editors and broadcasters to appeal to his office whenever individuals of doubtful authority request them to withhold news.

"Unquestionably news is being suppressed needlessly by newspapers and broadcasters because of miscellaneous requests emanating from totally unauthorized sources thruout the country, including even publicity agents," Price said.

Wider Authority Assumed.

Wider authority to decide what news the press and radio should be asked to withhold has been assumed by the office of censorship, Price said. The code lists information which various media are asked to withhold "except when such information is made available for publication by appropriate authority or is specifically cleared by the office of censorship."

"This means, in effect, that the office of censorship itself will undertake to act as an appropriate authority under the codes," Price said.

Wider news coverage of diplomatic negotiations is provided in the revised code, with the elimination of the request against premature disclosure of diplomatic conferences, unless they concern military operations.

WSA Adequate Source.

The war shipping administration is recognized in the new code as an authority for information concerning the movements, sinking, or damaging of merchant vessels.

The navy previously was the only source of authorized information on these subjects.

"This will allow the story of the vital and heroic part of the merchant marine in winning the war to be told more fully," a statement accompanying the new code said.

'NO BLOWUP OR ROW,' SAYS MAN WHO LEFT OWI

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Wallace Carroll, London director of the office of war information, whose resignation was made known yesterday, said today there had been no "blow up or row."

Altho he was understood to have been dissatisfied with certain conditions under which the London office operated, Carroll said his relations with Director Elmer Davis and Robert E. Sherwood, in charge of the overseas branch, had been "most friendly."

"I feel the OWI has been doing a tremendous job in the face of great difficulties," his statement said. "It has, in fact, saved the lives of many of our fighting men and will save a great many more."

Denying that there was any concerted action or "revolt" in the resignations of three assistants, Carroll said they were "largely due to the fact our operations are entering a new phase."

PROPOSES G. O. P. FOREIGN POLICY MINUS POLITICS

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 10 (AP).—Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska today advocated formulation of a national policy in foreign affairs "that isn't Republican and that isn't Democratic."

"Politics," he told the Republican party leaders of 11 western states, "simply has to stop at the water's edge."

Griswold suggested adoption by the United States of a stand on foreign affairs that might remain unchanged for as long as 50 years.

Gov. John C. Vivian of Colorado urged vigilance by subordinate governmental units to protect their constitutional prerogatives. "The New Deal," he said, "is always looking for a chance to thrust government on us where we are not governing ourselves."

OWI DENOUNCED BY REP. BUSBEY FOR HIRING REDS

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The office of war information was accused in congress today of hiring Communists and other subversive employes in preference to loyal Americans and of trying to retain employes even after their subversive activities had been uncovered.

The charges were made by Rep. Fred E. Busbey [R., Ill.], who delivered a preliminary report to the house on a one man investigation he has been conducting into the OWI. He has pending before the house a resolution asking for a full inquiry into the OWI by a special committee.

Busbey asserted a full congressional inquiry into OWI is needed "because OWI officials are concerned with keeping information from congress rather than exposing their skeletons in the closet."

In his report the Illinois congressman dealt with the foreign language division of the OWI overseas division, which is conducting foreign propaganda operations at an annual cost of 34 million dollars.

"Overloaded with Aliens."

"The personnel in these offices," Busbey said, "is overloaded and top heavy with aliens, Communists, and fellow travelers who subscribe to an ideology that is inimical to our form of government, and the avowed purpose of which is to destroy it.

"The men in charge of obtaining personnel for this OWI division have utterly disregarded the possibility of employing people of foreign extraction who have lived in this country for many years, are capable and well qualified for this work, and whose patriotism is beyond reproach. Aliens have been employed altho it is impossible to investigate their background in many instances.

"Attempts have been made by OWI officials to retain employes on the payroll, even after their subversive activities are known."

Inquiries Drag On.

The OWI has subversive employes who cannot legally be discharged, Busbey continued, because investigations of their loyalty have dragged beyond the one year probationary period prescribed by civil service rules.

Propaganda in support of Communism, the congressman charged, has been injected into foreign OWI broadcasts.

"I fully appreciate and understand the value of propaganda, as one of the most potent factors in psychological warfare," Busbey said. "But I believe it should be administered strictly from an American point of view, and not to promote an ideology foreign to our Constitution and our American way of life."

STATISTICS FLOW LIKE WATER AT LIQUOR INQUIRY

Senators Take Few Shots at the Distillers.

BY JOHNSON KANADY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Astronomical figures, of gastronomical delight to the whisky drinking segment of America's population, were tossed about today as a senate judiciary subcommittee opened its investigation into the current liquor shortage.

But it was all in the realm of imagination—of what might come to pass, so don't buy aspirin now for a New Year's day headache.

Estimates were made that, if the government should reduce from eight to four years the length of time liquor could be held in warehouses tax free, 117 million gallons of whisky would be pulled out of warehouses between now and July 1.

This would mean an average of 19 million gallons of whisky, which otherwise would remain in storage, would be withdrawn from warehouses each of the next six months, to compare with the 4,800,000 gallons withdrawn in September and 5,300,000 gallons in October.

Would End Bootlegging.

Sen. Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.] said he thought this would be a good idea and would do away with bootlegging and other offenses, as well as do away with the whisky shortage. He also said after the hearing that the American stomach would profit because most of the stuff the public is getting now is "rotgut."

Stewart Berkshire, deputy commissioner of internal revenue, provided the 117 million gallon figure as the amount of whisky more than 4 years old now in storage. Sen. Van Nuys predicted that if the distillers found they were going to have to pay tax on that whisky anyway, they would pull it out and sell it.

Rationing Plan Blamed.

Berkshire said the voluntary rationing system inaugurated by distillers and wholesalers was a contributing factor not only to the whisky shortage, but also to black marketing which results from the shortages. He said this plan was put into effect before the war production board placed a limit on the use of whisky bottles, and on questioning by committee members opined that a shortage of bottles is not the bottleneck that has cut the whisky supply.

He quoted figures showing that withdrawals of whisky stocks declined in a year from 11 million gallons in October of 1942 to 4,800,000 in September of 1943. The drop came in November, 1942, when 5,500,000 gallons were withdrawn. The figures for each month following then ran [in millions of gallons]: 6.8, 7.1, 6.1, 6.6, 5.7, 4.7, 4.7, 4.6, 4.7, and 4.8.

Consider More Production.

Three trends of the committee's forthcoming investigation were made clear today. First, the committee will attempt to get evidence to support the contention that reduction of the tax free storage time will mean more whisky; second, to investigate the possibility of "vacations" on the part of distillers from making industrial alcohol for war purposes, thus allowing certain periods of the year when production of whisky could be carried on, and third, to investigate the corporate structure of distilling firms, looking for monopoly and restraint of trade trends.

Berkshire said there was "no doubt" that distillers and wholesalers are not allocating their product thru the usual channels of trade. Sen. Kennth S. Wherry [R., Neb.] said this indicated a tendency on the part of the "big four" distillers [National, Schenley, Seagrams, and Walker] to buy up small distilleries, wineries, and breweries, and divert the product of these firms to new channels.

The point was brought out in today's hearing that distillers are limited as to number of bottles they can have, not as to size. Van Nuys charged that distillers favor the smaller bottles, pints and half pints, and have virtually stopped bottling quarts, in favor of fifth gallon sizes. He contended that since the limitation is in the number of bottles, the distillers, who have said that bottle shortages create the liquor shortage, could use quarts and thus make more liquor available to the public.

Berkshire expressed the opinion that the voluntary rationing of liquor by wholesalers and distillers is being done by each firm individually, and that no agreement in restraint of trade exists.

The three men pleaded guilty before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and were ordered held to the federal grand jury.

WILLIAMS GOES ON STAND TODAY IN OWN DEFENSE

State Completes Its Case on Quirk Murder.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

John J. Williams, gambling house owner accused of instigating the murder of Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk, south side "muscle man," will take the witness stand this morning before a jury in Judge Harold G. Ward's Criminal court. He will defend himself and two co-defendants, John Enright and Anthony DeLordo, two of his gambling house employes.

Walter Knapp.

The taking of testimony in the gang murder trial is expected to end today with the appearance of Williams, some character witnesses for him and a few defense witnesses to testify they "would not believe under oath," James Egan, self confessed gunman and participant in the murder, who was the state's star witness. Closing arguments are expected to start Monday.

Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and Emmett Moynihan, who said last night that Williams would testify today, intimated they would not call either of the other defendants.

Hold DeLordo's Confession.

The state is in possession of a confession by DeLordo in which he admitted being one of the killers. Because of legal technicalities, a promise that he would escape with a 14 year penalty if he pleaded guilty, the state decided not to use the confession before closing its testimony yesterday. However, if DeLordo testified in his own behalf the prosecution, without legal ensnarlment, could confront him on cross examination with the confession. If he refuses to testify the jury never will know officially of the document.

Enright is a three time inmate of the penitentiary. If he testified the state could show his record. If he does not the jury will not learn of this evidence. The defense attorneys, it was reported last night, had decided it would be best to keep the jury in ignorance of this information.

The courtroom roared with laughter which bailiffs made no attempt to silence when Burke and Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, engaged in sharp repartee during Burke's effort to support a plea for a directed verdict, to minimize the offense of conducting a handbook—which he said was all the state had proved against Williams.

Even Judges at Tracks.

Burke said he could see little difference between betting in a handbook and betting at race tracks, where he had seen many assistant state's attorneys and even judges.

"Speak for yourself, John," Crowley interjected.

"The racing of horses goes back 8,000 years in Chinese history," Burke asserted.

"Your honor," said Crowley, "8,000 years ago domestic horses were unknown."

"Your honor," observed Maynihan, "some of the horses running now seem to be 8,000 years old."

"You seem to know a lot about horses," Burke told Crowley.

"I know a lot about certain parts of horses," said Crowley.

"Yes," observed Burke, "and most of them are down on the second floor in the state's attorney's office."

Denies Williams Owns Share.

Earlier the state's case suffered a sharp setback when Walter Knapp, 32 years old, 5758 South Laflin street, reputed to be William's partner in the Oak Lounge cafe at 3219 West 63d street, where the state contends Quirk's murder was plotted, denied that Williams is part owner of the tavern.

Crowley bounded to his feet and demanded that Knapp be sworn as a court witness to enable the state to cross-examine him.

"Knapp has told me on several occasions, the latest just last night after the end of the court session, that he was a partner of Williams and that he got 25 per cent and Williams got 75 per cent," said Crowley.

"He told me he got an additional salary of $60 a week, and that the take was $400 a week, of which he got $150, and that he and Williams jointly filed an income tax return showing that they expected to pay a $2,600 tax for the first half of the year."

Terms It "The Golden Egg."

Crowley was granted permission to cross examine Knapp after he told the court he wanted to show that the Oak Lounge was "the golden egg—the jewel for which murder was committed."

"It's just one of 15,000 or 20,000 books in the city," protested Burke. "It's just a little spot."

"A place with a roulette wheel and three crap tables and 125 patrons, that operates as a book in the daytime and a gambling place at night, is now 'Just a little spot,'" said Crowley.

Under cross examination, Knapp again denied that he is in partnership with Williams. He said he borrowed $3,000 from Williams to buy fixtures before he opened the place last January, and that he formerly worked for Williams as a $30 a week bartender in the Miami lounge.

"When I talked to you did you tell me you were in partnership at the Oak Lounge?" asked Crowley.

"I don't remember saying that."

Knapp said he remembered telling Francis McCurrie, assistant state's attorney, about the $2,600 estimated income tax return, but could not recall saying the return was jointly his and Williams'.

Robert Doubek, 8327 South Michigan avenue, general manager of an ice company at 5210 Wentworth avenue, who works as an auditor on the side, gave the courtroom some insight into handbook profits and bookkeeping. He testified he prepared income tax returns for the Oak Lounge, and also for a handbook operated by Williams at 3227 West 63d street.

Tavern Profits Revealed.

Gross income from the tavern for the first six months of this year was $24,719, he said, of which $7,000 was profit. The estimated net income for the year was $16,000, on which one-half the estimated tax of $5,293 was paid Sept. 15. He said the return was made for the tavern and not for a partnership.

Social security records showed that tavern employes included Anthony DeLordo, one of the defendants; James Egan, chief state witness; Bonnie Cunningham, a dice girl whom the state has been unable to call as a witness because it can't find her, and Ray Des Kovitz.

The return for the handbook, he said, shows that Williams operates it in partnership with Harry Roberts. From January thru July, the book had a net profit of $21,582, he said, with an estimated profit for the year of $30,000. He figured that Williams would owe $3,613 tax, and Roberts $3,703.

The employes of the book included James Egan, De Lordo, and Jerome De Johniker.

Dice Profits Reported.

A dice game in connection with the handbook is operated as a concession by William Buehl, Doubek testified. From April 1 thru September, the dice game made a profit of $10,312, with an estimated profit of $14,000 for the year, on which a tax of $3,740 will be due. Half was paid Sept. 15. Employes of the dice game included John Enright, a defendant; Egan, De Lordo, Des Kovitz, and De Johniker.

A. B. Reimer, 3327 West 64th place, a real estate man, testified that he leased the property occupied by the handbook to a Thomas Murphy for $135 a month.

Other witnesses included Frank A. Sheeder, 7301 Woodlawn avenue, a shorthand reporter for the state's attorney's office, who testified Knapp had told McCurrie Oct. 5 that Williams was a partner in the Oak Lounge; Charles M. Wilson, 511 Oakdale avenue, fire arms expert with the police scientific crime detection laboratory, who identified the bullets taken from Quirk's body; Sgt. Thomas Cooper of the state's attorney's police and William Feeny, a deputy sheriff, who told of making a search for Bonnie Cunningham, the missing witness.

In making a plea for a directed verdict, Burke told the court that admission of testimony concerning handbooks was reversible error, and asserted the state's case rested solely on the testimony of Egan, whom he described as a "coward, a thief, a murderer, a thug, an unscrupulous scoundrel no one would trust with half a dollar."

Shot in Quarrel After Drinking Stolen Liquor

James Dougherty, 39 years old, was shot yesterday by Joseph Selvage during a quarrel in the latter's home at 5823 Shields avenue. Selvage, 37, a steel worker, told Capt. Patrick Collins that he met Dougherty in a liquor store at 5842 Wentworth avenue, where they stole a half pint of whisky and went to his home to drink it. Dougherty, who gave his address as 7355 Vincennes avenue, was taken to St. Bernard's hospital, seriously wounded.

POLICE PURSUE LONG TRAIL AND FIND END GONE

Bookie's Wires Wind Round and Round.

Three detectives from Police Commissioner Allman's office, assigned to investigate gambling, yesterday reported to Capt. Michael Naughton on their attempt to locate a handbook in a loop building Thursday.

The detectives, George O'Brien, John Baird, and Edward Puhr, making the rounds of the loop, discovered a telephone number where bets on the horses could be made if you knew the handbook operators. The number was traced to room 907 in the building at 179 West Washington street.

O'Brien and Baird stationed themselves near the door to that room while Puhr went to a nearby office and called the number. O'Brien and Baird heard the telephone ring in the office, heard Puhr talking about the betting odds on the first race at New Orleans, but could hear no one in room 907.

Telephone Wires Traced.

They entered the room and found it vacant, except for six telephones. Layers of dust in the place indicated that it had not been occupied for some time. The telephone wires led to a cable in a closet in the room. The detectives traced the cable under molding down the hall to a janitor's closet and from there to a similar closet on the fifth floor.

From there the cable led into a vault in a vacant room on that floor. Building employes told the police that the vault had not been used recently and that the key could not be found immediately. The detectives then ordered the vault door drilled and opened.

In the vault the cable was attached to a switchbox from which another cable ran thru the floor to the basement. The detectives followed the serpentine strand around the basement to a small room and there it ended. The cable had been cut only an hour or two before and the rest of it removed. It had taken the detectives seven hours to trace the cable from room 907 to the basement.

Record of Profits Found.

The detectives reported that the basement had apparently been formerly used as a handbook and that records found in the vault on the fifth floor revealed that four persons had divided $13,402 profits during a period, not stated, in 1936.

The four listed were H. Walsh [believed to be the late Harry Walsh, well known loop bookie], Pregaie, Maconey, and Nyhan. The expenses were itemized as follows: Telephone, $583; racing service, $815; wall sheets, $1,800; rent, $2,060; commissions to agents, $765; electricity, $89; armored car, $243, and legal fees, $25.

Telephone company employes said that the telephone wires in room 907 had been spliced by persons not connected with the company and that all the work, including running the cable to the basement, would take more than 300 man hours, or three men working eight hours a day for 12½ days.

Jury Starts Indicting.

The December grand jury during the day returned the first of a number of expected indictments, involving gambling in the Town Hall district. Two alleged bookies were charged with operating handbooks in that district and their bonds were fixed at $2,500 by Acting Chief Justice Harold G. Ward.

The two are Anthony Verdoni, charged with operating a handbook at 1422 Irving Park road, and Abe Goldberg, charged with operating a gambling place at 827 Irving Park road.

Detective Edward Kelly of the Town Hall station was questioned again in the grand jury room by State's Atty. Courtney. He formerly was attached to the morals squad which was abolished two years ago. Other witnesses were called to testify of gambling conditions in the district.

American Born Japanese Freed of Theft Charge

Charges of stealing government property against Mrs. Nancy Sekika Furuta, 22 years old, 3608 Ellis avenue, an American born Japanese, were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. She was accused of stealing $50 worth of canned goods from an internment camp at Rivers, Ariz. Her contention that she was given the food was confirmed by Assistant United States Atty. Francis J. McGreal.

New Gas Coupons

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Edward F. Stegen with gasoline rationing coupons printed in rolls.

The office of price administration moved yesterday to halt thefts of 5-gallon T gasoline coupons, used by commercial vehicles, and thus to cut down black market sales, by setting up a central office at which to store and issue them.

Michael F. Mulcahy, area director, said the new rolls, containing 5,000 and 25,000 tickets, serially numbered, will be handled in an office at 228 North La Salle street under a 24-hour police guard. Applications will be received, as in the past, by local boards, which will pass on them and forward them to the central office, from which the tickets will be mailed to users.

The new T tickets will be effective Jan. 1, and will replace the perforated paper folder type. Unused coupons of the old type, Mulcahy said, must be turned in to the office of defense transportation by Jan. 5. Commercial users also must file new OPA R-536 applications, which are available at local boards.

URGES CHICAGO CINCH POSITION AS U. S. AIR HUB

"In the 1850's, Chicago took advantage of an opportunity which made it the nation's railroad center. Today it is in position to take action which will make it the country's air hub."

This declaration was made yesterday of J. Howard Raftery, director of the master plan of the Chicago Plan commission, when he and four other planning and traction experts took part in a panel discussion at a meeting of the Metropolitan Housing council in the Palmer House. They spoke on the rôle transportation can play in the future development of Chicago.

"It is estimated that within 10 years after the war, Chicago will have 200 to 240 plane movements an hour at peak times," Raftery said.

SLAYER OF RIVAL SOBS SHE DIDN'T PRESS TRIGGER

Insists Fiance's Gun Accidentally Fired.

Miss Rosalie Walsh, 21 years old, who shot and fatally wounded Miss Alberta Morrow, 28, of 1315 West 90th street, last Sept. 7, had her day in court yesterday. Charged with the murder of her rival for the affections of Anthony Van Arkel, 27, 8810 Wallace street, Miss Walsh sobbed much of her time on the stand in Judge Rudolph Desort's Criminal courtroom. She insisted the slaying was an accident.

The shooting occurred at the front door of Van Arkel's home, in which Miss Walsh had hidden to wait for Van Arkel and Miss Morrow. Rosalie said she had found the revolver in a box of letters in Van Arkel's room.

They had been engaged two years the preceding Christmas, and "Dutch" as she called him, had told her she might destroy the letters which other girls had written him. One was the "Sweetie Pie" letter Miss Morrow sent Van Arkel from California last February. That one Rosalie did not destroy.

Final Arguments Monday.

With Miss Walsh's testimony out of the way and the evidence all in, arguments are to be made to the jury on Monday. Her mother, Mrs. Florence Walsh, 725 West 79th street; Mrs. Susan Van Arkel, mother of Anthony, and Mrs. Marjorie Van Arkel, his sister-in-law, testified at the morning session.

The Van Arkel women were character witnesses.

Wearing her brown hair loose about her shoulder, the pale, thin, defendant, who is said to have lost about 30 pounds in jail, wore Van Arkel's engagement ring as her only jewelry. She was attired in a tan coat, red blouse with black trimming, and a black skirt.

Saw Rival in Tavern.

Questioned by her attorney, George Crane, she said she was born Feb. 14, 1922, and attended St. Killian's parochial school and Calumet High school for 2½ years until her father died. She said she worked at a soda fountain and at the Illinois Bell Telephone company until she had a nervous breakdown three years ago. She met Van Arkel at a St. Killian's church picnic four years ago.

The story of her drive with Van Arkel to Glenview last Sept. 6 was retold by the defendant. In the Marine bar, 80th street and Vincennes avenue, they saw Miss Morrow. Van Arkel took her home at 11:30, and telephoned her twice afterward. When she tried to call him back there was no answer, so she dressed and went to his home.

She broke open a window to enter. Morrow was not in his room. She sat in the darkened parlor to await Van Arkel's return.

"I didn't know the revolver was loaded," she said.

Then Van Arkel and Miss Morrow got out of his car and stepped on the porch. She got the revolver only to scare them, she said. Van Arkel opened the door and grabbed her; there was an explosion, and Miss Morrow was shot, the defendant said.

"I didn't pull the trigger, I don't know how it happened. I was screaming, and Dutch slapped me to make me quit," Rosalie said between sobs.

At St. George's hospital, Rosalie said, Miss Morrow told the police: "Rosalie is a swell kid. I should have let her boy friend alone."

FIRST CARGO SHIP FOR AUSTRALIA WILL BE LAUNCHED IN CANADA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 10.—The first Canadian cargo ship to be turned over to Australia under Canada's mutual aid policy will be launched at St. John, N. B., on Monday. She is the 4,700 ton Taronga Park, named for the park and zoo in Sydney, Australia.

The vessel will be christened by the wife of William Glasgow, Australian high commissioner to Canada. Altho no mutual aid agreement with Australia has yet been signed, Canada has been shipping supplies to the sister dominion under such a policy.

The supplies include automotive equipment, aircraft parts, metal and woodworking machinery, ammunition and ordnance, communications equipment, engines and parts, chemicals and raw materials, metal and lumber, electrical equipment, agricultural machinery, hardware, etc.

REVISE METHOD OF TAGGING CARS IN SAFETY DRIVE

After Judge John Gutknecht dismissed 275 persons who appeared before him yesterday in Jury court, charged with failure to have safety stickers on their automobiles, because of what he considered a technical defect in the summons, a new method of tagging such cars was placed in effect by Police Commissioner James P. Allman.

Hereafter tags attached to cars without safety stickers will direct the owner to report to cafeteria court. If he fails to report, he will receive a letter constituting legal notice of his offense, and if he ignores the letter, a warrant will be issued for his arrest.

Heretofore the tags have directed recipients to report in Jury court. The tags, however, bore no name, only a number. In dismissing yesterday's defendants Judge Gutknecht held a citizen may not be summoned into Jury court by number.

INDICT COUSIN OF SPANISH DUKE AS A NAZI AGENT

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Carlos Vejarano y Cassina, 26 years old, described by FBI agents as a cousin of the duke of Alba, Spanish ambassador to Great Britain, was indicted today by a federal grand jury on a charge of having acted as an unregistered agent for the German government.

Vejarano, who was arrested Saturday in his home by FBI agents, was charged in the indictment with being an unregistered foreign agent from Nov. 22, 1940, to Jan. 20, 1941, operating in the southern district of New York and in other areas not specified.

Vejarano, said by the FBI to have been known in New York and Hollywood society as Count Nava de Tajo, will plead to the indictment in federal court Dec. 20. Conviction could mean a sentence of 10 years' imprisonment and a fine as high as $5,000.

The Spaniard has been employed, the FBI said, by a New Jersey pharmaceutical company. He married Wilma Baard, a model, on Feb. 27, 1941.

His cousin, the duke, is a descendant of the royal families of Castille. He was made ambassador to Britain when the Spanish civil war ended.

LEHMAN PAINTS UNRRA AS A GOOD U. S. INVESTMENT

But House Members Are a Bit Doubtful.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Director Gen. Herbert H. Lehman of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration told the house foreign affairs committee that UNRRA is a good investment for the United States.

But members of the committee said after hearing him that they were puzzled as to how the investment the United States may make in UNRRA thru supplying tractors and restoring war damaged coal mines, railroads, factories, and public utilities will be protected.

One member said Americans may expect no return on funds expended for such projects in many countries, even tho the restoration, undertaken for relief, leaves the owners with profitable permanent improvements.

Tractor Supply Questioned.

Questions regarding tractors and permanent improvement of properties were raised by Representatives John M. Vorys [R., O.] and Andrew C. Schiffler [R., W. Va.]. Tractors are among the supplies to be furnished to rehabilitate agriculture in the war stricken nations which UNRRA will help. Repair and restoration of coal mines, railroads, factories, and public utilities may be undertaken by the UNRRA if found necessary to hasten relief.

Lehman explained to the committee, which is considering legislation authorizing American participation in UNRRA, that payments in gold or foreign exchange would be asked for such services and supplies from governments having adequate finances. He said nations havng no gold or foreign exchange would be asked to make the necessary arrangements with the farmers or other property owners benefiting, and then repay UNRRA in local currency.

Use Local Currency.

The local currency, he said, would be used for further relief work within the boundaries of the countries receiving the services.

Lehman was not pressed for further explanation.

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers [R., Mass.] inquired:

"Are you going to take into consideration that countries unable to pay in money might be able to pay in oil and coal?"

Lehman replied that even in impoverished countries, populations will be asked to pay for supplies in local currency, and said the payments they make will be placed in a revolving fund to do more relief work.

Shouldn't 'Denude Ourselves'

"But wouldn't it be wise," Mrs. Rogers demanded, "for them to pay in oil or some other natural resource in which we are short?"

"That might possibly be worked out," Lehman answered. "But we shouldn't denude the countries."

"Neither," retorted Mrs. Rogers, "should we denude ourselves."

Lehman explained the fundamental purpose of UNRRA is to help people to help themselves. This statement brought him warm compliments from most of the members of the committee.

Chairman Sol Bloom [D., N.Y.] explained after the hearing about the green thing-a-ma-jig that he puts on his finger and uses instead of a gavel to drum for order. It's no thimble. It's a pipe tamper he invented himself. Doesn't burn your finger.

HUNT 'FIREBUG' FOR 15 BLAZES WITHIN MONTH

Investigators began a search last night for a "firebug" believed to have started more than 15 fires in the last month within a radius of two miles in the Sheffield avenue police district. The most recent fire of incendiary origin broke out at 1528-30 Barry avenue yesterday morning but was extinguished before serious damage was done, Chief John Scanlon of the 13th battalion said.

"The fires appear to be the work of the same person," Chief Scanlon told Capt. John Howe of the Sheffield avenue police. "Some have been serious but most were discovered before much damage was done. The person responsible is a danger to the community."

The fires occurred similarly, usually in a rubbish basket beside the doorway of frame dwellings during the early morning hours, firemen said. One of the most serious blazes was at 1328 Fletcher street, where firemen rescued two children and three adults. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

The other fires were at 1733 Nelson street, 3144 North Paulina street, 1715 Fletcher street, 3221 Sheffield avenue, 3326 Clark street, 2433-45 Lincoln avenue, 3248 Sheffield avenue, 1323 Belmont avenue, and 1300 Wellington avenue.

COLOMBIA TO AID U. S. IN SEA AND AIR BASE PLAN

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Colombian government, which recently declared a state of belligerency against Germany, announced last night that its armed forces would coöperate fully with the United States in a joint defense program involving the establishment of sea and air bases on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The announcement followed a meeting between Acting President Darío Echandia and Lt. Gen. George H. Brett, chief of the United States defense command in the Caribbean.

[Colombia's geographical position is strategically important in the western hemisphere defense scheme, situated as it is immediately south of the Panama canal with a two ocean coast line running across the top of South America.]

THE ANSWERS.

Harvey L. Johnson, 319 Dempster street, Evanston—My briefcase is always full of papers and I carry it with me most of the time. Last summer when I went on a fishing trip with several professors I found myself getting into the car with the usual briefcase and no fishing kit. I had to go back and make the exchange.

Harold Van Horne, 211 Custer avenue, Evanston—When I was ready to pay my 51c check in a restaurant I wanted to make sure I had a penny for the tax. I looked in all of my pockets before I found one. Then I put the copper down with the check and walked out. I felt foolish when the cashier called me back.

Frank S. Endicott, 2724 Lincolnwood drive—The telephone on my desk rang while I was working on some papers. I picked up the dictaphone, which was also on the desk, and spoke. Of course, there was no response so I screamed hello again. I realized what I was doing when I began to wonder why the phone continued to ring.

Arcule G. Sheasby, 1408 Isabella street, Wilmette—I drive my car to school only a part of the time. On several occasions I have walked right past the car when it was time to go home and boarded the bus. Then I'd feel mighty foolish when I have to take another bus to go back and get the car.

Leland H. Carlson, 1011 Grove street, Evanston—When I was working in a bank I was asked to represent the bank at a funeral. I knew the family lived on a certain street and when the designated hour came I went. I sat thru the whole ceremony before I realized I had gone to the wrong funeral. The one I should have attended was two doors away.

William L. Bailey, Georgian hotel, Evanston—Last summer I had made reservations to take a trip to Canada. I boarded the train—baggage and all. After we were well on our way the conductor asked for my ticket and then said it was too bad for me. My reservation in the comfortable lower was for the following day.

The group adopted plans for coöperating in the league's campaign to improve the work habits and public conduct of Negroes in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Yesterday's meeting was sponsored by the league's public relations committee, headed by Hugo B. Law, and George D. Kells, chairman of the finance committee.

MR. WILLKIE AND HIS FRIENDS.

Mr. John Cowles, the Minneapolis publisher, has denied that Thomas Lamont, the head of the Morgan bank, lent him any money at any time for any purpose. Mr. Cowles' statement was contained in a letter to C. Nelson Sparks, author of the book, "One Man—Wendell Willkie," in which it is intimated that Mr. Lamont helped Mr. Cowles finance the purchase of his Minneapolis newspaper.

Mr. Cowles' denial is explicit and forthright. There will be no disposition to question it even tho he did not explain how his purchases were financed. He was under no necessity to discuss that aspect of the matter, but it would have been no mistake to have done so. Mr. Willkie's connections in Wall street are so extensive and important that his newspaper supporters, especially when they have expended large sums of money, can hardly be unaware that a good many eyebrows are raised.

Mr. Willkie is a director of the Lehman corporation and of New York's First National bank. He is a director, also, of a number of insurance companies. He is head of a Wall street law firm with an extensive clientele. He moves in an atmosphere of big money, in a neighborhood whose tradition is big manipulation and ruthlessness. Among the men with whom and for whom he works are some of the biggest figures in international finance.

Another of his business associates is Joseph Schenck, who was convicted of perjury not so long ago in connection with a so-called loan of $100,000 to Willie Bioff. During his trial, Schenck resigned as chairman of the board of the Twentieth Century-Fox moving picture company and was succeeded in that post by Willkie. Now that Schenck has done his time, he has gone on the pay roll again, with a seven year contract as executive production head of the film company.

Schenck's return can hardly have been disapproved by Willkie. Of equal or greater significance is the fact that under the Willkie regime the company has gone in for political propaganda of a sort favorable to Willkie. Work has been started on a $3,000,000 film of the life of Woodrow Wilson with special emphasis on his failure to put the United States in the league of nations. Mr. Willkie's company has also purchased the movie rights to Mr. Willkie's book, "One World." Newspapers would be worth a good deal more to him than movie productions.

Mr. Willkie appears at ease in the society of his Wall street and Hollywood associates. His is a happy nature. He takes his friends where he finds them, just as any barefoot boy might be expected to do. If one man has amassed a fortune in the manipulations of international finance and if another man has done time for perjury they still remain on Mr. Willkie's list of boon companions. And, in spite of it all, Mr. Willkie continues to think that the American people can regard him seriously as a candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

THE OWI WALKOUT.

Four executives of the overseas branch of the office of war information in London have handed in their resignations. Three of them are newspaper men well regarded by their colleagues before they went with the OWI. The fourth is a former college professor.

It has been reported that the executives quit in protest against the mishandling of war news that has characterized OWI ever since its birth. Resentment over the way OWI messed up the news of the Cairo and Teheran conferences and leagued itself with British agents in muzzling the accredited American correspondents who could have told the story probably has something to do with their disgust.

These resignations were probably inevitable. Mr. Rooseyelt has accepted the position of the king's second minister, and the honest people who are on his pay roll are beginning to realize it. There are even suspicions that he wants to become the second earl of Albemarle. The first earl was George Monk, who liquidated the commonwealth, England's first venture in real democracy, and brought a Stuart king back to the English throne. Charles II. paid Monk off with the title.

The American revolt against Mr. Roosevelt is complete, altho the Wall street-Communist conspiracy still is laboring to control the Republican national convention by every means it can conceive. That is the New Deal's only hope. If the international financiers and Communists can pick the Republican Presidential candidate, Mr. Roosevelt will win in 1944. Otherwise, he and the New Deal are thru, repudiated, and thrown out by a reawakened, patriotic America.

A LAST RESORT.

The Tokio radio quoted Emperor Hirohito as authority for a statement that the Japanese navy had destroyed the "bulk" of the United States fleet in the Gilbert Islands area. This came at a time when Americans were viewing newspaper pictures of hundreds of Japanese dead on those islands, with the American flag flying over Tarawa, seat of government in the Gilberts.

The emperor spoke his piece on the same day that Americans read the dramatic account of the navy's raid in the Marshall Islands, where a United States carrier task force inflicted severe damage on the Japanese and ran the gantlet of moonlight air attacks to safety.

Emperor Hirohito is the Japanese god. The Japs' faith in the official war reports can't be very extensive if Tojo has to call on the son of heaven to indorse the claims of victory made by the war and navy ministries in Tokio. It looks as if the common people in Japan, despite all Tojo's efforts to keep the bad news from them, have a pretty shrewd idea of what's been happening lately in the Solomons, the Gilberts, the Marshalls, and New Guinea.

After the battle of Midway the Japanese stock market broke despite the official claims of victory. At that time the government took over the stock market. Now all they can think of doing is to have their god tell lies. If they're reduced to that expedient, they must be pretty hard up. It's a fair inference that Japanese morale these days isn't good.

POWER OF THE PURSE.

The senate got down to the fundamentals of representative government on Wednesday, when it enacted a series of restrictive measures designed to prevent misuse by the executive departments of funds appropriated by congress.

After the war department announced that it would not spend 13½ billion dollars of its appropriations recently, President Roosevelt's budget bureau attempted to keep control of the funds, by impounding them for later use, without congressional authorization. The senate stopped that by ordering the funds turned into the treasury, where they obviously belong. It also wiped out the privilege which the war department had previously had of transferring up to 10 per cent of its appropriations to uses other than those for which the money was voted. Inasmuch as the department has had tens of billions in appropriations, a 10 per cent leeway permitted it to do anything, in any field, without congressional sanction.

For nearly 200 years the fight for political liberty centered about the power of the public purse. Charles I. lost his head because he sought to tax and spend without the sanction of parliament. After the principle was established in England that the executive may spend only what the legislative body gives him, and in the manner that the legislature directs, the royal governors in America sought to reimpose the executive power over the purse and in so doing helped to bring on the Revolution. The question was settled for all time in our Constitution.

Under the plea of war emergency, Mr. Roosevelt has sought to go back to the absolutism of the Stuarts in fiscal matters. Appropriations, the greatest in the history of any nation, were voted, and voted in lump sums, on the plea of the executive departments that for them to specify what they intended to do with the money would betray military information to the enemy. By transfers of funds and the use of the borrowing power of the federal corporations which the New Deal has sought to make independent of the will of congress, the Roosevelt administration for the first two years of the war has known no restraint whatever upon its spending.

This action by the senate cannot be construed merely as a belated recognition of the principle that the legislature ought to keep its power over the purse. That was never doubted. Like many other limitations in our system of government, that limitation on executive spending power was relaxed on the plea of war time emergency. It is being reimposed because Mr. Roosevelt has been caught time and again in the abuse of the privilege granted. He has wasted billions of dollars and he unrepentantly and brazenly indicates his desire to waste billions more unless congress stops him, as its members now seem determined to do.

Any war time claim that the funds are for the navy or war department is supposed to melt all congressional opposition. It did for a while, until congress, like the rest of the nation, began to understand that funds voted for the army or navy were not necessarily spent by army and navy officers, but by the same sort of wasteful New Dealers who are entrenched in every other department of the government. War department funds have been thrown about by the hundreds of millions of dollars, as the Truman committee demonstrated when it uncovered the Canol oil scandal in Canada. Sen. Truman warned his colleagues that there are more Canol cases and that his committee will be reporting on them soon.

It cannot be fairly argued that a single activity in connection with the prosecution of the war will be hampered in the least by congress' reasserting its power of the purse. As Sen. McKellar said, congress is in session and it will meet all requests for military appropriations. All that has been hampered is Mr. Roosevelt's power to deceive and waste.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

County Treasurer Schlaeger says that on the first of this month more than 91 per cent of the current Cook county real estate taxes had been paid. Likewise, more than 99 per cent of the railroad taxes and 78 per cent of the personal property taxes had been collected.

This is a pretty good record. It wouldn't arouse any great enthusiasm in such states as Massachusetts, where the tax laws have sharp teeth, and it is surpassed in most downstate counties in Illinois, but at least the collections indicate that the taxpaying habit is being revived in this community.

Ten years ago the local governments of Chicago were taking in about half as much as they got this year, the other half being delinquent. That was the period of payless paydays in the city hall and the county building, the period when loan sharks were cleaning up at the expense of teachers, policemen, and firemen.

The restoration of the taxpaying habit has taken a good deal of time and effort. Evidently the great majority of the property owners in the community are now willing to meet their bills on the dot. That circumstance ought to be given weight by those who presently are advocating the so-called 100 per cent assessment system. Certainly there has been no great demand for the adoption of this plan from the taxpayers themselves. If they are content with the present 37 per cent assessment, as they appear to be, it oughtn't to be changed unless there are some mighty good reasons for doing so. We haven't heard of any.

MR. PEPYS IN DISGUISE.

11th Dec.—Wore my astrologer's costume to my contributors' dinner last Saturday night and nobody recognized me, so tonight at the Press Veterans' dinner will wear my kellermeister or soumelier costume, thus showing my true colors. This disguise consists of a leather apron reaching from the chin to the knees, a powerful bung starter, and a great silver chain dangling from the neck, with a bottle opener attached. These trappings represent the only honorary academic gown ever bestowed upon me, and I pretend they come from the University of Pilsen.

Must say the contributors did themselves proud at their dinner, with talks and recitations from all hands, and many quaint and merry things were said, especially by Duke Bakrak, the toastmaster. A world's record in autographing was established, and the next day I found myself in need of a new nib on my fountain pen. In the heat of eloquence I told the assembly that 3,000,000 copies of the Linebook had been sold during its 20 years of life, but find on consulting my accountant that the right guess would be about 2,100,000. The other 900,000 are represented by the books that could have been sold this year but were not printed.

After forgathering with the press veterans tonight and wielding my bung starter as sergeant at arms, if necessary, will retire from social circulation to prepare for the Christmas and New Year's parties.

A COLUMNIST OF LANG SYNE.

(On re-reading "Motley Measures": 1913.)

Its binding long since gone—the grace that garnished
Its clean, new pages to the four winds scattered;
Maltreated by the trampling years to tarnished
Debris for bookstalls, minus all that mattered

When finish, format, typographic sparkle
Were once both author's means and printer's ends—
Before me lies a volume, doomed to darkle
In dour neglect, that clamors Time's amends.

Yet these are but deceits of the external.
Tho torn, and worn, and miserably frayed
Without, yet here inside still bloom as vernal
As when the master first their rhymes arrayed

Three score and ten magical "Motley Measures,"
Between their lines exclaiming: "Poetry dead
When such as we its bright, contrastive treasures
In unspent wealth like this, and this, outspread?"

To change the metaphor: tho feather-faded,
And in their claims to lineage outraged,
Defiant of decrepitude, unaided,
Still sing these linnets loud as when first caged.

For he who bred them knew that Fame is frailer
And Fashion feebler than the heaven-born Word—
That's why, whene'er he speaks, Bert Leston Taylor,
Despite the years, will never go unheard!

Streetcars Since Pearl Harbor.

Before Pearl Harbor a streetcar was merely a conveyance. Now, many new things occupy the passengers' minds.

Next to me is seated a young girl about 20. She is reading a small pocket edition of sacred verse. The page-marker is a V-mail envelope with its message still inside.

Across the aisle is a woman of 50—a defense plant worker dressed in men's overalls. In the palm of her hand she holds a rosary. You can see her lips move as she silently repeats a prayer.

Behind me a group of girls are excitedly exchanging snapshots and letters from boys who are still in the States.

Ahead of me is an elderly man who smiles to himself. Ever so often he pulls out a small photograph and a letter.

Then there are women whose faces are filled with gloom, despair, and a heartache which etches cruel, deep lines on their faces. No letter, no hope, no nothing—just waiting.

LINES IN A LOW MOOD.

That two and two, as some one well has said,
Make four is widely bruited: I have heard
It whispered by a nameless little bird
And thundered by a man whose face was red.
Eyes light with wonder in each tranquil head,
Portentous voices chant the potent word,
And ears unravished by Tschaikowsky's Third
Grow pink with pleasure as the news is spread.

O, urgent tidings, penetrating truth!
O, milestones on the dusty road to Dover,
And bleating herds, and correspondence schools!
Is there no voice courageous and uncouth
To interrupt, before their cup runs over,
This epidemic fellowship of fools?

MAKE 'HOME' WORTH WHILE.

IN the rearing of our sons and daughters, we cannot emphasize too strongly the power of a desirable, happy, and interesting home environment. The assumption, however, that all parents will devote themselves to the welfare of their offspring is not always justified.

The housewife who is so deeply engulfed in social, civic, and church duties that she has little time for Johnny and Mary might better reside a thousand miles away. In like fashion, the head of the family whose business absorbs his every waking moment has no right to beget children. Each is equally culpable.

The motivating factor must be affection and understanding. Youngsters must be able to pour out their joys and sorrows, be listened to with patience, and thus gain satisfaction. Unless they can find fruition for their emotional cravings, their own hearthstones become sterile and meaningless.

Little ones are unusually keen when it comes to the detection of real interest as contrasted with perfunctory tolerance. As a rule, they will first seek companionship of the right sort. If this is not forthcoming, they will find the wrong type, with standards of conduct established by the neighborhood gang. The reason is that home surroundings are so dull and drab that an outlet must be found somewhere.

Not the least of the incidents which will require careful handling are the relationships with others, particularly the teacher. It is never wise to break down her influence or take sides against school discipline. We must never lose sight of the fact that the lad learns largely from his associates. He is likely to pattern after them even in defiance of wholesome principles, if he cannot be made to sense the difference.

It has been well said that peculiar fathers and mothers will have lonesome children. Thus we sympathize with the boy who spends the evening at our house because his dad is irascible and cross and is forever "shooing" him out of the way. have in mind a forlorn little fellow whom I knew a number of years ago. He has since become a distinguished member of the bar. He was forever haunting the households of his playmates, prowling thru the libraries, and frequently partaking of what the family tables had to offer. He was a welcome guest everywhere except at his own fireside. His mother, president of everything that the women of the community had to offer, was merely an acquaintance. The parents of his companions were his real friends.

Every one who knew him realized that he was full of ideas, with plans for the future. He infected all of us with his air castles. As I think back over the group of a score or more lads, he stands out in resourcefulness. With it all, he never developed hostility to his own relatives but, as he often expressed it, "I wish my dad and mom loved me the way you love John." He was able to make compensations which many another chap, less courageous, would have failed to bring about.

Apparently a school for parents is needed badly. But there are numerous books and manuals which will be helpful. If we oldsters can learn to do the job right, behavior problems will vanish. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for list of books on the rearing of children.

BLAND DIET.

Mrs. A. A. writes: Please explain and exemplify the term "nonfibrous vegetables."

All types contain some fiber. Probably potatoes offer the least. When a fiber free diet is recommended [as in colitis], all plant products may be sieved.

TEST NOT PERFECT.

RISING HEART RATE.

E. H. L. writes: My pulse in repose is 76-80. After swimming it goes to 96-100. Is this dangerous?

REPLY.

An increase of 10-15 beats is normal. Overexertion is indicated beyond that point.

SLEEPLESS BABE.

Mrs. D. writes: What causes insomnia in an infant?

REPLY.

Probably inadequate nutrition. Well fed babies will sleep unless they are ill.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Number, Please.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—If you haven't tried to use a telephone in Washington you have missed the time of your life. It's such fun. Don't try it if you can't count up to 10 and keep a minimum of five numbers in your head at the same time, but if you can master these simple niceties, the telephone conversation is yours for the asking.

No one has yet given out statistical information on the comparative numerical strength of the telephone extensions of our side and the axis. It should be an interesting task for about 9,000,000 of the unemployed in the post-war world when we set up our new lend-work WPA, the world progress administration. As a starter, we suggest the war department.

Unquestionably our war department has thousands of telephone numbers and extensions the country over. If Washington is any indication, it has millions, and, again, if Washington is any indication, any one of those millions will be busy any time you call it. Each extension leads not merely to one telephone but to a department that may contain 10 or 20 or 90 telephones. Here in Washington the war department has one number that every one knows—Republic 6700. It also has other numbers for such divisions as the war college. But at Republic 6700, the first 10,000 extensions were exhausted long ago. They got as high as 9,999 and jumped to the 70,000s. No one knows exactly why, or at least no one with such knowledge at his fingertips is at our fingertips. At the 70,000 level they started all over again. The person you want may be on extension 7-0001 or he may be at 7,9999, or maybe they haven't reached 7,9999 yet, but it's not far off.

The navy is different. The navy exhausted the first 10,000 and jumped to 60,000. This may be because the navy is numerically inferior to the army. On the other hand it may be because the number 6 has a watery sound when hissed over the telephone.

The real telephone users, however, are the relatively new national war agencies. Telephone life is so turbulent with them that they have a 54 page telephone directory, each page the size of one in the Chicago directory but bearing more names as it carries no advertisments and is printed in small, eyestrain type. The telephone number here that rapidly is approaching the war department's telephone magnitude is Republic 7500. The OPA, the OWI, lend-lease, the OCD, and a few minor war setups are cut in on it. It, too, has jumped to the 70,000 extension group.

The most curious aspect of the war agencies' directory is its abbreviations. They are every bit as difficult and, in their way, amusing as the abbreviations in the dmstc hswf help wanted columns of the newspapers. Here is a name picked at random, and the information following it:

Rawls, Ruben R. OPA-FXUP Rm 6310 FO BG 1 . . . 6485.

If you are canny, you can decipher this into the fact that Mr. Rawls is with the fuel price division of the OPA and may be found at a desk in room 6310—and there you stop. What building is the FO BG 1? You look up and down the guide to abbreviations, and you never can find it. It isn't there. The best thing to do then is dial Republic 7500, try to get the gentleman at extension 6485, and ask him what building he is in. Better yet, arrange to meet him at the corner of 18th and Constitution, right in front of the central flag on the Navy building. This is only a suggestion. Naturally we don't know. Having not the slightest interest in the FXUP, we have never called Rawls.

There are a few other abbreviations that may confuse you. INF does not mean information. It means infantry. PROC BG means the treasury procurement building, w means wing—an architectural device in which any one can get lost for days here—and wh, you'll never guess wh without the guide. It means White House.

VALE McKEOUGH.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—The air must have been a little fresher around the OPA offices today when the news broke that McKeough had resigned.

This brazen political leech has never done a day's work for the OPA since his lame duck appointment. It is amazing how much punishment the American public will stand. McKeough was repudiated by the voters of Illinois, but the Roosevelt feed trough seems to go on forever.

He is at last going down with the labor racketeers, where he has always belonged. That is the political kiss of death. After all, even Shakespeare couldn't write a better ending.

EX-DEMOCRAT.

"ELEMENTAL DISTRUST."

Chicago, Dec. 7.—With all this talk of lasting peace, leagues, Union Now, and other diplomatic generalities and emotional booby traps, I think it might be well to remember the words of one of England's great poets, who said:

"Let us have a little less of 'hands across the sea' and a little more of that elemental distrust which is the security of nations."

In time of need these hands across the sea are stretched out to us in supplication, but these same hands can be quickly turned against us once their prayer has been answered. This is history.

If we do enter a league of nations let us do so realistically, with the full knowledge that we shall find there much more of self-interest than friendly coöperation. This is also historical fact. E. P. CONRADI.

HIGH PRICE OF CREAM.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Just recently I read in THE TRIBUNE another piece concerning the warning given milk dealers by the OPA.

Being on a special diet, I have to buy three quarts of cream a week. I've always paid 50 cents a quart. At present I have to buy half pints for which I pay 68 cents for four and $1.02 when six halves are obtainable.

Being only a "white collar" worker you can imagine what this does to my budget. Can't something be done?

MARGUERITE COLLINS.

LOOK, MR. McFETRIDGE.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—At hundreds of "L" street crossings there are eight to 10 pieces of railroad track, 6 feet long, placed into the ground to prevent driving under the elevated structure.

If all this could be recovered there would be hundreds of tons for the scrap drive. H. D. HENRY.

FOUR SUBSTITUTES.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—While the American people are constantly being reminded of the four freedoms they are being given the four substitutes: Priorities, rationing, subsidies, unionized strikes.

G. W. CAMERON.

"ASK FOR THE DARNELL JURY."

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Every cop take notice. It is quite all right to shoot citizens. When your trial comes up, ask for the Darnell jury.

H. WOLFSON.

DID HIS PRIVATE CAR BREAK DOWN?

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 7.—What? No Fala in Cairo?

EVERYDAY READER.

DOESN'T LIKE MILK DRIVERS.

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 2.—Mr. John T. Russell tells us that the milk dealers "are saving at least 200 per cent increase on efficiency in their hauling costs from country plants to city bottling plants, at least 75 per cent greater efficiency on their maintenance, at least 100 per cent greater efficiency at their bottling plants." Then, he exclaims: "Was this saving handed to the consuming public? No, it went into the milk dealers' pockets."

This argument is typical of the browbeating unionist. Why any one should strive for greater efficiency in order to hand the savings over to some one who had nothing to do with getting this efficiency is beyond the head of the average thinking person. Mr. Russell does not tell us how much of these savings were spent in paying higher wages to the drivers, who never strived for efficiency but who only know that they want more money and less work. They are for inefficiency. How much were the drivers paid in 1928 and how much are they paid now? What savings did they effect to earn this higher pay?

The facts are that the reward for increased efficiency in industry is taken by union labor because it is able to browbeat the employer and the public.

J. P. GRIP.

FORGOTTEN MEN.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 30.—The white collar men seem to be the forgotten men these days. They are being asked to contribute an ever increasing amount of money in taxes and to charitable and patriotic organizations.

They are being asked to do this on the theory that they are sharing in the war boom. But the large percentage of them aren't enjoying any of the war prosperity. Their income has not increased and the cost of living has.

J. M. O'MEARA.

DIGNITY UNDER THE PYRAMIDS.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 8.—Mr. Jones of River Forest thinks your reference to three of our principal leaders as "Boy Scouts" is undignified. How does he feel about Churchill doing a jig and Hopkins giving a "plug" to a New York night club by ordering the army band to play "Pistol Packin' Mama." We bet Brother Joe refers to them as "The Three Blind Mice."

INTEREST RATE.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What is the maximum rate of interest that may be charged when real estate is bought on a contract basis, with stipulated monthly payments made to cover interest and reduction of the principal? B. J.

The maximum that can be stipulated for by contract is 7 per cent per annum in ordinary cases. An agreement to pay more than the legal rate is usurious and only the principal can be collected. In absence of agreement as to interest, 5 per cent is allowed, after due, on notes or other instruments in writing; on money lent; on accounts settled; on money received for use of another and retained without owner's knowledge; on money withheld by an unreasonable and vexatious delay, and on judgments.

HOWARD TO LOSE ARMY TRAINING PLANE CONTRACT

The Howard Aircraft company at St. Charles will complete this month its contract for production of PT-23 primary training planes for the army air forces, it was learned yesterday, and the company has been notified the army will not require it to make any more planes of the type.

A design of the Fairchild Aircraft company, the PT-23 in its original form was the PT-19, equipped with a Fairchild Ranger inverted, in line, air cooled engine of 165 horse power. The army wanted more power in the plane, and designated the PT-23 with a Continental 220 horse power radial engine. The change in engines, it is reported, caused some difficulties with the tail section.

The Howard company, the first large scale manufacturer of airplanes in the Chicago area, is producing an instrument trainer and a hospital ship for the navy in the St. Charles plant. Both planes are modifications of the Howard cabin aircraft made for private pilots prior to the war.

LT. M. M. BERNSTEIN KILLED IN ACTION IN ITALY, FATHER TOLD

Lt. Morris M. Bernstein.

Lt. Morris M. Bernstein was killed in action Nov. 4, while fighting with the 5th army in Italy, it was reported yesterday by his father, Abe Bernstein, 727 Bittersweet place. Enlisting March 3, 1942, Lt. Bernstein received his basic training at Camp Livingston, La., and went to officers' candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., where he was commissioned on Nov. 11, 1942. The lieutenant was 33 years old. He attended the University of Illinois, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity.

COL. WIENECKE RETURNS FROM MEDITERANEAN

Lt. Col. Robert Wienecke, 39 years old, who captained Northwestern's football team in 1924 [the year they were christened the Wildcats] and went overseas to Africa last spring, was at home at 466 Adams street, Glencoe, yesterday for a reunion with Mrs. Wienecke and daughters Betsy and Lynn, 6 and 3 years old.

Col. Wienecke is one of two officers credited with thinking up the Sicilian campaign exploit whereby two young officers captured three islands, took 1,027 prisoners, and brought relief to 5,450 civilians at a cost of $3 to the United States government.

Col. Wienecke served as chief of supply services for paratroopers in the Sicilian campaign. He is in this country on a mission to Washington. In his service overseas, Col. Wienecke knew Jack Thompson, Tribune correspondent who jumped twice with the paratroopers; altho he had had no previous training, and, more recently, Col. Wienecke said, he had talked to Seymour Korman, also a Tribune correspondent.

AURAND ORDERS PROBE OF M. P.'S TILT WITH PRESS

Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, head of the 6th service command, last night ordered an investigation of an incident in Union station yesterday. A military policeman interfered with newspaper photographers who took pictures of Lt. Col. Robert Wienecke, 466 Adams street, Glencoe, who arrived home from service in Africa and Italy.

The investigation will be made by Brig. Gen. William E. Guthner, head of military police in the 6th service command. When photographers protested against interference with their work by the soldier he became angry and threatened to fight them. While the soldier was arguing with the newspaper men, a leather bag belonging to a Tribune photographer was stolen. The bag and photographic equipment is valued at $102.

Gen. Aurand said the military policeman was inexperienced and had confused his orders, which prohibit photographing of troop trains. There is no order, Gen. Aurand said, against taking pictures of individuals.

BRITONS IN U. S. 'WAR ZONE' FED FROM COWSHED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—While American troops maneuver in a realistic battle practice over a 35 square mile area in southwest England, a mobile food ministry kitchen, set up in an old cowshed, is furnishing hundreds of meals daily to villagers who have not yet evacuated the "battle zone." Most retailers, butchers, bakers, and grocers already quit the area and the housewives, without gas and electricity, are largely dependent on the food ministry kitchen for their meals, which are distributed by trucks.

Meals have been described as "good and varied." They cost 9 pence [about 15 cents] each for adults and 6 pence [about 10 cents] for children. A typical menu is cottage pie with creamed potatoes and cabbage, followed by apple pudding and a cup of tea.

After the midday meal is served, a truck tours the area with bread baked in the kitchen. The villagers generally are reported appreciative of the feeding and other arrangements for their comfort.

ARMY AND NAVY CASUALTY TOLL REACHES 129,422

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Casualties in the nation's army and navy since the beginning of the war total 129,422.

JAN KWAPINSKI, POLISH LEADER, ARRIVES TODAY

Jan Kwapinski, vice premier of Poland, will arrive today for a visit of approximately four days, during which he will meet with Polish leaders and organizations. His arrival is scheduled for 9 a. m. at the Union station.

Among the groups which will honor him will be the Polish American council, the Women's Committee to Help Polish Children, the Polish American Trade unions, and other Polish American organizations.

Vice Premier Kwapinski is also minister of industry, commerce, and shipping, and chairman of the Polish Socialist party in London. He was deported to Siberia after the Russian invasion of Poland, but was eventually freed, made a member of the Polish cabinet, and sent to England.

CLERK OF COURT DROPS TWO AIDS ON 'FIX' CHARGE

Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, yesterday suspended two deputy clerks accused of promising to "fix" a traffic fine for $50.

They are Abe Turovitz, 42 years old, 1405 South Kostner avenue, and James Sweeney, 43, of 4356 Jackson boulevard. They are accused by Christ Grosch, 53, of 1827 North Fairfield avenue, of inducing him to sign over to them his $100 bail bond, after which they gave him $50 in change and told him to forget about a $100 fine for reckless driving imposed in Safety court.

Later, when the case came up on a motion to vacate the fine, Grosch failed to appear. He was brought into court on a warrant and explained he thought everything was taken care of. Turovitz and Sweeney deny having any dealings with Grosch.

ASK SKIN DONORS TO HELP GIRL, 4, BONFIRE VICTIM

An appeal for skin donors to help Norma June Smurdon, 4 years old, who needs skin to replace that burned from four-fifths of her back, was issued yesterday by doctors at the Mercy hospital, 6th and Tyler streets, Gary.

Norma June, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Smurdon, Ridge road and Taft street, Gary, suffered burns on the neck, arms, and back Oct. 6 in an accident at a neighborhood bonfire. She has been in the hospital since.

Only skin donors with type A blood will be acceptable for the operation, hospital authorities said. Norma June has two sisters and six brothers, all under 15 years of age.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

R. C. N. writes: "I am registered in a Detroit board. I am a teacher of math, physics, aircraft engines, aerology, and navigation in a college that has a contract with the navy for training aviation cadets. My school filed 42-A with the board but they refused to consider it because of the Presidential order which prohibited deferment of governmental employes. I gave the letter to the dean of the college, then I got a notice to appear for a preliminary physical examination.. As long as I am on the school pay roll, how can the board make the determination I am a government employe?"

ANSWER: It is suggested you appeal from the 1-A classification when you receive it. Altho the school may be engaged in training aviation cadets for the navy, you are still not a government employe because you are not paid by the government. You could properly be considered for occupational deferment under activity and occupational bulletin number 33-5. The Presidential order referred to covers only persons employed by some governmental agency who receive their pay from the government.

E. M. L. writes: "My work clothes, pants, and jacket disappeared from the drying line here at camp while I was assigned to other duties. When I told the sergeant about it he said, 'That's just too bad, nothing can be done about it.' When I return to camp in the evening I wash out my fatigue clothes and hang them up to dry but when I get up to dress in the morning, they are still wet. Under the circumstances am I not entitled to replacements?"

ANSWER: As long as the clothing was not lost as a result of your own negligence you are entitled to replacement. It is your corporal's responsibility to get the situation straightened out for you.

S. I. asks: "If the bill to delay the drafting of fathers becomes law, will physicians be in the same category as other fathers, or will they be discriminated against and be drafted without regarding their status as fathers?"

ANSWER: Apparently they are considered as in the same category as other men who are fathers and would be called in the same order unless congress directs otherwise.

C. H. J. asks: "Would a letter from my son overseas requesting a fountain pen have to have an O. K. of his commanding officer in order for me to send it?"

ANSWER: If you can properly wrap it and keep the package under 8 ounces, you can send it to him first class mail without an O. K. by his officers.

B. N. T. writes: "I was inducted into the navy today and asked for the 21 day induction furlough and they said seven was all I could have. I thought a law had been passed extending the furlough to 21 days."

ANSWER: The secretary of the navy indicated he would "consider it" but no action has been taken as yet.

ARMY GIVES UP 74 MILLIONS IN WAR MATERIALS

Most of It Goes to U. S. Agencies, Tho.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The war department disposed of or transferred 74 million dollars' worth of serviceable property between July 1 and Sept. 30 this year, mostly to other federal agencies and war industries, the office of war information announced today.

OWI said 43 million dollars' worth of the goods, or about 58 per cent of the total, represented transfers among the various technical services of the war department and never left military control. Another 21 million dollars' worth, or about 29 per cent, was transferred to the navy and other federal agencies, and 10 million dollars' worth, or 13 per cent, was sold to private firms.

Needs Change Demands.

"Property sold or otherwise disposed of by the war department consists of materials and equipment which, because of rapidly changing war requirements, are found to be no longer of service," OWI said. "The accumulation and disposal of such surplus property has no direct relation to the progress of hostilities, and does not mean there is any slowing down in war activity.

"Large amounts of property are diverted from one technical service in the war department to another, from the war department to other government agencies, and to war contractors without reaching consumer channels at all."

OWI said that property not absorbed by the war department or other government agencies is released for general sale. Such military property is sold at public sale by regional offices of the treasury procurement division.

Can Buy After 20 Days.

Nonmilitary property, consisting mostly of production equipment and raw materials, is returned to industry by listing it with the regional offices of the war production board, OWI said. During the first 20 days of listing, only military agencies or their contractors may purchase the offerings. Thereafter any one is qualified to buy.

OWI reported the war department disposed of $73,092,000 of salvaged materials in the fiscal year ended last June 30. The largest single item was $49,386,000 in copper and other nonferrous metals. Fats, grease, and bones brought $1,448,000, and other kitchen wastes $1,383,000.

BRIDE CHOPS UP MATE AND PUTS PIECES ON TRACK

Fort Valley, Ga., Dec. 10 (AP).—A bride of three weeks told a coroner's jury today that she killed her husband with an ax, decapitated and bisected the body, and placed the pieces on a railroad track to simulate an accident.

Coroner G. C. Poole said Mrs. John Jump, 25 years old, testified that her husband, a 44 year old textile worker, threatened her with a pistol and a knife Wednesday night. She snatched up an ex, she told the jury, and struck him on the head. Then she cut up the body with a butcher knife, sh said, and carried the sections half a mile to a railroad track, where they were found yesterday morning.

When investigation disclosed a train could not have hit the man, officers thought Jump had been slain, robbed, and his body placed on the tracks.

Sheriff W. H. Deland said Mrs. Jump has been charged with murder and moved to a jail outside Peach county.

WASTE OF PAPER CALLED PERIL TO WAR TRANSPORT

WPB Asks That 33% More Be Salvaged.

Housewives who consign old paper to the trash burner are contributing to a shortage of vital war material which threatens to impair overseas shipments of blood plasma, food, ammunition, and other supplies. Waste paper is essential to the manufacture of containers for transport. It is also an item in the manufacture of bomb bands, shell protectors and containers, airplane signals, parachute flares, and ammunition chests—to mention some of its uses.

Chicago Publishers Meet.

Figures revealed by Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, in a recent letter to newspaper publishers show waste paper collections are running 6 million tons annually out of a potential 15 million tons of salvage. A 33⅓ per cent boost in the salvage rate to 8 million tons will overcome the shortage, Nelson added.

The critical nature of the waste paper scarcity was emphasized yesterday by representatives of Chicago publishers at a meeting to discuss means of stimulating collections. They were informed that some mills already have shut down because of the shortage of paper, while others are operating on reduced schedules.

Among Raw Materials.

"Millions of paperboard containers carrying food, ammunition, and equipment are being shipped overseas weekly to American and allied forces," Nelson wrote the publishers. "Waste paper is one of the chief raw materials from which these containers are made. . . ."

Plans for paper collection from household and commercial sources in metropolitan Chicago are being developed and will be announced soon. Meanwhile, emphasis is placed on the value of saving papers for the pickup.

ORDERS COUPLE FROM BUILDING; FOUND IN SHAFT

Joseph Kmet, 60 years old, a watchman in the Northwestern building, 208 North Wells street, was critically injured in a 15-foot plunge in an elevator shaft last night after he had engaged in an altercation with a Negro man and woman, who defied his command to leave the building.

The couple were overheard talking with Kmet by Miss Taime Kampenen, 27, of 4727 Ellis avenue, an office employe. Kmet asked to her to call the police. While she was in her office calling the police the watchman fell or was pushed into the shaft.

The Negro man fled, but his companion entered an elevator and ran the car up and down the shaft until she was seized and held for police by Irving Blum, a building tenant. The woman, Ann Jones, 20, of 5525 Indiana avenue, was so intoxicated she could not explain Kmet's injuries, police said.

Kmet, who lives at 1105 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, was taken to Henrotin hospital.

NEW YEAR'S EVE PRICE INCREASES LIMITED BY OPA

Your New Year's eve celebration at the same tavern or restaurant you attended last year will take only a slightly larger bite out of your pocketbook this time, if new controls announced yesterday by the office of price administration are effective.

Michael F. Cudahy, area OPA director, said his office has notified food and drink establishments that special ceilings will be enforced and that patrons who are overcharged may be able to collect treble the overpayment or $50, whichever is larger, for the trouble of proving it in court.

He said that "if they have charged higher food prices on holidays, such as New Year's, in the past, they may continue to maintain only their customary differentials over regular prices." Most prices will be only slightly higher than last year, if at all, because prices have been frozen at April 4-10, 1943, levels, and increases may reflect only such price boosts as were put into effect between Jan. 1 and April 4, Mulcahey said.

No holiday differential may be charged for liquor, which is under flat ceilings, he said.

DISMISS WARD'S $1,000,000 SUIT, CIO UNION ASKS

Francis Heisler, attorney for the United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail Employes union [CIO], yesterday argued before Judge Joseph Graber in Superior court that a suit for $1,000,000 filed against the union and its international body by Montgomery Ward & Co., should be dismissed. He also asked the court to deny the company's request for an injunction to stop publication of the union publication, Spotlight.

Heisler argued that if the Spotlight could be enjoined, then any publication could be suspended by court order, thus contravening the rights of a free press. He recalled that the company had used many page advertisments to explain its views on government decrees and unions and asserted the union should not be restrained from publishing its views. He denied any conspiracy existed to injure the company, as alleged.

Judge Graber continued the hearing until Tuesday when arguments of the company's attorneys will be heard.

Cooperage Factory Fire Cuts Electric Current

Damage of $25,000 was caused early today by a fire, apparently starting from a spark of an earlier blaze, in the John F. Kaenel Cooperage company, a box and barrel manufacturing plant at 453 North Green street. The building also was occupied by the Acme Corrugated Box company. The blaze disrupted lighting and power circuits and cast the Grand avenue-Halsted street neighborhood into darkness for several minutes.

Dean Clarke Traces Rise of Dictators to Bureaus

History shows that burocratic control of economic activities leads to centralization of power and to dictatorship, Dean William F. Clarke of the De Paul university law school told the Friday Morning forum at the Abraham Lincoln center, 700 Oakwood boulevard, yesterday. He told of paradoxical decisions of the Supreme court which, he said, in some instances uphold Jehovah's Witnesses in their personal rights and in other instances back boards and bureaus named by Presidential decree, limiting economic use of personal property.

Homecomings Bringing Early Yule for Many

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHRISTMAS comes Dec. 25 as usual this year, but for those families who have members in service the real Christmas spirit arrives when the men come home. Decorations are up early in some homes to greet husbands and fathers here on leave, and entertaining that usually is left for Christmas week is hastily arranged to suit army or navy orders.

So it is that the home of George B. Massey in Winnetka will be en fete today, for Lt. and Mrs. George W. Ryerson [Phoebe Massey] are holding Christmas open house from 1 to 8 p. m. to welcome Lt. Ryerson, just back from duty in the Atlantic. The Ryersons are celebrating now, as they and their children, Bunny and John, and Lt. Ryerson's mother, Mrs. John A. Ryerson, are leaving Monday for Florida. Lt. Ryerson is to be stationed there for several weeks while taking additional special training, so his family will miss the usual Winnetka Christmas gayety.

It will be a real Christmas for Mrs. Samuel Douglas Flood and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardner, for Mrs. Flood's son and Mrs. Gardner's brother, Samuel Douglas Flood Jr., just arrived from Spanish Morocco on his first visit home in more than four years. He was the American consul at Ceuta, a post established just before our armies arrived in North Africa. Mr. Flood, who has 30 days' leave, will be spending his first Christmas here in seven years. From Chicago he will go to Washington, D. C., temporarily, until he is assigned to a new post.

Other Holiday Arrivals.

Christmas time parties will be brightened by the presence of at least one former north shore beau, Roger K. Ballard Jr., who will be attending them in his uniform as a navy lieutenant. He arrived at home in Winnetka this week on a month's leave, having completed 20 months of active service in the Pacific. Just before he arrived, Lt. Ballard's sister, Mrs. Walter L. Cherry Jr., and her baby, departed for Brookline, Mass., where they have taken an apartment to be with Pvt. Cherry while he is taking army courses at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Visiting in Lake Forest with his newly earned second lieutenant's bars gleaming at his shoulders is Lt. William Manierre of the army air forces. His mother, Mrs. Harrison Manierre, went to Randolph Field, Tex., to see him commissioned.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Creigh were thrilled to receive a long distance call from their son, Lt. John Creigh of the navy, who has been on duty in the Pacific. They hope that he will be at home in Highland Park for Christmas.

On the Calendar.

First of the pre-Christmas entertaining for debutantes of the season is a reception Mr. and Mrs. John Eliot Warner, Miss Barbara Warner, and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler are giving in the Warners' apartment today for Mr. Warner's and Mrs. Wheeler's niece, Miss Louise Herdic. Assisting the debutante will be Miss Jane Merwin of Milwaukee, a classmate of Miss Herdic at Pine Manor; Miss Lucia Winston, Miss Betty Lou De Lescaille, and Miss Alice Warner. After the tea, Miss Herdic, her assistants, and their escorts will go to the Mayfair room for dinner and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Giulio Bolognesi are entertaining at cocktails this afternoon to celebrate the engagement of their daughter, Caterina, to Harry Holder Grace Jr., a coxswain in the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grace of Minneapolis. Mr. Grace, who is here to receive congratulations, is on survivor's leave, as his ship was torpedoed, and will depart Monday for Brooklyn, N. Y., where he will be commissioned an ensign. He then will go to Princeton university for his indoctrination course.

Miss Bolognesi is a graduate of the Convent of the Sacred Heart and of Barat college. She has a sister, Miss Marianna Bolognesi. Mr. Grace was graduated from the University of Minnesota.

Some time ago members of the Winnetka Music club decided to dispense for the duration with parties usually following their concerts. But the holiday spirit, together with news of the impending induction into service of Victor Babin of the duo pianist team, Vronsky and Babin, appearing in the third concert of the club's artist recital series Friday night in New Trier High school auditorium, proved too much

These War Working Women Help Turn Out Equipment for High Precision Bombing

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

The women who constitute approximately 30 per cent of the employe personnel at the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company aero division plant perform their jobs with great skill and dexterity, according to Thomas McDonald, vice president in charge of the Chicago plant. In fact, Mr. McDonald says he and the industrial relations department heads are constantly amazed at how well the women turn out their share of equipment vital to high precision bombing.

Flying feminine fingers work at drill presses, enormous turret lathes, engine lathes, grinding machines, inspection on the assembly line, and in the diamond bore department—the most precise work of all the various processes.

Plant records show the feminine workers have set an excellent example to their fellow employes by regular attendance and investing in war bonds.

In departments where safety clothing is required, the women wear trim plaid cotton slack suits with matching caps. In addition to their work, they have 10 bowling teams which meet Friday nights, and they are proud of the plant's first aid room and of the cafeteria, which is presided over by Mrs. Alma Roots, whom everybody calls "Mom."

At present the women at the plant work two daily shifts, from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 6:30 a. m., six days a week. The management hopes soon to start a part time, or four hour shift, from 5 to 9 p. m.

The women at Minneapolis-Honeywell come from all walks of life. Some were engaged in business before taking up war work, others had never worked before, and most of them have close relatives in the services.

The woman employee with the greatest number of service stars in her flag is Mrs. Lillian Sheets, drill press operator. Two sons and a daughter are in the marines; one son, two brothers, and a son-in-law are in the army, and two nephews are in the navy. Her two unmarried daughters also do war work.

Victoria Chaplinski, who worked on her father's farm near Gilman, Wis., is one of nine children, all farmers. But 11 months ago she decided she wanted to help build equipment for the army air forces, so she came to M.-H.'s Chicago plant.

Mrs. Viola Iverson, inspector on the final assembly line, a highly technical job, is a former photographer's model. Her husband, Irving C. Iverson, is in the navy.

Concert at Library.

There will be a free recorded concert from 1:30 until 3 p. m. today at the Chicago public library.

Milhaud Gives U. of C. Series Bright Opening

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Altho Darius Milhaud says, "As a pianist you must remember I am a composer who plays the piano," he was successfully on view in both capacities at Mandel hall last night when the University of Chicago opened its series of four composers' concerts with a diverting program devoted to his music. The Frenchman, who in days gone by was a revolutionary member of "The Six," was an ideal choice not only for an expertly performed concert designed to interest those who are eternally curious about new music, but also to introduce a campus project and a neophyte group called the University of Chicago Chamber orchestra. Milhaud's music is young, fresh, fastidious, melodious, and essentially gay. Its subtleties have a serenity even in complexity that scorns the pretentious.

Last night's music underscored these qualities, whether it was a sonata writen two decades ago or the popular "Scaramouche" for two pianos, played by Mr. Milhaud and Remi Gassman with something more than brilliance, for the slow movement had a persuasive poetry that made the Brazilliera doubly glittering by contrast.

So far as research about town has been able to discover, "Scaramouche" and the first symphony, "Le Printemps," for chamber orchestra, were the only scores on the program previously heard here. The springlike little symphony, barely six minutes long, was used by Hans Lange to display his fledgling orchestra in a performance so neat and clean and altogether charming you had no fears for John Weicher when the Chicago Symphony orchestra's concertmaster joined the group to introduce the Concertino de Printemps. This is spun of a running melody for the violin, particularly persuasive in the scherzo, given background and support by a syncopated undercurrent thru which a muted trumpet anticipates the audience by uttering approving ejaculations.

Altogether, Mr. Weicher had almost as busy an evening as Mr. Milhaud. The two of them were joined by Franz Polesny in the 20 year old Sonata for Two Violins and Piano, particularly interesting in the middle section when the three instruments are muted to pale tones that suggest disembodied wraiths holding converse, and by Robert Lindemann for the brilliant Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano, a score rich in gayety and animation, with a finale based on a syncopated tune that fits so cozily in the ear you seem to have known it forever.

Next on the composers' series is Igor Stravinsky, due Jan. 21, while Paul Hindemith comes in February.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY.

Woman's Place Is in the . . .

Perhaps the "back to the kitchen" movement has begun sooner than we think. At any rate, the girls in a certain Monroe street law office [who now are bringing their lunches and brewing coffee each noon] are calling what used to be "the steno room" "the kitchen."

Life's Symmetry.

"The graduating class at the University of California in 1900 had among its members a young woman who fully intended to follow a career in psychology and hoped some day to become a dean of women. But in 1904 a young engineer by the name of Frank Gilbreth changed her mind and from that time on she devoted herself to the making of a 'best marriage.' Frequently he made trips to Europe . . . and on the eve of one of these trips he dropped dead. Later, Lillian Gilbreth went to Europe to fulfill his mission.

"A graduate of the University of California, the University of Michigan, Brown university, Rutgers college, and Russell Sage college, with at least nine degrees, she has written 12 books, is president of a firm of industrial engineers in the east, is a full time professor of engineering at Purdue, and a regular lecturer at Bryn Mawr college.

"And all of these things are trivial when compared to the greatest of her attributes. She is the mother of five girls and six boys. As a combination of successful career woman and mother she is unexcelled. . . . Her life is abundant in friendship and private honor. Hers is not only a fullness of life, it is a symmetry of life. She is progressive, but at the same time willing to wait . . . full of confidence but never arrogant . . . serene but enthusiastic."

—From an address by Claude V. McBroom before the Filing Conference.

Don't We All?

I venture you have not heard of Judy, the Rogers Park youngster who is singing [appropriately] "I wish I had a paper dollar I can call my own." IRVING KELLY.

Dis and Data.

Some of the telephone companies are giving their employes "essential industry" badges. . . . American Airlines now has a woman meteorologist—a first—who plots and analyzes weather maps and does some forecasting. . . . Somebody should write a children's story about the beautiful white cat, a pet at an airplane plant which made a trip into the coal bin, or a juvenile tale about the pet mouse which recently crawled up into the public pay phone and was finally dislodged by a puff of pipe smoke. . . . Four brothers and a sister in the employ of the United States Rubber company total 182 years of service without an unexcused absence—and that's something for the records. . . . Henry Thrale reports his retort to the complaint that there's not a clip in the joint—"not a clip joint," says he.

The class includes one woman and 43 men, of whom 24 are in the army and 18 in the navy. Dean Gordon J. Laing, professor emeritus of Latin at the university, spoke on "Professions and Callings." Other speakers were Dr. Arthur C. Bachmeyer, director of the university clinic; Walter L. Palmer, professor of medicine; Dr. Alexander Brunschwig, professor of surgery, and Dr. Ted Mafit, who represented the class.

Thru the Looking Glass

Of course you can remember that when you were a child there was always one extra surprise in the toe of your stocking on Christmas morning, some tiny gift you yourself had never thought to get and that was, therefore, more welcome than ever. Now, for a grownup, that extra something is particularly exciting if it is a beauty trifle.

Here are some ideas for the toe of the stocking:

A bottle of nail polish in a fashion right shade, with a lipstick to match. One of the houses has these all ready for you, paired together and astonishingly inexpensive. The lipstick is a lovely one and the colors are all wearable.

A bottle of sachet powder, preferably one that echoes the scent of a favorite perfume. The bottles invariably are small and simple, with good snug stoppers. The powder, which is lavishly scented with fragrance, has a dozen uses, perhaps the most important now as a dry perfume. Women are conserving their extract, if they're wise, and using the sachet directly on the skin means that they need use less of the perfume itself.

The little soap novelties. There are dozens and dozens of these this year, mostly for children, who universally adore them, but you can find cunning pieces that will appeal to the adult too.

Bath mitts, made of terry cloth and filled with fine soap and water softener. There are some pretty ones, costing about a dollar, that float in the tub and can be used nine or 10 times.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Buy a Pinafore or a Smock for that Youngster

BY REA SEEGER.

Shades of Sara Crews and Elsie Dinsmore—here are the black pinafores right out of the pages of both books. They're black satin smoothies with Victorian demureness and a certain serviceability that modern mothers who are harassed by the uncertainties of the return of the laundry will doubly appreciate. They are featured in two engaging models: One, the regulation pinafore affair with a bib and shoulder straps, the other a smock, copied from the little black smock worn by the French jeune fille.

Around the edge of the shoulder ruffles and the edge of the gathered skirt is a gay piping of candy striped pink and white sateen not over a half inch wide. Imprinted on the bib and the pocket are school book and nursery rhyme friends, "The birdie with a yellow bill," Jack and Jill, little lambs, and cats and dogs in white and colors. Smocks have high square yokes, long sleeves, and a pocket, and also provide contrast with the same amusing figure prints. The black sateen has a definite gleam and shine, and assures long wear no matter how active the youngsters.

These black pinafores and smocks are new and very picturesque. Worn over wash dresses of light color, they're protectors plus the picture book effect. Long bobbed, curly-headed, or pig tailed charmers look like something out of an old album or Godey's Lady Book when wearing them. Either pinafore or smock is an ideal Christmas gift, especially for the little girl with a quaint, old fashioned manner. But these black affairs will work magic with tomboys, too. Toothless grins and cinnamon freckles on little snub noses and straight hair suddenly achieve old world distinction when contrasted with a black "pinny" or the old fashioned smock. The size range is 7 to 14, the price marks easy on any gift allowance.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 10.—Charles Winninger signed to play Dinah Shore's pappy in "The Belle of the Yukon," which stars Gypsy Rose Lee. Bill Goetz expects to have it rolling by middle of February. Dinah, Gypsy, and Charlie will have some really corny routines, with Charlie playing an obbligato on his trombone. . . . With so much chi-chi about what kind of picture to make for the post-war world, my old brain started twirling, too, and came up with this idea. Metro, why not do a sequel to "Mr. Chips," calling the picture "Chips' Boys"? Show the old one and the new one same night. Get stories of remaining boys and what's happened to them thru this conflict. If some of them are minus arms and legs, show it. Let Jimmy Hilton, who wrote the other, do this, too. In that way, it would bring the war close to every spectator. Well, here it is, fellows, and there's no charge for the idea.

They'll Find Him.

Mrs. Will Rogers visiting her congressman son in Washington. While there she'll confer with Jack Warner about her husband's picture. No one has been found yet to play Will, and a search is now on for an unknown. Send suggestions, not to me, but to Warners. . . . Nelson Eddy cut his concert tour down to 12 cities so he'd have more time to entertain soldiers. He has two months' camp appearances lined up. He's using one tune from "Knickerbocker Holiday"—"Nowhere to Go but Up." It's making quite a hit. . . . Margaret Sullavan and Elliot Nugent a solid hit in "The Voice of the Turtle" in New York. Too bad—'cause that'll keep 'em away from home for a long time.

No Soap.

It's true Orson Welles won't make "War and Peace" in England. In fact, he's not going over—for a reason that would surprise you. It has nothing to do with Rita. . . . "Curly," the caterpillar picture, now is "Once Upon a Time." . . . Those two well known stars who were warned to keep away from a secluded spot in Coldwater canyon were picked up again and spent a night in jail. If it happens a third time, I'm going to print their names. You'd be appalled. . . . Wire from Capt. Ernst Winkler—"Surprised to read in your column story concerning Ruth Mitchell and me. I'm very much in love with a Chicago girl. Will marry her Dec. 23." Well, that's that.

He'll Try Again.

David Rose, Paramount's English representative will be here for Christmas. He'd like to take some of the studio's players back home. Well, Paulette Goddard, Veronica Lake, and Ray Milland are willing and ready to go, but what do you bet Paramount won't let them? . . . I hope James Melton comes out for "Show Boat" and that they cast Marion Bell opposite him. Marion sang on my Hollywood showcase. She has the voice of the century. Three Metro producers want to test her. . . . Helen Forest took out a big life insurance policy and made it all payable to her manager, Bill Burton. She calls him "the little manager of big people."

Traveling Man.

Maj. Charles Vanda, one of Col. Tom Lewis' assistants on war radio service, hopped into town for 48 hours. Cairo is his headquarters. Said, "I worked in radio 24 years, and got my voice over the ether for the first time on Jack Benny's program from overseas." Vanda tells me Freddie March is doing mighty well over there. He has two gals and Sammy Walsh with him. Joe E. Brown passed thru en route to China, and Bill Paley, his old boss, is around there somewhere, but he hasn't run into him yet. . . . Maxie Rosenbloom has telephonitis since returning from the South Pacific. He's relaying boys' messages to their mothers, wives, and sweethearts. . . . My first important Christmas present—a war bond from Bob Cummings. . . . The Aldrich show may come west. Paramount wants its Henry for another Aldrich picture. Henry is none other than our own Dickie Jones, who started his career at the age of six. . . . We lost one of our most amusing actors since Xavier Cugat has gone back to New York. . . . Hunt Stromberg arrived from New York—took to his bed. . . . Charlie McCarthy's burned to a cinder. Edgar Bergen's buying him a lumber jacket for Christmas!

Homecomings Bringing Early Yule for Many of a temptation. Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, chairman for the series, announces that the rule is being broken this once, and an informal reception for the two musicians will be given by the club after Friday night's program.

Wedding News.

Miss Ellen Jane Coale doesn't know where her home will be after her marriage Dec. 21 to H. Mitchell Harper Jr. of the navy, but she is looking forward to making it near wherever Mr. Harper will be stationed. He will have completed his boot training at Sampson, N. Y., when he arrives home on furlough on the day of the ceremony, and, of course, he will not know until afterward where he will be assigned.

Since practically all the bridegroom's friends are stationed elsewhere in military service, there will be no ushers at the wedding, which is to take place in the Kenilworth home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Coale, with the Rev. Leland Danforth of the Holy Comforter Episcopal church officiating. The bridegroom's father will be his best man. Miss Darlene Foley will be the maid of honor, and the bride's only other attendant will be her sister, Mrs. Charles R. O'Boyle of Washington, D. C.

Two out of town guests, who were classmates of Miss Coale at the Finch Junior college—Miss Mary Beth Korsmann of Milwaukee and Miss Betty Barber of St. Louis—will be here for the wedding and for the spinster dinner to be given the day preceding the marriage by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Harper of Winnetka.

Mr. Harper will miss the many parties preceding the ceremony, among them a dinner next Sunday at the Glen View Country club, given by Charles A. Liddle and his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Walsh. Today Miss Foley and Mrs. Hollis Gleason will be hostesses at a shower for Miss Coale, and Thursday Mrs. Victor Spoehr will give a tea for her. Miss Shirley Mellor is entertaining at luncheon Friday, and Miss Muriel Burnet has planned a late breakfast party for Sunday, Dec. 19. Both these parties are to be at the Pump room. A second shower for Miss Coale will be given next Saturday by Miss Constance Klaner.

Here and There.

Comdr. and Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald Jr. will be going to Manitowoc, Wis., tomorrow, where Mrs. McDonald will sponsor a new submarine, the U. S. S. Hardhead. Mrs. McDonald was designated as sponsor of the Hardhead by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Buffington of Hinsdale have received a cablegram from their daughter, Miss Ruth Steele Buffington, from Italy, where she is stationed with the American Red Cross' 8th evacuation hospital unit. Miss Buffington, former dean of Rockford college, went abroad several months ago, but this is the first word she was able to get thru to her parents.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

A HANGING.

Cross glared at Neal, anger in his cold eyes. "So that's it. I get the idea now. You worked it to be made a marshal to protect yore friends, the thieves and criminals." His big body swung 'round to the other men. "Pull up the wagon, boys. We'll hang Miller with his partner, Dagwell."

"No." Neal did not raise his voice nor make any motion toward the .45 at his hip. "Just now I'm the United States government, boys. I've arrested Miller for helping to hold up the Sheridan stage. No mob can take him from me without a fight."

Cullen said, his voice smooth and hearty: "Of course if the government wants Miller, that's different. I reckon Uncle Sam comes first."

Derisively Brock's jeering laugh rang out. "A slick trick, MacGowan, if it works."

"It won't work." The face of Cross was flushed to an angry purple. Even a fool could see he's playing with the Rustlers' Gap crowd. If he wants a showdown right now, he'll get it."

The Scotchman Muir had said nothing as yet. He had ridden with Cross because he thought it his duty, but he did not intend to see a wounded boy hanged if there was any reasonable excuse to prevent it.

"Not so fast, Mr. Cross," he interposed. "If this Miller is MacGowan's prisoner, we can't interfere. He took him first, and we must recognize the government claim."

Tug Hack had found the prisoner. The heavy set Circle Double T rider wanted to be in on any excitement that might arise.

He flung a jeer at Muir. "Trouble with you is that you're soft."

Muir flushed. "If I'm soft because I don't like to see a man hanged without having a chance to fight for his life, you're right," he retorted hotly.

"You don't have to see it," Brock said. "You can ride back to the Blue Bell right now. We're going to rub Dagwell out. That's sure. Miller, too, if I have my way."

Dagwell spoke up. "You've got me. Isn't that enough for one day? Russ is only a kid. He's had his lesson. You can afford to let him go."

"We're not going to let him go," one of the ranch foremen differed. "We're here to clean up this business. There's only one way to do that."

"I'm standing with you, MacGowan," Muir announced quietly.

"Now boys, we don't want any trouble," the sheriff began, and was cut off by Brock.

"Trouble is one thing you sure duck, Cullen," he agreed. "What if Miller is a kid. He knew what he was headin' for when he started branding other men's stock."

"And when he helped shoot down Sol Bassett," Hack added.

Again Dagwell said a word for his companion. "He had nothing to do with that, boys. Another man did that."

"What man?"

"No information on that point," the blue shirted rustler countered.

The desertion of Muir had shaken Cross. He knew he could not get young Miller without a fight. That meant men would be killed and others wounded. It would be better to let the marshal have his way with the wounded man.

"Have it like you want it." Cross threw up a hand angrily.

"Call yoreself a cattleman and throw yore neighbors down at every chance," he swore bitterly.

"Get yore friend down from that stack," Hack growled at Neal. "I'm gonna ask him some questions or know why."

The wounded young man was brought down, the eyes in his colorless face filled with fear.

"Who killed Bassett?" was the first question flung at him.

"He doesn't know," Dagwell interrupted. "Russ was bringing up the drag and Sol was at the point when he was shot."

"Let him do his own talkin'," Hack warned. "He got a tongue, ain't he?"

Miller moistened his dry lips. "It was like Dave says. I couldn't see from where I was at."

"Don't try to run a sandy on us," Brock cried, and caught him by the coat collar, dragging his face close.

"Hands off my prisoner," Neal ordered. "Ask whatever questions you like but don't touch him."

For an instant Brock crouched, hand hovering toward the weapon on his hip, but the steady eyes of Neal covered him so relentlessly that the fingers fell away from the butt of the .45.

Cross flung questions at Miller harshly. "Who was yore leader—Dunn, or that fellow Purdy?"

"I ran the gather," Dagwell said evenly. It was plain that he already counted himself a dead man and was trying to protect his associates.

"Under orders from Cad Clemson," Hack chipped in, acidly.

"If you arrested Miller, Neal, how come it you didn't take his gun from him?" the foreman of the Circle Double T asked sharply.

"Miss Lane and I were busy patching him up," MacGowan explained. "Since I knew he wouldn't use it, I didn't bother taking the gun."

"But you bothered putting him up on this stack where you figured we wouldn't find him," Cross charged.

"I'm with you there," Brock agreed. "But what's the use of talking. Let's cut the cackle. We've got a job to do."

"Right," said Hack.

The men trooped back to the house in two groups. Those in the rear were MacGowan, Muir, the sheriff, and the wounded man. They moved slowly on account of Miller. When they reached the house Dagwell had been hoisted to the back of a horse and the others also were mounted.

The doomed rustler looked across at those not going on this last ride with him. His leathery face was completely without expression.

"So long, Russ—Neal," he said quietly.

Janet had come out and was standing in the doorway. From her throat a strangled sob broke. She turned and ran into the house, her face covered by her hands.

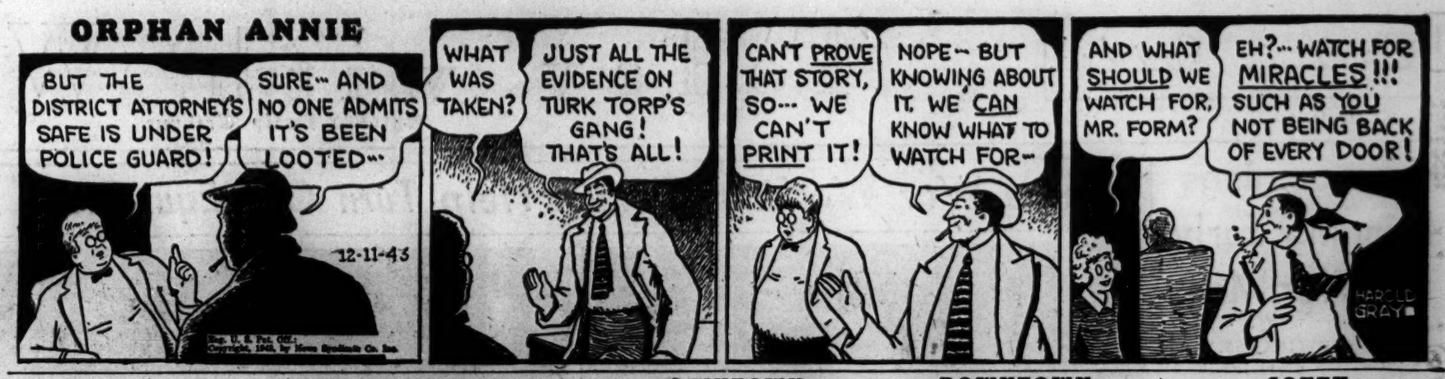
ORPHAN ANNIE



Movie of Life in Army Camp Has Its Appeal

"THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT A SOLDIER."

A Columbia picture, directed by Alfred E. Green, featuring Tom Neal, Bruce Bennett, Evelyn Keyes, John Hubbard, and Jeff Donnell, and presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

There's something about "Something About a Soldier" that's mighty engaging!

True, the story spun is the more or less routine tale of activities and discipline in a military camp, but you become immediately interested in the men principals—I didn't cotton much to Evelyn Keyes in the feminine lead—and there's an honesty about the whole that intrigues.

Background is Camp Davis, where soldiers are made into second lieutenants. The human angle is provided by two men and a girl. There is the lad who can't make a go of it because of a crybaby mother's constant threats of suicide, which destroy his morale. Then there is the not too bright chap, determined to make his doting family proud of him—who succeeds in doing just that thing. There is a lot of engrossing information as to what the boys go thru from entrance to the day when Uncle Sam considers them fitted to serve as officers.

Tom Neal and Bruce Bennett do outstanding work. Robert Stanford as the unfortunate son of a spoil-sport mother is convincing. Officers are all well played, making you realize that they recognize justice must be tempered with mercy—understanding—and humor!—even, or, perhaps, especially in an army camp.

See you tomorrow.

Mrs. Harold H., Chicago—If you are a young cook here's an old way to cream hard butter quickly. Just pour a little boiling water over it and stir. Water will separate itself from butter in time, can be poured off, and butter is ready to cream.

Mrs. Ted W., Crown Point, Ind.—I used to have trouble with water leaking out from my hanging flower pots. A friend solved that trouble for me—told me to pour a little hot sealing wax into those holes where chain is fastened to the hanging pot.

Mrs. Peter S., Vincennes, Ind.—More of us are dyeing garments these days to get a change of color and a look of newness. Here are two tricks I have learned at long last when it comes to dyeing woolens: If garment is knitted I tie it in a cheesecloth bag so it keeps its shape. Also, I let any woolens I'm dyeing simmer slowly, rinse in at least three waters, and reduce temperature gradually.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

The fact that speculative doubles of slam contracts help declarer locate key cards is enough to damn them, but they have another defect which is even worse. In today's deal East cost his side a little matter of 3,230 points because he had to indulge his penchant for doubling any contract he could defeat.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 diamonds	Pass	2 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 no trump	Pass	7 spades	Double
Pass	Pass	7 no trump	Double
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

North was ill-advised to bid seven spades instead of seven no trump in the first place, but he at least had the wit to recover from this error. There was no recovery for East from his horrendous action of doubling seven spades, which warned the opponents they had better put their faith in a different grand slam contract.

West opened the nine of diamonds, not that it mattered. Declarer cashed his entire diamond suit, discarding a spade, a heart and a club from dummy, while East, forced to hold every one of his precious spades, let go two clubs and two hearts. Declarer now cruelly cashed the ace and king of hearts, discarding down to the blank ace of clubs in dummy.

The second heart lead was one too many for East. To keep his spade protection, he had to blank the club king, and declarer was not slow to recognize the true situation. The very fact that East had doubled, not only seven spades, but seven no trump, had dissuaded declarer from any thought of taking the club finesse. Now, before testing the spade break, which was fairly apparent without a test, declarer cashed the ace of clubs. When East's king ignominiously fell, declarer had more high cards than he could use.

If East had kept quiet thruout the bidding it would have been relatively easy for declarer to go astray.

Parents' Place in Delinquency Battle Is Told

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Women who in these times of high wages are considering taking jobs and "making hay while the sun shines" should think twice before leaving their teen age boys and girls without proper parental supervision. This advice was given yesterday by Judge Frank H. Bicek of the Cook county Juvenile court in a talk on juvenile delinquency before the war service department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

The extra money working mothers add to the family income, he said, too frequently proves a "curse" rather than a "blessing."

Persons and groups working on the juvenile delinquency problem, Judge Bicek asserted, have been emphasizing the need by infants and very young children of mothers' care. However, he said, it is not among infants that delinquency occurs. There are nurseries and kindergarten schools, he said, where babies and pre-school children are as well cared for as they could be at home, but in the case of the older boy and girl "there is no substitute for a good mother."

War conditions, he told the women, have "aggravated" but not changed the causes of juvenile delinquency, which in many if not all cases can be traced to unfavorable home environment and inadequate supervision. Delinquency among boys has increased 14 per cent, he said, and the unofficial estimate among girls is placed at 20 per cent.

Judge Bicek told the women he thought there should be a central "intake" where complaints of delinquency against girls, particularly first offenders, should be lodged. From this center contact would be made with the parents of the young people, who would be held until fathers or mothers came to take them home. Such an experience, he said, should awaken parents to their responsibility.

Judge Bicek was presented by Mrs. Henry Hartough, under whose chairmanship the clubwomen are working out a program to combat the rise in juvenile delinquency. Mrs. Charles W. Stigman, chairman of the war service department, presided.

Horticultural Society Being Reorganized by Group of Old Members

A meeting to rejuvenate the old Horticultural Society of Chicago, an important gardening organization for nearly half a century, will be held shortly after Jan. 1, it was announced yesterday.

The new organization will be known as the Garden Institute and Horticultural Society of Chicago, according to proposals made by a group of 11 members of the old group who have been active in work to re-establish and modernize the society. Formed in 1890, the society lapsed in 1937 for failure to file annual reports with the state.

These 11 members met in September and elected Carl Cropp Sr. of Hinsdale temporary president and Edwin A. Kanst, 6659 Kimbark avenue, secretary. Both are old members. James H. Burdett is treasurer, and Fred G. Huechling of the staff of the Chicago Park district, has been active in research and planning the new organization.

ILLINI FACE GREAT LAKES; DE PAUL VS. NEBRASKA

GAMES TONIGHT OPEN STADIUM DOUBLE CARDS

Bluejackets Seek to Avenge Defeat.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Illinois, defending Western conference champion, and Great Lakes will open the Stadium basketball season tonight at 8:15 in the first game of a double header. De Paul university, victor in four games this season, and Nebraska complete the inaugural program.

While Illinois and Great Lakes each have won two games this season, it is unlikely the Illini can repeat last year's conquest of the Bluejackets altho this by no means precludes the possibility of a closely waged contest. Great Lakes still is experimenting with three teams selected from a squad of 35 and while Coach Lt. Paul Hinkle has a number of veteran players, he insists the squad so far has not measured to the standard set last year.

Lose Only Three Last Year.

Great Lakes lost only three games a year ago. Illinois won in the Stadium in the one contest scheduled between these teams. The Bluejackets divided games with Northwestern and Notre Dame, winning at the Naval Training station in both instances.

Illinois' difficulty, notwithstanding the one-sided victories over Detroit and the Whiz Kid alumni, is defense. Coach Doug Mills is authority for the statement but he counters with the assertion his players have developed surprisingly well in ball handling and general offensive work. Stan Patrick, transfer from Santa Clara, has led the attack. Illinois also lacks defensive height for rebounds.

Two On Hoosier 1940 Team.

Four of the starting Great Lakes quintet have had collegiate and professional experience. Paul Armstrong and Herman Schaefer, veteran forwards, played on Indiana's 1940 National Collegiate championship team. Jack Coleman, currently first string Bluejacket center, was a freshman last year at Duke university.

While De Paul's high scoring quintet is a prohibitive choice tonight over Nebraska's inexperienced squad, the Blue Demons' first appearance in the Stadium will be followed with interest. De Paul plays on all 10 of the Stadium double headers and must present interesting games to maintain attendance for the series.

Mikan Key to De Paul Hopes.

George Mikan is the key to De Paul's success since Coach Ray Meyers, as a year ago, has assigned him responsibility for control under both backboards. The De Paul coach insists Mikan has improved tremendously over last season and that he handles the ball more easily. Dick Triptow, forward, is the other veteran.

Three freshmen complete De Paul's lineup. They are Jack Dean, forward, and the guards, Gene Stump and Edwin Kackan.

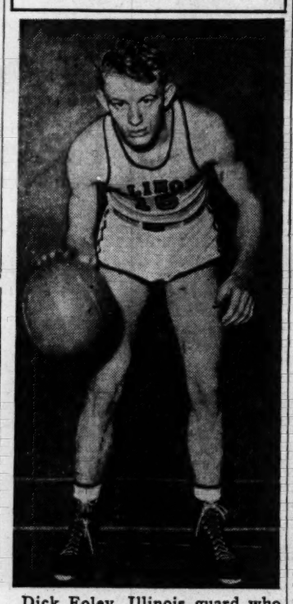
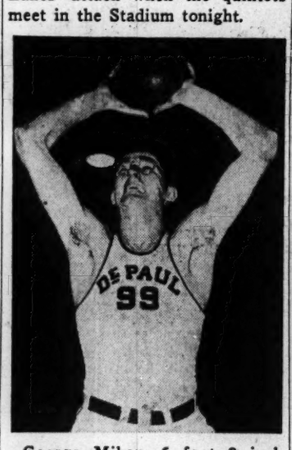
Pacific has defeated Alameda Coast Guard, St. Mary's Pre-Flight, California, and Del Monte Pre-Flight.

Stadium Stars



Dick Foley, Illinois guard who was co-captain of the 1942-'43 Paris team, state prep champion, will seek to help check Great Lakes' attack when the quintets meet in the Stadium tonight.



George Mikan, 6 foot 8 inch center for De Paul, will lead the Blue Demons against Nebraska. The game closes the Stadium double header.

Notre Dame, Badger Fives Meet Tonight

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 10 [Special].—The Notre Dame and the Wisconsin basketball teams will clash in the Notre Dame field house tomorrow night. The Badgers and the Irish will be continuing a court rivalry which began in 1926, and which has resulted in a 5 to 3 edge for Notre Dame.

Leo Klier, whose work has impressed in both games to date, and guard Bernie Rutledge, are the only returning members from last year's Notre Dame squad. Neither won monograms. Starting lineups:

N.U. HOST TO W. MICHIGAN FIVE TONIGHT

Graham Will Miss Wildcat Opener.

Northwestern university's basketball team will open its 19 game schedule against Western Michigan in the Evanston High school gymnasium tonight minus the services of Capt. Otto Graham who has the flu. Otto has not practiced all week and Coach Dutch Lonborg does not plan to use him against the Broncos.

Western Michigan has won four straight games this season including a 46 to 42 victory over Notre Dame. The Kalamazoo quintet upset the Wildcats, 52 to 42, in last year's opener.

Schmidt Replaces Graham.

Jim Schmidt, rangy sharpshooter from South Dakota state, who is assigned to Northwestern's Navy V-12 unit, will replace Graham in tonight's starting lineup: The South Dakotan has been impressive in early season workouts.

The other forward position will be filled by Nick Vodick, full back on the football team, who won a basketball letter at center last year. Ronnie Schumacher, another letter man, also will break into action at forward tonight.

George Felt, former Austin High school star, who was regular center last year until he became ineligible, will start at the pivot spot. Felt, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall, is regarded as a key player in Northwestern's plans. His height will provide the Wildcats with defensive strength under the backboards. George Thompson, 6 feet, 7 inch sophomore, also will make his debut at center tonight.

Two Sophomore Guards.

Two sophomores, John Ward of Green Bay, Wis., and Ben Schadler of Benton Harbor, Mich., will start at the guard positions. Duane Sickels and Jack Harker, sophomore ends on the football team, will also probably break into the lineup at guard.

PURDUE VS. DEPAUW V-5.

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 10 [Special].—Purdue's untested basketball combination, built around a pair of letter men and two freshman numeral winners, will face a hard assignment here tomorrow night as it launches the 1943-'44 campaign against a DePauw V-5 quintet that has already chalked up six victories in seven starts.

Coach Ward Lambert, in his 27th season, still was undecided on a pair of starting assignments, but indicated that Paul Friend, letter man, will be at one guard, with Bill Lodge and Charles Haag, holdovers from last year's brilliant freshman quintet at forward and guard, respectively. Jack Kennedy, the only other Purdue letter man on the squad probably will draw the center assignment or appear at the other forward. Lineups:

Purdue.		DePauw V-5.

ED HANYZEWSKI IS REJECTED FOR ARMY SERVICE

Ed Hanyzewski, Cubs' right-hand pitcher, was rejected for army service by his draft board in Indianapolis yesterday. No reason was given.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 10.—Jimmy Phelan of St. Mary's, Cal., does not agree with university athletic leaders who want their teams to play only opponents of comparable strength. . . . His squad this season was made of 4-Fs and boys under the age of conscription. . . . "Our only concern last September in playing these young fellows against teams with superior and more experienced personnel was one of injuries," Phelan says. . . . "We found that they learned more and got more value out of meeting opponents like DelMonte Pre-Flight, which had real power, than they did from contests with strictly civilian talent. The season is over and I never had fewer injuries at Missouri, Purdue, or Washington. There's no reason for sidestepping the tough ones. I hope we continue to meet them next year." . . . Fritz Crisler of Michigan and other midwestern coaches have expressed themselves in much the same vein. . . . The $25,000 timer in Chicago Stadium, which has been showing signs of temperament during recent hockey games, is a blood brother of the erratic device that gained nation-wide attention for acting up in the Michigan-Notre Dame game at Ann Arbor, Oct. 9. . . . Bill Veeck, who has been widely known as a sartorial screwball since he became president of the Milwaukee Brewers, hasn't worn a hat, necktie or collar for years, but will wear a cap, necktie and collar when he enters boot training at the San Diego marine base in a few days. . . . The reason he has gone collarless, he says, is because he is cursed with ingrowing throat whiskers, but as a marine he can't afford to mind a little misery like that. . . . However, he hopes he will be sent to the South Pacific pronto, because he has seen pictures of marines there stripped to the waist, tho they do wear helmets. . . .

Plans are going ahead for the N. C. A. A. basketball tournament this year and don't be surprised if the national playoff is returned to Kansas City. . . . The Red Cross, which netted $30,000 from the title game between the N. C. A. A. and New York's invitation tournament winners last year in Madison Square Garden, has asked for a similar game this year. . . . Henry Frnka, football coach at Tulsa, has a record equaled by no other college leader. . . . In his first three years as a head coach his teams have been invited to three bowl games. . . . On New Year's day, 1942, Tulsa beat Texas Tech, 6 to 0, and last New Year's day his team lost to Tennessee in the Sugar bowl, 14 to 7. . . . Tulsa will return to New Orleans this year to meet Georgia Tech. . . . His three year record is 23 victories, three defeats, and one tie.

No doubt Hitler and his Nazi mob are enjoying our Hit Parade—"A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

I am a good patriot, I hope, and I didn't complain when they took the sugar bowls off the tables and the cream out of my coffee. ST. GEORGE TEAM WORKS OUT ON NEW YORK FIELD

New York, Dec. 10 [Special].—Coach Max Brunell led a confident band of 35 St. George High football players, Chicago city champions, into New York today for their intercity title game with Mount St. Michaels at the Polo Grounds Sunday and, after a short workout at the Mount's McGovern field, it was evident that the Windy City lads had a sleeper in their midst. Reports had reached the Mount that Marty Wendell and Dick Ratcliffe would lead the Dragons, but a little back, 153 pound, 5 foot 9 inch Bobby Jones, stole the show.

Running out of the left half back spot, Jones put on bursts of speed that caused Mount Coach Howie Smith to alter his defensive plans.

DORAZIO WINS VERDICT OVER NATE BOLDEN

Saint Thomas K O's Lou Thomas in 9th.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Gus Dorazio, noted Philadelphia heavyweight spoiler, was awarded a split decision in 10 rounds over Nate Bolden, 1937 inter-city Golden Gloves winner, in Chicago Stadium last night.

Referee Bernard Weissman and Judge Romaine A. Goudie each voted 52-48 for Dorazio, but Ed Klein, the other judge, scored for Bolden, 56-44. The decision was popular with the crowd of 4,320, which contributed to a gross gate of $13,412.60.

Bolden Rallies in Ninth.

Dorazio held the upper hand except in the first, second, and ninth rounds. Gus' aggressive, ever-punching style apparently was too much for Bolden. In the first and second rounds Nate scored repeatedly with left hooks to the head, but Dorazio pressed forward in the third round and counted points with short jolts to the head.

Dorazio outpunched his smaller foe in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth rounds, but Bolden gave his constituents some hope in the ninth. Gus slipped to the canvas for a count of one in the ninth and it appeared Bolden would be able to pull the fight out of the fire. In the 10th, however, Dorazio regained the lead.

It was Bolden's first defeat in five starts and cost him a probable money match with Jimmy Bivins or Tami Mariello, ranking heavyweight contenders.

Bolden weighed 171¼ and Dorazio 193½.

Joyce Wins from Lewis.

Jimmy Joyce, Gary lightweight, was given a decision over Roy Lewis, 1941 Chicagoland Golden Gloves featherweight champion, in a 10 round contest which followed the main event.

Saint Thomas, Harlem heavyweight, knocked out Pvt. Lou Thomas of Fort Custer and Indianapolis in the ninth round of a contest set for 10 rounds. It was a dull bout until the seventh round when Lou was dropped for a seven count with a low blow. In the eighth Lou was floored twice more, once for eight and again for nine.

Merritt Scores K. O.

Dan Merritt, Cleveland heavyweight, knocked out Gilbert Stromquist, 6 foot 8 inch boxer from New York, in the second round of a scheduled six rounder which opened the show. Merritt, who was substituted for Lindy Elliott, scored three knockdowns in the first round before flooring his 250 pound foe for the count.

Hawks Expect Record Crowd at Leaf Game

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks' counting room yesterday forecast the largest crowd of the season for the Hawks' match with the Toronto Maple Leafs, in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night. This means the turnout will have to exceed 17,194 if it is to top the patronage at the season opener on Oct. 31. That total was the highest on record for a big league hockey opener anywhere, any time, and also has stood up as the league's best this season.

Leafs Win Opener.

The Maple Leafs were the Hawk foes in that opener and, as most fans will recall, elation was great when Bill Mosienko scored after 13 seconds of the opening period. Only trouble was that proved to be the Hawks' last goal and the Leafs dashed on to win, 4 to 1. That was the only meeting of the teams here this season, but the Hawks dropped in on the Leafs in Toronto on Nov. 13 and whanged them right back, also by a score of 4 to 1. That victory in Toronto was the last road success of the Hawks, who, as everybody knows, rarely win away from their own doting constituents in Chicago.

Seek Seventh Home Victory

More important than what the Hawks haven't done on the road, is the fact that tomorrow night they will be after their seventh straight victory at home. They lost that opener to the Leafs and bowed to the Montreal Canadians here four nights later. Since then they have knocked off Boston three times in the Stadium, the New York Rangers twice and the Detroit Red Wings once.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Ned Day, the Wisconsin tenpin marksman, was still in front of the most gifted field ever to compete for the national match game championship last night as the All-Star tournament, being conducted in the Auditorium service men's center under the sponsorship of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, reached the halfway point.

The slender, handsome Badger who held the man-to-man bowling crown of the nation before he was displaced by big Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis., last year, himself admitted last night that he was traveling in the fastest company of his bright career. Despite the fact that he had increased his lead over the entire field, in his final match of the second round of 16 games, Ned found a tough man in Adam Plunge, the south side pattern maker who had led the Rose Bowl trials in the Chicago eliminations. Adam, a member of the Washington Shirts of the Classic league, showed a complete disregard for Day's reputation by winning the last two games of their four-set competition.

Competition Is Heated.

Their match was typical of the competition in yesterday's battling. The same squad found Schwoegler, who had been going none too well in the early rolling, beating able Joe Kissoff, the baldish tenor from Cleveland. Connie rolled games of 232, 244, 192 and 216 against Joe's 200, 227, 235 and 202.

This would have been enough, but Fred Bujack, the Detroit understudy for Mort Lindsey, Connecticut veteran, maintained the same rapid pace he had since he replaced Mort.

The most interesting schedule of the tournament is expected to transpire in today's third round, which will find Day meeting Rudy Pugel, the halfway runnerup, and John Crimmins, who fought thru a 90 game special match with Ned last year. The Day-Pugel bout is set for the first squad, which will go to the line at noon, and Crimmins and Ned will renew their rivalry at 6:20 o'clock tonight.

Pugel in 2d Place.

Pugel, 23 year old laundry truck driver who was runnerup with Day for the national match doubles championship on the same drives last year, took over second place with a point total of 152.37, seven points and 19 pins back of Day.

Today's schedule of bowling will be the same as Thursday's and yesterday's with squads starting at noon, 1:20, 2:40, and 4:00 in the afternoon and at 6:20, 7:40, 9:00, and 10:20 in the evening.

The tournament will end tomorrow with the fourth and final round of 16 games. The winner of the tournament, based on the Petersen system, will receive first prize of $2,000, with $1,000 going to the runnerup.

THE HEAT'S ON!

Sixteen of the nation's finest bowlers, survivors of a starting field of 132 last Monday, are in the thick of the final round for the national individual match game championship at the Auditorium Service Men's alleys in the third annual All-Star tournament sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

These 16 finalists have beat down all other competition and now are meeting each other in a round robin series which includes afternoon and evening matches today and tomorrow. The Auditorium ticket office opens at 10 a. m. daily. Prices:

OAK PARK FIVE WINS SUBURBAN OPENER, 30 TO 29

Wilkie Leads Attack on New Trier.

Oak Park High began its move toward a Suburban league basketball championship by edging out New Trier of Winnetka, 30 to 29, last night in Winnetka. It was the season's opener for both teams. Bud Wilkie led the Huskies' attack with 13 points. New Trier led at the half, 18 to 16. A fast scoring third period in which Oak Park scored nine points gave it the victory.

Morton of Cicero, the defending champion, defeated Waukegan, 31 to 20, in Cicero. Forward Soucek and Center Patyk each scored five points for the champion.

Bears Work on Defense for Play-off Game

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Bears yesterday got into the core of their defensive work for the National Football league title game —still figuring that the other team will be the Washington Redskins and the date a week from Sunday in Wrigley field.

The core of the Bears' defense, judging from the two shellackings they took from the Redskins, one in 1942 for the championship, the other a league contest last month is protecting Sid Luckman long enough for him to pick out receivers for his passes.

It was a pass protection scrimmage with the players wearing battle regalia and a rough session it was. After the long drill the coaches were hopeful that some headway had been made in figuring out ways and means for Luckman to hold the ball longer than if it were a hot potato.

The drill was topped off with the athletes barging into the tackling dummy. Ray Nolting, veteran half back, joined up after having settled his business affairs in Cincinnati. The squad is prepared to welcome Bronko Nagurski at today's practice. Sunday's "game" will start at 10 a. m.

DYNAMIC FORCE NEEDED, SLOAN TELLS INDUSTRY

Vast Reconversion Plan Disclosed.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, tonight challenged industrialists to prepare aggressively for widening job opportunities and "a dynamic and expanding economy, with higher standards of living" after the war.

Robert M. Gaylord.

"These are objectives which may well challenge the imagination of every individual in the country," he told 4,000 members of the National Association of Manufacturers at the close of their 48th annual convention.

In the first such public announcement by a big corporation, Sloan said General Motors has a "master plan" calling for expenditures of 500 million dollars for reconversion. This is based on expectation of a 100 billion annual national income. He predicted a post-war boom in sales of automobiles and other consumer goods whose production had been stopped or curtailed by war.

Rockford Man Heads N. A. M.

"That is the contribution we are prepared to make to help preserve the free competitive enterprise system as the keystone of American economy," he said.

Robert M. Gaylord, president of Ingersoll Milling Machine company, Rockford, Ill., was elected president of the N. A. M. to succeed Frederick C. Crawford, president of Thompson Products, Inc., Cleveland, O. The machine tool company Gaylord has headed since 1928 has had its peace time average of about 900 employes doubled by war work. He runs an open shop, and his post-war plan is "work hard and save money."

Wilfred Sykes, president of Inland Steel company, Chicago, told the manufacturers they should "demand that congress make a clear and unequivocal statement of policy that the private enterprise system will be preserved." Otherwise, he warned, uncertainty as to government intentions makes programs for creating jobs and other post-war planning mere speculation.

Submits Debt Payment Plan.

A specific 100 year plan for paying a war swollen national debt estimated at 300 billion dollars was submitted by J. Cheever Cowdin, N. A. M. tax spokesman and chairman of Universal Pictures company.

Federal taxes would be fixed at 22 billions annually, compared with an estimated 39.3 billion this fiscal year. Individual income taxes would be cut two-thirds and corporate taxes put at 25 per cent, each to yield 5 billion.

To cover debt services, 6 billion for interest and 3 billion for retirement at the start, Cowdin would have a special war debt tax of 1 per cent "on every transaction — carefully devised to avoid pyramiding, to be collected by the use of stamps." He put its yield at 9 billion, based on national income of 125 billions.

Sloan Issues Challenge.

Sloan asked the industrialists if they were ready to accept the challenge of post-war leadership or if they would weakly adopt a policy of "let nature take its course."

"We must develop new things to produce," Sloan said. "We must produce existing things at lower prices. If we do not, there are certain to be fewer instead of more jobs available as the years go by. This must not happen.

"If it should, our people will demand of government what they cannot obtain thru private enterprise."

Sloan suggested that price controls be continued for a limited time after the war until Americans could establish an "equilibrium between goods available and purchasing power."

Every business unit — large or small—was urged to study its post-war problems from the standpoint of its own individual circumstances. He said "this is particularly true of small business, which embraces in a major part of the whole."

"Must Establish Rules."

Sloan said his challenge to industry should be based on conviction, faith, and confidence—which included these important components:

Rules involving governmental economic policies relating to reconversion must be established now;

Financial considerations involved in cancelation of government contracts should be set;

Consideration should be given regarding disposition of government owned plants, machinery, work in process, and materials;

Thought must be given to release of materials for engineering development of post-war products, to post-war reserves as business expense;

International economic relationships must be on the basis of a "two-way" street with "no world WPA at the expense of the American taxpayer";

Management must direct its planning toward reducing unemployment to the minimum during reconversion;

Governmental tax policy must be reconstructed so that "lower rates will increase dollar revenue by expanding the productivity of the sources of revenue" and "taxes on enterprise must be drastically reduced."

Cities Bucking Federal Help, Planners Told

Growing resistance by municipalities to federal assistance is evident in the financing of public works, Carl H. Chatters, executive director of the Municipal Finance Officers' association of the United States and Canada, said yesterday at the press conference on post-war planning, sponsored by the Public Administration Clearing house.

He asserted cities were becoming more conservative and will not be so inclined toward borrowing as before, with the emphasis on pay-as-you-go in public improvements. He said that the states, with revenues more than doubled in the last 12 years, ought to take a larger responsibility and contribute more widely to the promotion of public works.

Favors Jobless Relief.

Chatters said he saw no reason for the federal government to do anything in public works if the local government can do it. However, he said use of federal money was justified in relieving unemployment in boom cities, brought about by the cessation of war work.

Discussing the future housing needs of the nation, Hugh R. Pomeroy, director of the National Association of Housing Officials, asserted that an annual average of 1,750,000 dwelling units a year will be needed for 15 years after the war. The "overwhelming" part of the job should be performed by private enterprise, with housing for low income groups, which cannot be constructed economically by private builders, being taken over by public housing, he maintained.

Predicts Air Line Growth.

Within five years after the end of the war, the air transport industry will expand to five times its size in the best pre-war year, W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, predicted. He based his estimate on market research surveys made by his company.

"United Air Lines passenger business is expected to expand to 100 million dollars, compared with 18 million in the largest pre-war year," Patterson said. "Where there were 4,300 employes, there will be 20,000."

At the same time, he advised cities not to plunge into a program of reckless airport expansion. "Instead of overextending," he said, "let's be progressive. Five times is healthy growth."

SPECIAL ISSUES LEAD STOCKS TO HIGHER LEVELS

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The stock market today rallied behind farm implement, mail order, gold mine and leading industrial stocks.

A revival of inflation thinking, spurred by a brisk upturn in grains and an expansion of money in circulation to a record peak above 20 billion dollars inspired some securities buying. Further drying up of year-end tax selling, served as a bolstering influence.

SELECTED BONDS GAIN.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Selected bonds advanced today while one of the largest public utility offerings of the year was made publicly. An assortment of rails, industrials, and utilities ended higher by fractions to more than a point.

CHICAGO LIST EDGES UP.

Prices on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday tended higher, altho four out of five volume leaders closed unchanged. Total turnover was the same as Thursday, 25,000 shares. Eversharp, gaining ⅛, and Midland United A preferred up ½, set 1943 peaks.

Chicago WPB to Assign Priorities Under $25,000

In a new decentralization step the WPB, starting Monday, will extend to the Chicago district office the authority to assign priorities and make allotments on applications for construction projects with valuation of materials not exceeding $25,000, Howard E. Richardson, deputy director of priority distribution announced.

People and Events

John Jacob Astor, great-grandson of the founder of the Astor fortune, yesterday was elected a director of the New York, Chicago, and St. Louis railroad [Nickel Plate line]. Astor, holder of a large amount of railroad stock, is a director of the United States Trucking corporation and of a number of privately owned corporations.

How RCA is planning post-war marketing activities thru commercial and sales research will be discussed by E. W. Butler, manager of the commercial research department, RCA Victor division of Radio Corporation of America, before the Chicago Industrial Advertisers association Monday in the La Salle hotel.

Louis McDermut, president of the Illinois Slag and Ballast company, Chicago, has been elected president of the National Slag association.

Henry B. Bryans, executive vice president of the Philadelphia Electric company, has been elected president of the American Standards association.

Treasury Also Wants Slice of Bonus Turkey

If the boss is in the habit of giving you a Christmas turkey as a bonus, the bird will be considered wages this year, and as such will be subject to the withholding tax on income, E. B. McNatt, regional director of the war labor board wage stabilization division said yesterday. The withholding, presumably, will be in money rather than a drumstick and/or wing.

Addressing a war problems session of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the La Salle hotel, McNatt also asserted that "if you did not play Santa Claus to your employes last year you cannot this year." He said bonus plans must be held at the same level as last year.

Adheres to Steel Formula.

"Despite its faults the 'Little Steel' formula is still the base wage policy of the WLB," said McNatt in discussing recent wage and salary developments. He said the formula will not be applied in behalf of the higher bracket independent crafts, but will be used in adjusting cost of living inequities up to 15 per cent, based on wages paid in January, 1941, depending on the industry and area scale.

McNatt said companies planning to adopt incentive wage payment systems "must meet strict tests for WLB approval and must undergo the sharp scrutiny of an industrial engineer and an economic analyst retained by the board."

Explain Incentive Pay.

He explained that such incentive systems "must be in balance with increased production." He said the WLB would "throw out any plan which includes severe penalties, and any incentive plan that falls short of 100 per cent distribution is likely to be rejected." Nonproduction workers, however, may be excluded.

To obtain WLB approval on a profit sharing system, McNatt said, the plan must conform with the internal revenue code. He asserted that premium wages paid to second and third shift workers must have WLB approval.

McNatt asserted the board would approve group insurance and hospital plans up to 5 per cent of the employes wages if there were no cash surrender in connection with the plans.

Revival of Old Bank Rule Irks House Group

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The recent revival by the federal reserve board of an old rule which may add several million dollars annually to the operating costs of the nation's rural banks today aroused members of the house banking and currency committee.

Rep. Paul Brown [D., Ga.], told Ronald Ransom, vice chairman of the board, at today's hearing that he has received a flood of telegrams from small bankers protesting the new policy. The congressman said, "Country banks are already having hard sledding and this is no time to cut down their profits."

The rule now being invoked is known as federal reserve board regulation Q. It has been technically in force for at least eight years but has not been enforced, Ransom said.

Must Pay Exchange.

The effect of the rule, Ransom explained, is to require small rural banks to pay the cost of exchange charges on checks sent for clearance to their correspondent banks in big cities.

Most country banks, he said, make a practice of placing some of their "excess" funds with larger city banks in the form of demand deposits. The practice has been, he continued, for the larger banks to clear checks from the smaller institutions without a cash charge in return for the use of the funds on deposit.

Ransom said this practice was ruled illegal by the federal reserve board in 1935 in interpreting an act passed by congress two years earlier. The act prohibited the payment of interest on demand deposits, and the reserve board ruled the waiving of check clearing charges was, in reality, an interest payment to the small banks.

Ransom said the rule has been violated generally, but that the board now has decided it must be enforced. He estimated the amount involved in exchange charges at 8 to 10 million dollars a year.

Doubts Ability to Pay.

Brown said the small banks are in no position to absorb this amount and inquired why the regulation now is being dusted off after lying dormant for so many years.

Ransom replied that under present financial conditions brought about by war spending the reserve board considers it dangerous for larger banks to "bid" for demand deposits from smaller banks by offering to waive check clearance charges. Because of the vast amount of government bonds available for investment, he explained, large banks now are seeking to increase their deposits so they can invest them in bonds and get a return.

This tendency to drain off funds from small banks is "unsound," he said, because it concentrates large amounts of capital in the big financial centers. Small banks, he said, should be encouraged to keep their own funds and to make their own investments instead of sending their money to big institutions.

JONES IS NAMED ARBITER IN FARM WAGE REVISION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Marvin Jones, war food administrator, today became the arbiter of United States farm wages under $5,000 a year in a revision of rural wage policies ordered by Fred M. Vinson, director of economic stabilization. The order, under certain conditions, opened the door to immediate wage increases for farm workers in the low-pay brackets.

Vinson rescinded a portion of the national wage freeze law applying to farm laborers who make less than $2,400 a year, if Jones has not set specific wage scales for their work.

Under this decree, employers are authorized to increase the wages of laborers in this group from present levels to a maximum of $2,400 without having to obtain formal approval from stabilization authorities. Vinson said farm wages and salaries over $2,400 will remain under provisions of the wage freeze order until Jones establishes specific farm wage scales.

First National Bank Votes Usual $2.50, 50c Extra

Directors of the First National Bank of Chicago yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on the capital stock and the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50, both payable Jan. 1. Aggregate cash dividends paid in 1943 totaled $11.50, compared with $10 in 1942. Extras of similar amounts were paid on April 1, July 1, and Oct. 1.

CIVILIAN GOODS CRISIS IS PAST, SAY RETAILERS

Expect Inventories to Hold Steady.

America has passed the critical point in production and regardless of the drain of men in the draft there should be a slow improvement in output of civilian goods, even tho Germany continues in the war longer than expected. However, because of greatly depleted inventories in many lines, retail store counters will be slow to feel the effects of increased production.

This opinion on the outlook for store operation was expressed yesterday in informed Chicago retail quarters.

It is doubtful that pre-war price levels will be restored after peace returns, present indications pointing to prices averaging 15 to 25 per cent higher than before Pearl Harbor, it was said.

Doubt Revolutionary Change.

Leaders in the retail trade further expressed the view that new and revolutionary ideas and products will not come forth in abundance after the war, contrary to the expectations of a large part of the public. Retailers are expected to play established winners and to bring out new products only as they are proved. In this respect the merchandising business sees eye to eye with the automobile manufacturers, who expect to resume production with 1942 models, except for minor face lifting and mechanical changes.

One view expressed was that uneconomic orders issued by the office of price administration have created extremely awkward situations and caused some price advances well above levels that might have been maintained.

Popular Items Stopped.

"The action of the OPA in limiting stores to the handling of price lines previously handled runs counter to sensible price control methods," one retailer said. "It has, for example, stopped the production of many items of clothing in the popular priced field because manufacturers could only operate at a loss under the OPA prices."

In reviewing the outlook for a number of lines of products in demand by the public the retail experts found:

Supplies of cotton and wool are ample, altho rayon is scarce. Some lines of aluminum ware are expected to show increases. Large quantities of enameled pots and pans will be available.

Because of the voluntary cooperation on the part of merchants in the distribution of textiles, any rationing of clothing appears less likely and the government is expected to avoid it.

Furniture is in limited supply. The stocks of seasoned lumber have been almost completely depleted. Veneers and other furniture materials are scarce.

Supplies of many building materials, such as roll roofing and insulating board, are expected to be controled by the government because of the need for using them in rehabilitating freed and conquered nations.

Steel goods of various types will be in better supply.

Factory equipment required to step up production of tires for civilian use is expected to come thru during 1944, so the tire situation may be fair for civilians by the end of the year.

The outlook is dull for production of refrigerators, washing machines, ironers, vacuum cleaners, and similar items, except for parts.

Brake Inflation by Making Wares for Public, Says Wiley

Sen. Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] last night urged immediate production of more civilian goods as a means of stemming the threat of inflation. He addressed the Conference of American Small Business organizations in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Sen. Wiley.

"The threat of inflation is embodied in the abnormal national income of 145 billion dollars," Sen. Wiley said. "As a means of draining off this vast reservoir of purchasing power, material should be allotted to the tooling industry so it can begin to tool up the industry of the nation and many lines of civilian goods should be increased."

Cites Inflation Base.

Sen. Wiley described the primary cause of inflation as "too little production and too much purchasing power." He said, "the planners in Washington who have to do with the allocation of strategic materials should immediately give consideration to these antidotes of inflation."

The business group, headed by Fred A. Virkus, of La Grange, Ill., Republican member of the Illinois house of representatives, adopted a resolution urging "elimination of all discriminatory privileges and favors for government owned or subsidized businesses and coöperative organizations in competitive fields."

Rollbacks Opposed.

Other resolutions opposed all rollback subsidies and asked that congress compel the OPA to redraft its orders to "put a stop to endless red tape and intolerable delays."

The group also went on record as opposed to increases in postal rates on the grounds they are charges for services performed and, as such, "are not a proper source of revenue for general taxation." Another resolution asked exemption from negotiation of war contracts for contractors and subcontractors with annual sales of less than $500,000.

ILLINOIS TECH BREAKS GROUND FOR AUTO UNIT

Ground has been broken by Illinois Institute of Technology for the second permanent unit of its $3,100,000 campus development program, an automotive research laboratory, officials announced yesterday. Designed by Ludwig Mies Van der Rohe, head of the institute's architectural department, the new unit will be on 34th street, between Dearborn and Federal streets, and eventually encompass the ceramics building, on which work was begun last September.

AIR LINES PROMISE 50 PASSENGER SHIPS CRUISING 220 M. P. H.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Four engined air liners carrying 50 passengers, in addition to mail and express, at cruising speeds of 220 miles an hour and clipping transcontinental flight time 25 per cent will be standard equipment after the war, air line representatives said today. The announcement, describing the Douglas DC-4, commercial version of the army transport C-54, came in a joint statement by representatives of American Airlines, Eastern Air Lines, Pan American Airways system, Pan American-Grace airways, United Air lines, and Western Air lines.

They said the plane, powered by four Pratt and Whitney engines generating 4,400 horse power, cruised 50 miles an hour faster than the twin engined Douglas DC-3, now standard commercial air line equipment, and would span the continent in 12 to 13 hours.

Army's Congress Hotel Rent Set at $500,000

Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday awarded the Reconstruction Finance corporation, owner of the Congress hotel, and the Michigan-Congress corporation, lessee, $500,000 for rent and damage caused by 11 months occupation by the army. The agreement awards $251,300 to RFC and the remainder to the hotel company.

DENIES DEPOSIT GAINS ARE WAR BOOM WEALTH

Reflect U. S. Needs, Bank Reports.

The vast increase in non-government demand deposits in banks since the beginning of the war reflects the increased needs of business and farmers, and not, as commonly assumed, the war boom wealth of individuals as consumers, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago asserted in a study released yesterday.

With the nation near peak productive capacity, the need for additional working balances probably will cease to rise as rapidly as in the past, thereby enabling business firms and others to put more of their funds into government securities, the study asserted. This, in turn, would make it possible for the government to finance a larger part of its deficit thru the sale of securities to others than banks.

Warns Against Break in Line.

Such conditions will not be true, the bank warned, if the government's "hold the line" policy on inflation breaks down and there are sizable price and wage increases.

Unless the value of production increases appreciably in the next few months, treasury spending will create private bank deposits beyond the operating needs of business, the bank said. A large part of these deposits will be available for purchase of government securities in the next war loan drive, it said.

Demand deposits of business firms increased 13 to 14 billion dollars between the end of 1941 and the end of July, 1943, while personal demand deposits increased by not much more than four or five billions, the reserve bank reported. It said much of the increase in farmer deposits probably represents money held for purposes closely associated with farm production, rather than with the consumption.

Traces Relationships.

Tracing the close relationship between bank deposits and industrial and farm activity and individual incomes, the bank said:

"Since deposits have increased most in areas where physical volume and dollar value of transactions have increased most, and have increased least where the volume and value of transactions have increased least, it would appear that deposits have risen because of an increased need for working balances rather than from any desire to build up large idle balances."
